

Article: 1043

Topic: EPV01 - e-Poster 01: Addictive Behaviours

---

Quality of Life and Alienation of Injection Drug Addicts with HIV-infection

S. Igumnov<sup>1</sup>, E. Stanko<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Forensic Medicine with the Course of Forensic Psychiatry, Belarusian State Medical University, Minsk, Belarus ; <sup>2</sup>Psychiatry, Grodno Medical University, Grodno, Belarus

---

The Subject of the Research is HIV-positive and HIV-negative injection drug addicts.

The Methods of the research – study of social functioning, quality of life and alienation of injection drug addicts with HIV-infection and without HIV-infection with establishment of interrelation of factors of clinical and psychosocial characteristics and further development of the evaluation methods of the alienation level and treatment efficacy of injection drug addicts.

Results. While performing the research were studied the regularities of drug addiction spread in the Republic of Belarus, development of epidemical HIV-infection process and the state of immune system among injection drug addicts. It is shown, that the spread of drug abuse and HIV-infection is followed by the increase of HIV-positive injection drug addicts, who has shown the symptoms of immune deficiency, which are marked with comorbidity with HIV-infection.

Conclusion. Were developed and clinically tested diagnostic technique of alienation level of injection drug addicts and evaluation method of efficiency treatment of drug addicts, which distinguishes the main criterion of conducted research and its research and practice importance.

Key words: drug abuse, injection drug addicts, HIV-infection, biopsychosocial model of alienation, effectiveness of drug abuse treatment.