
Liberal America and the Third World

Political Development Ideas in Foreign Aid and Social Science

ROBERT A. PACKENHAM

Despite the differences in results of aid to Europe and the Third World, American conceptions of political development have remained largely constant. Robert A. Packenham accounts for how the objectives and theories of U.S. aid officials and social scientists have remained the same in spite of negative results and the seeming inappropriateness of their ideas in the Third World context. $12.00

Conflict and Political Change in Venezuela

DANIEL H. LEVINE

To explain the transformation of Venezuela into one of the few effective democracies in Latin America, Daniel H. Levine analyzes the development of modern mass-based political parties; the changing structure and content of social and political conflict; and the emergence of common norms for political behavior. $13.00

Princeton University Press
Princeton, New Jersey 08540

Law and Social Change in Zinacantan

Jane Fishburne Collier

The legal system of a Maya Indian community in southern Mexico is examined by focusing on the options open to persons involved in a quarrel. By examining the factors that influence a litigant's choice of procedure (hamlet settlements, informal town hall hearings, or formal court action), the author charts the relation between social change and legal change within the community. The study treats legal norms as a language for managing the social environment and asks how persons in different relationships phrase disputes in order to influence outcomes. Witchcraft beliefs and shamanistic practices are examined to show how legal concepts relate to ideas of cosmic order. Illustrated. $10.00

Stanford University Press

New Latin American Studies from Texas

Paraná

Social Boundaries in an Argentine City

By Ruben E. Reina

This study of Paraná examines the social structure of the city. The material presented here is a major step forward in the study of contemporary urbanization and forms a basis for future comparisons. The excellent photographs accompanying the text graphically portray the social boundaries of Paraná. Latin American Monographs, No. 31. 466 pp., 73 photographs, 21 drawings. $10.00 social and power organization of underdeveloped countries. It is the first major study of any Central American urban population. Combining the methods of sociology and social anthropology, it is based on extensive field work. Texas Pan American Series. 418 pp. $10.00

Men in a Developing Society

Geographic and Social Mobility
in Monterrey, Mexico

By Jorge Balán
Harley L. Browning
Elizabeth Jelin

The central objective of this study is to show, as concretely as possible, how men experience a period of rapid economic development, particularly in the areas of migration, occupational mobility, and status attainment. The study of men in Monterrey is perhaps the most thorough one yet conducted of geographic and social mobility in a Latin American city. Latin American Monographs, No. 30. 432 pp. $11.50

Exiles and Citizens

Spanish Republicans in Mexico

By Patricia W. Fagen

Exiles and Citizens is a study of Spanish political exiles in Mexico, especially those with intellectual and professional backgrounds and ambitions. It focuses on their adjustment to Mexico, on their continued ties to Spain, and on their impact on Mexican development. Latin American Monographs, No. 29. 272 pp. $8.00

Organizing Strangers

Poor Families in Guatemala City

By Bryan R. Roberts

Bryan Roberts' study of two poor neighborhoods in Guatemala City is an important contribution to the understanding of the urban

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS PRESS

Box 7819, Austin 78712

Lord and Peasant in Peru A Paradigm of Political and Social Change

F. LaMond Tullis

In his analysis of the violent and moderate grassroots movements that are changing the peasant way of life in Peru, Mr. Tullis emphasizes the role of individual communities in effecting land reform and relates emerging social forces to village and national political development. Center for International Affairs. $10.50

Political Mobilization of the Venezuelan Peasant

John Duncan Powell

In Venezuela, 1935 to 1958 marked the decline of traditional dictatorships and the emergence of stable democratic government. This pioneering study traces the formation of a successful alliance between the peasants and a small urban elite, provides an empirical structural-functional analysis of the alliance, and develops a provocative new view of peasant mobilization. Center for International Affairs. $8.50

The Politics of Land Reform in Chile, 1950-1970

Public Policy, Political Institutions, and Social Change

Robert Kaufman

In recent years, Chile has achieved a high level of social modernization and political development. Mr. Kaufman focuses on Chile's efforts to implement land reform legislation and maps the conflicts surrounding the issue, the involvement of differing social groupings, and the building of coalitions in support of change. $12.00

HARVARD

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS, 79 GARDEN STREET, CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS 02138

NEW FROM WISCONSIN

a HISTORY OF SPAIN AND PORTUGAL

Stanley G. Payne, University of Wisconsin

This will be, upon publication, the standard scholarly history of Spain and Portugal, suitable for courses in Spanish culture as well as straight history courses. Payne builds, upon a skeleton of fact, brilliant analysis and interpretation all along the way, incorporating much research of recent origin. Sixty-day examination copies are available. Include course title and expected enrollment. Two volumes, total 768 pages, illus.

April 1973

cloth $10.00 ea.

POLITICS AND PLANNERS ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IN CENTRAL AMERICA

Gary W. Wynia, University of Minnesota

In this original work, the author explains the frequent failures of a new generation of economic planners in five Central American nations. Closely evaluated are the roles of both regional organization and foreign aid in helping—or hindering—national development programs. Wynia's book is the first to explore fully this basic conflict between political self-interest and successful economic planning.

240 pages

November 1972

cloth $15.00

DISEASE AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

THE IMPACT OF PARASITIC DISEASES IN ST. LUCIA

Burton A. Weisbrod, Ralph L. Andreano, Robert E. Baldwin, and Allen Kelly, University of Wisconsin; and Erwin H. Epstein, Kearney State College; with the assistance of Thomas W. Helminiak

Although low income and high prevalence of disease are strongly and positively correlated, within both advanced and lesser-developed nations, the economic consequences of disease are still not well understood. This case study, the most comprehensive empirical examination of its kind ever made, adds much to our understanding of the specific topic while presenting a model methodological framework that can be used in studying other regions.

224 pages, 8 illus.

June 1973

cloth $12.50

Wisconsin residents add 4% sales tax

The
University of Wisconsin Press
Box 1379, Madison, Wisconsin 53701

NEW FROM YALE

Flood Tide of Empire

Spain and the Pacific Northwest, 1543–1819

by Warren L. Cook

From the 16th to the 18th centuries Spain explored, and tried to claim, most of the Pacific coast of the New World from Tierra del Fuego to Alaska. The outcome of these efforts were decided not through confrontations at Nootka Sound but through politics and the press in England, debate in the French National Assembly, and intrigues at the court of Spain. Professor Cook paints a detailed and colorful picture of the history of the Northwest, based on much new information from archives in Madrid, Mexico City, and Santa Fe. It is a tale of diplomatic power plays, backstairs palace intrigue, and espionage in high places, culminating in repeated Spanish attempts to capture Lewis and Clarke. A History Book Club Selection $17.50

Crab Antics

Social Anthropology of English-Speaking Negro Societies of the Caribbean

by Peter J. Wilson

"You have a barrel of crab and they start to climb. The one that climbs the highest, all the others are pulling him back. If he ever reached the top, he'd have to be a big strong crab." On Providencia, a tiny island in the southwest Caribbean, the metaphor of "crab antics" is commonly used to illustrate the dynamics of social life. For Peter Wilson, who spent over a year on the island, crab antics became a key image in his attempt to identify and analyze the standards by which people judge each-other's worth, and to explain how values of social differentiation provide a basis for social order. His findings and insights are presented in this vivid and readable study filled with the lives and language of the Providencians. $10.00

Two Brazilian Capitals

Architecture and Urbanism in Rio de Janeiro and Brasilia

by Norma Evenson

Combining a sympathetic understanding of man's habits and needs as a city user, a year of research in Brazil, and her skills as an architectural historian, Norma Evenson here examines Brazilian urban design and architecture in terms of the modern development of the old capital, Rio de Janeiro, and the new capital, Brasilia. In her analysis of Rio and Brasilia as both functioning cities and symbolic capitals, she illuminates the problems and processes—political, economic, and social—of urbanization in a developing country. Over 200 plans and photographs, many never before published, enhance the text. $19.50

Yale University Press New Haven and London

in Canada: McGill-Queen's University Press

New

Brasilia: Plan and Reality

A Study of Planned and Spontaneous Urban Settlement

David G. Epstein

Touted as a completely "planned" modern capital when built, Brasilia was composed largely of squatter communities living in shacks ten years later. Epstein examines the many-sided development of the city from its planning and building through the growth of various patronage networks and "personalist" career patterns in politics.

LC: 72-186103 256 pages $10.00

The Destruction of Brazilian Slavery, 1850–1888

Robert Conrad

In this exceptionally well-written book, Mr. Conrad shows with impressive detail how Brazilian slavery was abolished. Analyzing the economic basis of slavery and the internal slave trade, he rejects the theory that, as a group, the wealthy coffee planters of São Paulo were in the vanguard of abolitionism. Much attention is devoted to the attitudes and motivations of both slaveholders and abolitionists.

LC: 74-174457 368 pages $14.00

Spanish Central America

A Socioeconomic History, 1520–1720

Murdo J. MacLeod

MacLeod examines the first great economic, demographic, and social cycle in Central America—a period largely neglected in the study of Latin America. Spanish conquerors found large Indian populations and plentiful raw materials, and in the first half century they systematically exploited these assets. The resulting depression and retreat to subsistence farming led to the hacienda system.

LC: 70-174456 608 pages $17.50

Colonial Roots of Modern Brazil

Papers of the Newberry Library Conference

Edited by Dauril Alden

This volume is made up of essays developed from papers presented at The Newberry Library Conference in 1969. Excepting the historiographical survey by Charles R. Boxer, the essays were prepared by young historians on topics related to the colonial antecedents of present-day Brazil.

LC: 78-174458 320 pages $12.50

from California

University of California Press • Berkeley 94720

CLAIMS

Claims for missing numbers should be made within 90 days following the regular month of publication. The Latin American Research Review will supply missing copies free only when losses have been sustained in transit. Claims cannot be honored beyond one year from date of publication of the issue.

MOVING?

Each February, June, and October some copies of LARR are returned to the office because subscribers did not provide for the forwarding of third class mail. The cost to the Latin American Research Review of each such return and the additional expense for forwarding now runs close to $1.00. Therefore, beginning with Volume VII:1 (February 1972), any copy of LARR returned to us because of an undeclared change of address will not be sent out again from our office unless the addressee sends $1.00 to cover the cost of handling. In order to avoid the charge, please notify us immediately of your change of address when you move.

Appearing in the next issue of the
LATIN AMERICAN RESEARCH REVIEW

FALL, 1973

VOLUME VIII, NO. 3

Abraham F. Lowenthal

"United States Policy Toward Latin America: 'Liberal,'
'Radical,' and 'Bureaucratic' Perspectives"

Eric Gordon, Michael Hall, Hobart A. Spalding, Jr.

"A Survey of Brazilian and Argentine Materials at the Internationaal Instituut voor Sociale Geschiedenis in Amsterdam"

Current Research Inventory for 1973.