EUROPEAN CONSENSUS DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE ON NEONATAL HEARING SCREENING

MILAN, 15th and 16th MAY 1998

Large neonatal hearing screening programmes have started in several European countries over the last two to three years. Major programmes are currently being financed in the USA, mainly as a result of the NIH Consensus Conference on Early Identification of Hearing Impairment in Infants and Young Children (March 1993). A number of National, European and International projects are currently focused on the practical implementation of such programmes, but many who work in clinics may not be fully aware of the results achievable in this rapidly growing area. As regional and national screening programmes are launched, substantial investment of resources will be entrained. The European Project AHEAD from the Biomedical and Health Programme of the European Commission (1996–1999) is showing that there is an urgent need to evaluate effectiveness and to establish standards of best practice. The conference is an ideal forum for discussion of this important issue. It will consist of presentations of evidence by specialists in various fields to a panel of leading experts in an open forum. Specialists in related fields, including neonatology, paediatrics, audiology, otolaryngology, communication disorders, speech-language pathology, epidemiology and health-care administration, will review the most up-to-date evidence in their own field. The panel of experts will weight the evidence and produce a consensus statement at the end of the meeting, which will also be disseminated widely amongst clinicians and health-care administrators. Ample time will be devoted to discussion. Full deliberations of the panel will be published at a later date.

All those interested in attending this unique event are cordially invited to send a preliminary request for information to:
