

The North American Conference on British Studies

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published by the University of Chicago Press under the auspices of the North American Conference on British Studies (NACBS). It was the result of the imaginative generosity of a Trinity College alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957), who contributed funds to the college for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history.

The North American Conference on British Studies is a scholarly society affiliated with the American Historical Association and open to anyone in the United States and Canada interested in British civilization in its several aspects: historical, archaeological, literary, artistic, political, and sociological. Its North American constituency comprises about eight hundred members drawn from the fifty states and ten provinces. Affiliated with the parent organization are seven regional conferences (New England, Middle Atlantic, South, Midwest, Western, Pacific Coast, and Northwest) each having its own offices and programs and with a combined membership of more than two thousand. The Conference convenes at least once a year in the autumn, usually in joint session with one of its regional affiliates. It seeks to encourage the serious study of British history, literature, and politics, as well as allied subjects, and among the general reading public through meetings, book prizes, and association with likeminded organizations in North America and Britain and through its publication program.

The Conference sponsors a wide variety of publications. Another journal, Albion, issued four times a year at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina, and sent to all members of the parent organization, includes articles, proceedings of all meetings, and book reviews. The Conference's newsletter, the British Studies Intelligencer also sent to members, is published at the University of Arizona and contains notices of meetings devoted to British studies, news of appointments, moves, and retirements, and notes on current publications and research in progress. Other publications appear periodically and will be noted at such times.

Information about membership in the NACBS can be found on the copyright page of this journal.

Samuel Johnson

Literature, Religion and English Cultural Politics from the Restoration to Romanticism

J. C. D. Clark

This analysis reconstructs Johnson's commitments and conflicts in religion and politics, depicting his role in the literary dynamics of his age against a new context for English cultural politics. It presents a strikingly different writer from the apolitical, pragmatic and eccentric figure of English literature.

Labour Women

Women in British Working Class Politics, 1918–1939

Pamela M. Graves

"...fascinating and timely study... Graves has made effective use of interviews with fifty female and fifty male Labour supporters... Labour Women offers an invaluable close study of the issues and debates in the Labour Women's Organization... [T]his book has important implications for both the feminist movement and the Labour movement. Graves analyzes very effectively the split between middle-class feminism and working-class Labour women between the wars."

The Fictions of James Joyce and Wyndham Lewis

Monsters of Nature and Design

Scott W. Klein

The literary relationship of James Joyce and Wyndham Lewis has been described in merely biographical terms; but here Scott W. Klein reveals hitherto unperceived textual affiliations between the two authors. The seeing eye and the world, the creating mind and fiction, and the processes of history appear in the work of both Joyce and Lewis as related thematic structures of opposition, reconciliation, and dialectic.

Politics and Opinion in Crisis, 1678–1681

Mark Knights

The aftermath of the Popish Plot and the subsequent succession crisis of the years 1678 to 1681 are the context for this new study. The author argues that the unrest was not simply due to a centrally organized party machine based around the single issue of exclusion; but was a broad-based controversy about the succession, fears of popery and arbitrary government which produced ideological polarization and political sophistication.

Measuring the Mind

Education and Psychology in England, c. 1860–c. 1990

Adrian Wooldridge

The central claim of Measuring the Mind is that, contrary to popular opinion, the psychologists who dominated educational policy-making between the wars were educational progressives and political radicals. Four main themes dominate the discussion: the emergence of educational psychology as a distinct discipline; the recent history of ideas about children's mental developments; the role of experts in formulating educational policy; and the rise and fall of the measurement of merit.

PENGUIN IS PROUD TO ANNOUNCE THE PUBLICATION OF NEW PENGUIN CLASSICS EDITIONS USING THE DEFINITIVE CAMBRIDGE TEXTS OF D. H. LAWRENCE'S WORKS, the authoritative, "eye-opening" editions that capture for the first time the full scope of Lawrence's creative genius. Drawing on Lawrence's original manuscripts and his corrections to various printed versions, these volumes restore words, sentences, and whole passages absent from previous editions—many of them cut by censors incensed by Lawrence's sexual candor. New introductions and notes, including a Chronology of Lawrence's life and work, suggested further readings, a Glossary of dialect forms, and Maps make these new Penguin Classics the most teachable editions.

Annabel Patterson

In the first major study of this sixteenth-century masterpiece, Annabel Patterson insists that Holinshed's Chronicles be read in their own right as an important and inventive cultural history.

"Remarkably impressive. Seldom have I had the opportunity to read a work I found so wholly absorbing, clear in argument, revisionist in a convincing way, controversial and yet solid."—David Bevington, University of Chicago

"This is an extremely interesting and important study, which will be eagerly read by students of both history and literature. Patterson shows that the Chronicles are a goldmine of information that confronts some of the central issues debated by present-day scholars."—David Underdown, Yale University

THE JOURNAL OF BUSINESS

Since its inception in 1928, The Journal of Business has published research, analysis, and inquiry into the issues of both theoretical and practical importance to the business community. The Journal of Business differs from other specialized journals in that it publishes articles of interest not just to specialists within particular disciplines but also to scholars and researchers in other fields as well. And unlike more general business magazines, JB only includes papers that would make an original and substantive contribution to the current body of knowledge. The journal has consistently provided a forum for opposing viewpoints, interpretations, and methodologies.

The Journal of Business offers you in-depth examinations of significant problems facing the business community, keeps you up to date on major research activity, briefs you on new publications, and much more. It is a valuable research tool to scholars, business professionals, and students alike.

Lawrence Durrell

Comprehending the Whole

EDITED BY JULIUS ROWAN RAPER,
MELODY L. ENSCORE, AND PAIGE MATTHEY BYNUM

Lawrence Durrell excelled in a great range of genres: poetry, drama, travel books, humorous writings, translations, critical essays, philosophical essays, character sketches, and, above all, genre- and culture-transforming experimental novels. While other works have focused on a part of Durrell's oeuvre, these previously uncollected essays illuminate four major dimensions of his writing: the Quartet works, the Quartet itself, the humor and poetry, and the challenging experiments of the post-Quartet works, The Revolt of Aphrodite and The Avignon Quintet. 224 pages, $39.95

Paths Not Taken

British Labour and International Policy in the 1920s

Henry R. Winkler

"A book long awaited by students of the Labour Party, and Henry Winkler's effort has proved well worth the wait."

—John F. Naylor, State University of New York at Buffalo

"The first full-scale study to explore in depth the evolution of Labour Party opinion on foreign affairs in the 1920s. No other work provides such a richly documented and insightful analysis of the way viewpoints were reformulated in response to political events." —F. M. Leventhal, Boston University

256 PP., $39.95 CLOTH

Burdens of History

British Feminists, Indian Women, and Imperial Culture, 1865–1915

Antoinette Burton

"A major reinterpretation of how nineteenth-century British feminists constructed Indian women as the white woman's burden to justify their claim to suffrage. Eliding the British nation and its empire, British women activists preached sisterhood but treated Indian women as a subordinate cultural Other with profound implications for contemporary feminisms."

—Barbara N. Ramusack, University of Cincinnati
