and as chair of the Annual Meeting Division on Constitutional Law and Jurisprudence (2001–02).

His service to the profession reaches beyond the Association, as evidenced by his service on the Advisory Council for the Teachers Institute of Philadelphia; as an external reviewer to 12 political science departments; and as a member of the editorial boards of nine journals. During his tenure at Yale University, he served as the director of undergraduate studies in political science and economics (1986–88); director of graduate studies (1999–2001); chair of the Program of Ethics, Politics, and Economics (1989–91); co-director of the ISPS Center for the Study of Race, Inequality, and Politics (1995–2001); and the Alfred Cowles Professor of Government (1999–2001). At the University of Pennsylvania, he has been chair of the department of political science (2003–06) and, since 2006, has served as chair of the Program on Democracy, Citizenship, and Constitutionalism.

His scholarship has created greater discussion of the discipline and a greater understanding of political science. As an advocate for dialogue and debate, he has been instrumental in creating opportunities for scholars of different methodological and theoretical perspectives to come together. The numerous awards received for his book Civic Ideals: Conflicting Visions of Citizenship in U.S. History (Yale UP, 1999) are proof of his impact on the profession.

His contributions to teaching have been recognized by the Yale College Distinguished Undergraduate Teaching Prize (1984) and the University of Pennsylvania Dean's Award for Mentorship of Undergraduate Research (2008) and Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching (2009). His commitment to encouraging excellence in others is evidenced by his role as supervisor of 33 Ph.D. dissertations and as a committee member on another 52 Ph.D. dissertations. His dedication to the younger political scientists through his work on such committees will continue to impact the profession for years to come.

It is with deep appreciation for these scholars' dedication to the profession that the APSA presented to them the Frank J. Goodnow Award for Distinguished Service. ■
