

Sport and Politics in Canada

Federal Government Involvement since 1961

Donald Macintosh

with Tom Bedeck and C.E.S. Franks

As a result of growing emphasis on the development of elite athletes, success in sport is now measured in terms of objective performance; the traditional values of versatility, challenge, and self-realization have been pushed to the background. Macintosh and his collaborators chart the course of this change, and assess the role of the federal government in its development.
