INTERNATIONAL LABOR AND WORKING- CLASS HISTORY

Edited by Helmut Gruber (Polytechnic University of New York) and Ira Katznelson (New School for Social Research)

Labor and social historians from throughout the world present new scholarship on some of the most vital issues and controversies in their fields in International Labor and Working-Class History. Each issue brings readers current research, in-depth review essays, reports on international conferences, and book reviews.

"No other journal sets labor history so consistently in the wider context of historical study and debate. For this reason, and because of its firm commitment to an international and comparative perspective, ILWCH is probably the only labor history journal that historians who are not labor specialists will always look at. For labor historians everywhere it is indispensable." — E. J. Hobsbawm, Cambridge University

"ILWCH does more than any other journal I read to break down parochial divisions among scholars—and, best of all, does so in a gender conscious fashion. The emphasis on brief, pointed pieces and on continuing dialogue makes ILWCH one of the few journals I read as soon as it arrives." — Susan Porter Benson, University of Missouri, Columbia
