BEHIND THE JESTER'S MASK CANADIAN EDITORIAL CARTOONS ABOUT DOMINANT AND MINORITY GROUPS

Raymond N. Morris

Morris examines the form and content of Canadian editorial cartoons of the 1960s and '70s that concerned relations between French and English Canada and between Canada and the us. He argues that since the advent of the monopoly press and the professional, politically neutral artist, cartooning has subtly changed from low satire of the paper's political opponents to medium satire directed against the party in power. $35.00

NEGOTIATING CONTROL

A STUDY OF NEWS SOURCES

Richard V. Ericson, Patricia M. Baranek, and Janet B.L. Chan

In Visualizing Deviance: A Study of News Organizations, the previous work by these authors, Ericson, Baranek, and Chan concluded that news is primarily a communication between journalists and their regular sources, with other news consumers being relegated to the status of spectator. Moving forward from this conclusion, their new work explores the role of sources involved in law and criminal justice, and in private corporations and citizens' interest groups. DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT IN CANADA

FIFTH EDITION

R. MacGregor Dawson and W.F. Dawson

Revised by Norman Ward

Since publication of the first edition forty years ago, this concise survey of the way in which Canada is governed has become a classic introduction to the fundamental ideas and structure of government and the practice of democracy. In this revision Norman Ward has brought the text up to date and incorporated the many changes in government since the last edition was published in 1971. $9.95

TRUTH, HOPE, AND POWER

THE THOUGHT OF KARL POPPER

Douglas E. Williams

In this sympathetic study Williams presents a coherent and systematic account of Popper's thought, by emphasizing the historical and contextual factors that have been decisive in the structure and development of his ideas, and by allowing Popper's own formulations to take precedence over those of his critics and followers. $35.00

ACTING AND THINKING

THE POLITICAL THOUGHT OF HANNAH ARENDT

Leah Bradshaw

Arendt is best known for her writings on revolution, violence, totalitarianism, and other political phenomena of our time. Leah Bradshaw's illuminating study of Arendt's work focuses on the integral worth of freedom through an analysis of the relationship between the thinking and acting being. $30.00

POLICY AND RATIONALITY

THE REGULATION OF CANADIAN TRUCKING

Harold Kaplan

Vocal criticism has come from some quarters in recent years over government's failures in regulating Canadian transportation. Harold Kaplan assesses that criticism and considers the factors that create the gap between expectations and reality in governmental solutions. $37.50

THE SOCIAL CREDIT PHENOMENON

Alvin Finkel

Finkel charts the metamorphosis of the Social Credit Party of Alberta from a movement-based reformist organization to a cliquish, religious-oriented outfit whose main purpose was to hold the levers of power. Cloth $35.00, paper $15.95
