

Addendum

G. C. Harcourt

The editors have kindly allowed me to apologise in this addendum for the lack of good manners and proper scholarship in my article ‘The systemic downside of flexible labour market regimes: Salter revisited’ (ELRR, 23, June 2012, pp. 117–122). I should have acknowledged the great input by Tony Cockerill into the project which we started together some years ago in Cambridge. I should also have thanked Trevor Stegman for his wise comments on the proposed project.
