Human Rights in Global Politics

Tim Dunne and Nicholas J. Wheeler, Editors

There is a stark contradiction between the theory of universal human rights and the everyday practice of human wrongs. This timely volume brings together leading scholars to evaluate this paradox. The contributors ask whether human rights abuses are a result of the failure of governments to live up to a universal human rights standard, or whether the search for moral universals is a fundamentally flawed enterprise.

International Toxic Risk Management

Ideals, Interests and Implementation
Aynsley Kellow

This original and sometimes controversial book is concerned with international regulation, negotiation and policy-making in the environmental realm. In particular, it focuses on toxic chemicals, and the ways in which risk associated with hazardous substances is assessed, and the policy outcomes that result.

The Power of Human Rights

International Norms and Domestic Change
Thomas Risse, Stephen C. Ropp, and Kathryn Sikkink, Editors

This book celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of the United Nation's passage of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by showing how global human rights norms have influenced national government practices in eleven different countries around the world. Transnational human rights pressures and policies have made a significant difference in bringing about improvements in human rights practices in diverse countries around the world. The book describes a model of socialization processes that can be broadly applied to other processes and policy areas where global ideas have an impact on domestic affairs.

Corruption and Government Causes, Consequences, and Reform

Susan Rose-Ackerman

Corruption is a worldwide phenomenon. Developing countries and those making a transition from socialism are particularly at risk. This book suggests how high levels of corruption limit investment and growth and lead to ineffective government. Corruption creates economic inefficiencies and inequities, but reforms are possible to reduce the material benefits from payoffs. Corruption is not just an economic problem, however; it is also intertwined with politics. Reform may require changes in both constitutional structures and the underlying relationship of the market and the state. Effective reform cannot occur unless both the international community and domestic political leaders support change.

CRIMES AGAINST HUMANITY IN INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW

Second Revised Edition

by M. Cherif Bassiouni

In this revised edition, Professor Bassiouni persuasively establishes the legal validity of the Nuremberg Charter and describes the evolution of 'crimes against humanity' from 1945 to the 1998 ICC Statute. The book's comprehensive historical and legal analysis starts with the origins of this crime in the international regulation of armed conflicts and covers the Nuremberg, Tokyo, and Allied Prosecutions after World War II, and subsequent national prosecutions, as well as the Statutes of the ICTY, ICTR, and their jurisprudence, and the Statute of the ICC. The breadth and depth of this exhaustively documented book makes it the definitive authority on 'crimes against humanity.'

MAX PLANCK YEARBOOK OF UNITED NATIONS LAW

Volume 3, 1999

edited by Jochen A. Frowein,
Rüdiger Wolfrum

Now in its third year, the Max Planck Yearbook of United Nations Law is becoming a much sought-after forum for essays by the most distinguished professors in international law. These essays cover a variety of topics related to the activities of the United Nations: from the role of the Security Council to UN treaties, from environmental issues to humanitarian law. The Yearbook also contains essays on related organizations such as the World Bank, the IAEA, and the WTO. Volume 3 focuses on environmental topics in the light of UN and WTO frameworks, and also contains topical articles such as the UNSC resolutions on Kosovo and Iraq. This book is essential for any academic involved in international law.

THE PALESTINE YEARBOOK OF INTERNATIONAL LAW 1996-1997

edited by Anis F. Kassim

When the international legal community seeks definitive information and educated commentary on Palestinian issues it turns to The Palestine Yearbook of International Law. The ninth volume contains: leading articles on the judicial review in Palestine, on water management, and on the status of Jerusalem; the texts of Palestinian, Israeli, and U.S. legislation; a selection of recent book reviews; and a detailed bibliography. The charged nature of this field heightens the importance of access to quality information. This work supplies topical coverage on a wide range of issues in the field, making it a key resource for international practitioners and academics.

QUO VADIS ARBITRATION?

Sixty Years of Arbitration Practice, A Comparative Study

by Pieter Sanders

Quo Vadis Arbitration? will not disappoint the many lawyers, judges, legislators, and businesspeople to whom it is addressed. Drawing on his wide and varied experience, Professor Sanders presents cogent, well-reasoned arguments and recommendations for: the main issues which may arise in any arbitration; a revision of the UNCITRAL Model Law; a harmonisation of Rules on Conciliation and drafting a Model Law on Conciliation; refining Codes of Ethics and Codes of Taking Evidence to strengthen bridges between cultural differences. This is a book that will be warmly appreciated—and used—by arbitration specialists of any degree of expertise, anywhere in the world.

THE LONELINESS OF THE COMPARATIVE LAWYER and Other Essays in Foreign and Comparative Law

by John Henry Merryman

In these critical essays a leading comparative lawyer examines the movement for convergence of the Civil Law and the Common Law, describes the Italian Style and the French Deviation, contrasts Common Law estate with Civil Law ownership, explains why the distinction between public law and private law is important to Civil Lawyers but has little interest for Common Lawyers, exposes the fatal emptiness at the core of the Law and Development movement, proposes a marriage of comparative law and scientific explanation, emphasizes the fundamental relation between law and social and cultural change, and advocates a culturally broader and historically richer approach to comparative law teaching and scholarship.

RENEGOTIATING WESTPHALIA Essays and Commentary on the European and Conceptual Foundations of Modern International Law

edited by Christopher Harding, C.L. Lim

This collection of papers addresses two main themes: firstly, whether there is a distinctively European contribution to or even leadership in the contemporary formation and evolution of international law; secondly, the extent to which non-governmental actors (e.g. NGOs, international organizations, companies, individuals) contribute decisively to the formation of international law at the present time. These issues are explored within a number of different contexts of contemporary significance, such as the protection of human and minority rights; protection of the environment; control of transnational organized crime; prosecution of war crimes and crimes against humanity.

MINORITIES IN EUROPE Croatia, Estonia and Slovakia

by Snežana Trifunovska

States having minorities on their territory have a duty to undertake all measures aimed at avoiding conflicts which might develop, but over and beyond that bottom line, they also have a duty to develop norms and guarantee systems which go hand-in-hand with the current international standards of safeguarding human rights, multiculturalism, and pluralism. In this book three aspects of minority situations are highlighted: (a) political/security, (b) internal legal, and (c) economic aspects, in the cases of three newly independent countries: Croatia, Estonia, and Slovakia.

INTERNATIONAL RESERVATION OF TITLE CLAUSES A Study of Dutch, French and German Private International Law in the Light of European Law

by Jacobien W. Rutgers

In this book, the author addresses the question as to the problems which may arise if a reservation of title clause is employed within international transactions, especially transactions between Germany, France, and the Netherlands, and in which mode a solution can be found. This study is an important contribution to the understanding of European integration in a hitherto relatively neglected subject area. The lucid tone of the book makes it suitable for a wide range of potential readers: both academics and practitioners in private international law and European law.

United Nations Publications

Handbook of Environmental Law

Environmental law has been recognized as one of the most effective tools to translate the objectives of sustainable development into action. The dissemination of information on environmental law therefore takes on an urgent significance. In this context, the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) has produced this publication, which is designed to provide its users with important environmental law documents. It brings together key policy documents, texts of major legal instruments as well as information on national legislation.

Handbook on Probation Services: Guidelines for Probation Practitioners and Managers

Will probation survive into the next century given the problems and adaptive challenges. Its importance as a non-custodial measure was recognized by the international community in 1988 when the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for Non-Custodial Measures (The Tokyo Rules) were formulated and subsequently adopted in 1990. One of the main aims of this Handbook is to serve as an instrument to guide and facilitate the comprehension and the implementation of the Tokyo Rules in countries where probation exists and in countries interested in such a system. Along with presenting a historical background of probation, the publication discusses emerging trends, professional responsibilities, management and administration.

FOUNDATIONS OF WORLD ORDER

The Legalist Approach to International Relations, 1898–1922

FRANCIS ANTHONY BOYLE

Boyle provides the first historically comprehensive analysis of U.S. foreign policy regarding international law and organizations. Examining the period from the Spanish American War to the establishment of the League of Nations and the Permanent Court of International Justice, Boyle argues that the international legal framework created at the beginning of the twentieth century not only influenced the course of American foreign policy but also provided the foundation upon which relations among states were built.

“Highly informative and interesting. Boyle puts the different policy initiatives under the general ‘legalist’ framework, and he makes sense of this period in the history of U.S. international relations.”—John Quigley, author of The Ruses for War: American Interventionism since World War II

“Specialists in the field of American diplomatic history and the jurisprudence of international law should welcome this work. There is no other that covers the same ground.”—Alfred P. Rubin, author of Ethics and Authority in International Law

Words Over War Mediation and Arbitration to Prevent Deadly Conflict

Edited by Melanie C. Greenberg,
John H. Barton, and Margaret E. McGuinness

“Words Over War throws light on the intractable deadly conflicts of our time and provides valuable insights into non-violent means of settlement.”—Oscar Schachter, Hamilton Fish Professor Emeritus of International Law and Diplomacy, Columbia University Law School

“Only by studying different forms of mediation, and at the same time by comparing controlled variables, can we begin to understand how to make mediation more effective and how to use it in our arsenal of tools for preventing deadly conflict.... I sincerely hope that this volume will inspire future mediators in their search for peace and reconciliation.”—Cyrus R. Vance, from the foreword

Melanie Greenberg is an adjunct professor at Georgetown Law Center and a lecturer-at-law at Stanford Law School.

John Barton is George E. Osborne Professor of Law at the Stanford Law School and codirector of the Stanford Law and Technology Policy Center.

Margaret McGuinness is clerking for the Honorable Colleen McMahon, U. S. District Court Judge, Southern District, NY. She served in the United States Foreign Service from 1988 to 1996 and as a Special Assistant to Secretary of State Warren Christopher from 1993 to 1994.

94TH ANNUAL MEETING: INTERNATIONAL LAW IN FERMENT
April 5-8, 2000
Washington Monarch Hotel
2401 M Street, NW, Washington, DC

The current growth and visibility of international law is unprecedented in its history. Yet, no working consensus exists as to what form international law should take, how far it should reach, and where it is headed. Join more than 1200 practitioners, scholars, students and officials of international and non-governmental organizations at the ASIL's 94th Annual Meeting as they examine these questions and add to the ferment.
