The Journal of Asian Studies (ISSN 0021-9118), known until September 1956 as the Far Eastern Quarterly, is published by the Association for Asian Studies (formerly The Far Eastern Association) in February, May, August, and November. The annual institutional subscription rate for the Journal (including the Bibliography of Asian Studies) is $80, postage included. Single issues of the Journal and Bibliography published after February 1966 are available through the Secretariat of the Association. Issues published prior to 1966 may be purchased from A.M.S. Reprints, 56 E. 13th Street, New York, NY 10003.

Membership in the Association for Asian Studies, a scholarly, nonpolitical, and nonprofit organization, is open to all persons interested in Asia and the scholarly study of Asia. Annual membership dues are $35 for Regular members, $15 for Retired members, and $15 for Student members. Student membership is restricted to full-time students for a maximum of five years. Regular, Retired, and Student members receive The Journal of Asian Studies and the Asian Studies Newsletter.

All correspondence regarding membership, subscriptions, advertising, reprints, or business should be addressed to the Secretary-Treasurer or Administrative Officer, Association for Asian Studies, Inc., Room 1, Lane Hall, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48109.

The editor welcomes preliminary inquiries about manuscripts for possible publication in The Journal of Asian Studies. Completed manuscripts should be sent to the editor, Thomas R. H. Havens, JAS, Connecticut College, New London, CT 06320. Please submit four copies. Everything should be double-spaced, including extracts, notes, and references. Because manuscripts cannot be returned, please do not send the original. Consult recent issues of the Journal as a guide to the format for source citations, notes, and references. Footnotes should be limited, typed separately at the end of the text, and follow the style recommended in sections 15.4 through 15.35 of The Chicago Manual of Style, 13th ed. (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 1982). All manuscripts submitted to the JAS are expected not to have been published elsewhere and not to be under review for possible publication elsewhere. Manuscripts, including notes, should not be more than 40 pages in length.

The Journal's production arrangements with the University of California Press make it possible to illustrate articles with tables, figures, and black-and-white photographs more easily than in the past. Authors in all fields are encouraged to submit illustrations along with their manuscripts. (Photos of record or photocopies are acceptable for first review and should accompany the manuscript at original submission.) Authors who wish to illustrate their articles with photographs must provide black-and-white glossy prints of good quality, focus, contrast, and surface condition at the time of delivery of their manuscripts for copyediting. Final acceptance of illustrated manuscripts will be conditional on receiving good-quality photographs for reproduction. Please provide a separate typewritten, double-spaced list of captions and legends for all illustrations, keyed by number to each figure or photograph, including all necessary credit and permission lines. Authors are responsible for securing and paying for permission to use illustrative material. Do not write anything on the back of photographs; do not paste photographs to sheets of paper. Identify each photo by typing the first words of its caption on a stick-on label, then affix the label gently but firmly to the back of the photo. Photographs will be returned after publication.

Books for review and correspondence concerning reviews should be sent to the appropriate editor. Books on Asia General should be sent to the office of the editor. Books on China and Inner Asia should be sent to Dr. Joanna F. Handlin Smith, Fairbank Center for East Asian Research, 1737 Cambridge Street, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA 02138; books on Japan should be sent to Professor Andrew Gordon, Asian/Pacific Studies Institute, 2111 Campus Drive, Duke University, Durham, NC 27706; books on Korea should be sent to Dr. Laurel Kendall, Department of Anthropology, American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West at 79th Street, New York, NY 10024; books on South Asia should be sent to Dr. Paul Greenough, Center for International and Comparative Studies, IC 226, University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242; books on Southeast Asia should be sent to Professor Robert W. Hefner, Department of Anthropology, Boston University, Boston, MA 02215.

Second class postage paid at Ann Arbor, Michigan and at additional second class entry. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to The Association for Asian Studies, 1 Lane Hall, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48109.

Articles in The Journal of Asian Studies represent neither the views of the Association for Asian Studies nor those of the JAS editors. The editor is responsible for the final selection of the content of the Journal and reserves the right to reject any material deemed inappropriate for publication. Responsibility for opinions expressed and for the accuracy of facts published in articles rests solely with the individual authors.

Requests for permission to reprint should be directed to the Association for Asian Studies, 1 Lane Hall, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48109. The Journal is indexed in the Social Sciences & Humanities Index and Book Review Index and abstracted in Historical Abstracts and America: History and Life. It is also available on film through University Microfilms, Ann Arbor, MI 48109.

In This Issue

Underlying ROBERT J. SMITH's presidential address is his recognition that Ruth Benedict's overemphasis on culture as an explanatory variable has produced a reaction denying the relevance of culture to the political economy of Japan. In recent years the concept has been dismissed in favor of institutions and history. Smith notes that there is ample evidence to sustain the argument that cultural factors have long played an important role in Japan's development and continue to today.

Smith's argument is supported by PATRICIA G. STEINHOFF, who looks at the inner workings of Sekigunha (Red Army), a Japanese radical student group of the late 1960s, to see if its social organization was as revolutionary as its ideology. She finds that as Sekigunha went underground to avoid the police, it developed a characteristically Japanese managerial style. This case study of a small social movement offers new perspectives on Japanese culture and the process of reproducing culture in any society.

HY VAN LUONG attempts to assess the impact of socialism on kinship systems, gender relations, and household formation in northern Vietnam. He proposes that two potentially opposing models (one male-oriented and the other non-male-oriented) constitute the structural parameters of Vietnamese kinship system and of the household formations and gender relations embedded in it. Changes in ideology and the relations of production have not altered these parameters; instead, their relative strength has been shifted, with the non-male-oriented model becoming dominant.

In the first of three articles on India, RICHARD W. LARIVIERE looks at the way the arrival of the British stultified the traditional Indian legal system. Misunderstanding the nature of dharmasāstra texts, British courts relied on traditional paṇḍitas to interpret them, until it was discovered in 1864 that the paṇḍitas were "manipulating" the texts. Nevertheless, these texts are still cited and interpreted today to support preconceived conclusions required by judicial precedent.

In her examination of the Rajasthani oral version of the tale of Gopi Chand—a king previously born a yogi and destined to return to that detached condition—ANN GRODZINS GOLD offers fresh, folk perspectives on the classical indological problem of renunciation as a cultural ideal. In the story's semiotic construction she finds contrasting, external signs of royal and yogic identity that embody the king's inner confusion. The tale becomes meaningful for local and distant audiences as the reluctant renouncer's emotional experiences in parting from loved ones evoke an awareness of shared human mortality.

AKHIL GUPTA reviews five major books published on the Indian political economy during the past decade, critically evaluating their insights in four areas: theories of the state; the relation between state, regime, and party; policy formulation; and the implementation of state policies. He concludes that the scholars should pay greater attention to questions of gender, the subaltern, political discourse, and the lower levels of the political system.

Editor's Note

It is a pleasure to welcome David D. Buck as the next editor of JAS, for a three-year term beginning January 1, 1990. Professor Buck's impressive record of scholarly activity and editorial experience assures the membership of the AAS and the wider world of scholarship that the Journal will be in excellent hands. He and his fellow editors welcome inquiries and comments from readers about any aspect of the Journal. Professor Buck may be reached at the Department of History, University of Wisconsin–Milwaukee, P.O. Box 413, Milwaukee, WI 53201.

Nearly two thousand scholars throughout the profession, both in and out of the academy, have contributed their time and expertise as authors, reviewers, referees, and editors to produce the Journal during the past three years. I am grateful to each of them, as I am to the officers, directors, and staff of the AAS, for cheerful support along the way. The editors have been fortunate to work closely with the skilled production staff of the University of California Press, including Proofreader Bonnie Dehler and especially Manuscript Editor Betsey Scheiner. Above all, I have been privileged to serve with the dozen exceptional colleagues who constituted the JAS editorial board during the last three years. The vigor of the leadership they have provided, the range and depth of the book reviews they have received, and the crisp insights of the articles we have published augur well for the future of Asian studies both in North America and around the world.
