

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAEL GEERKEN is a research associate and graduate student of Sociology at Vanderbilt University. He is currently working on a national survey of sex and marital roles funded by the National Science Foundation. He received his M.A. degree in Sociology at Vanderbilt in 1974 and is working on his Ph.D. His major field of interest is the sociology of deviance, with special interests in mental illness and criminology.

WALTER GOVE is an Associate Professor of Sociology at Vanderbilt University. He is presently engaged in research on sex roles and mental illness, funded by the National Science Foundation, and on population density and social pathology, funded by the National Institute for Child and Mental Health Development. He is currently working with Michael Geerken.

MILTON HEUMANN, Instructor of Political Science at the University of Michigan, is completing his Ph.D. in political science from Yale University. His major interests are legal process, the administration of criminal justice, and civil liberties and civil rights. He has written a paper for the 1974 American Political Science Association convention entitled, "Plea Bargaining Systems and Plea Bargaining Styles: Alternate Patterns of Case Resolution in Criminal Courts." Current research interests include policy evaluation of reforms in the criminal justice system.

PHILIP R. LOCHNER, JR. received his B.A. from Yale College in 1960 and his LL.B. from Yale Law School in 1964. He was a Fulbright Scholar at the University of London in 1967-68. He received his Ph.D. in Political Science from Stanford University in 1971. From 1971-73 he was Assistant Professor of Law at the State University of New York at Buffalo (and Assistant Dean 1971-72). Since 1973 he has been in private law practice in New York City.

LEON MAYHEW, a former Russell Sage Intern in Law and Society, is Professor of Sociology and Chairman of that Department at the University of California, Davis. The author of Law and Equal Opportunity: A Study of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (Harvard, 1968) and other studies in sociology of law, he has essayed in several papers to apply the paradigm of institutionalization to problems in the sociology of law. He is the Editor of The American Sociologist.

JOSÉ JUAN TOHARIA received his doctorate in law from the University of Madrid in 1971 and his doctorate in sociology from Yale in 1975. He is Professor Agravado in the Department of Sociology of the Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, where he teaches Sociology of Law and Sociological Theory. He has published two books, Cambio social y vida jurídica en España and El juez español: Un análisis Sociológico, and is presently preparing the report on Spain for the six nation Stanford-based project, Studies in Law and Development.