JOURNAL OF CHURCH AND STATE

Edited by James E. Wood, Jr.

Each issue of JCS includes:

- Six or more major articles
- A timely editorial
- Approximately thirty reviews of significant books related to church and state and related themes
- Notes on current U.S. and international developments
- Listing of recent doctoral dissertations in church and state
- When appropriate, texts of important court cases, government legislation, or ecclesiastical documents

Journal of Church and State, published quarterly, remains the only scholarly journal devoted exclusively to the concerns of church and state and religious liberty. Due to its interfaith, international, and interdisciplinary emphasis, JCS, now in its thirty-third year of publication, continues to appeal to a readership of widely diverse interests throughout the world.

"A learned and scholarly publication of unique value in the world of scholarship... without peer or competitor."

Edwin Scott Gaustad

"The Journal of Church and State constitutes abundant evidence of the high quality research and scholarship done at the nation's oldest and premier center for church-state studies . . . Baylor University."

Robert F. Drinan, S.J.

"Joseph Vining's voice is a strong and different one—one that has the power to break the dominant patterns of jurisprudence. . . ."

FROM NEWTON'S SLEEP

Joseph Vining

What does the presence of law say of the beliefs of individuals in a society—their actual beliefs—about language, themselves, the world around them?

In this strikingly original work, Joseph Vining invites us to reconsider law as a unique form of thought, inseparably connected to everything in the world that makes up human identity. His book consists of a collection of what Vining calls "amplifications" of the implied text of the law—impressions, commentaries, vignettes, poems, and dialogues—which illustrate aspects of conventional legal language and logic, and the subjects legal practice regularly deals with, including death and crime.

This is a unique book, filled with thoughtful ruminations—perfect for late-night browsing or perusing whenever time allows.

That Godless Court? Supreme Court Decisions on Church-State Relationships

Ronald B. Flowers Paper $15.99

The religion clause of the First Amendment, seemingly simple and clear, has been and continues to be controversial in its application. In this introduction to church-state questions, Ronald Flowers discusses the relationship between religion and government as reflected in the decisions of the Supreme Court. This book is at once an explanation of what the Court has done over the years in the highly volatile area of church-state decisions and a strong argument for the care and nurturing of religious freedom. It is an ideal primer for clergy and laypeople who need to know what the Supreme Court has and has not said about the relationship between church and state and what is and is not permissible. Specific topics covered in this book include government aid to church-related schools, prayer in public schools, church property, workplace issues, and taxation.

"Ronald Flowers . . . has done a masterful job and has constructed a valuable and accurate resource for all concerned about constitutional issues related to religion in the Bill of Rights."—Ronald W. Eades, Professor of Law, University of Louisville

Ronald B. Flowers is Professor of Religion and Chair of the Department of Religion at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth.

Eighth Annual Hamline University
Symposium on Law, Religion and Ethics

October 5 & 6, 1995

Hamline University

School of Law

Saint Paul, Minnesota

This Symposium is dedicated to bringing together lawyers and theologians to engage in dialogue spanning the traditions of law and religion, in an effort to shed light on law as an activity seeking justice, the vocational role of the lawyer in this task, and the relation of law and religion to each other in the context of contemporary experience.

The Symposium will provide perspectives on the issues to be discussed at the Fourth World Conference on Women: Action for Equality, Development and Peace (Beijing, September 4-15, 1995).

To receive further information on the Symposium, contact Jo Anne Matson, Symposium Registrar, at (612) 641-2082 or Hamline University School of Law, 1536 Hewitt Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55104.
