PALEONTOLOGY

FROM CHICAGO

A Natural History of the New World

The Ecology and Evolution of Plants in the Americas

Alan Graham

“A fascinating, comprehensive, and very readable account of past and present lands and life in the New World. Alan Graham has given us a book full of tales of the wonder, grandeur, and heroism of the New World. It is full of information about geology, biology, and the history of the people who explored and discovered aspects of the ecology and the evolution of New World vegetation.”—David Dilcher, Indiana University

PAPER $40.00

The Second Jurassic Dinosaur Rush

Museums and Paleontology in America at the Turn of the Twentieth Century

Paul D. Brinkman

“Based on thorough archival research, this is a fascinating story of ambitious administrators and scientists, their moneyed patrons, and the often invisible technicians and fieldworkers on whom the whole project depended.”—Martin Rudwick, author of Worlds Before Adam

The Ecology of Place

Contributions of Place-Based Research to Ecological Understanding

Edited by Ian Billick and Mary V. Price

“The Ecology of Place brings together top names from the fields of ecology and evolutionary biology to offer a novel collection that considers how place-based research in ecology contributes to basic scientific understanding. The range of essays, as well as their quality, is noteworthy, and the subjects they cover are timely and important.”—Paul R. Ehrlich, Stanford University

The Journal of Paleontology publishes manuscripts on all aspects of paleontology, including systematics, phylogeny, paleoecology, paleobiogeography, biostratigraphy, taphonomy, and evolution. It emphasizes specimen-based research and features illustrations of the highest quality possible. Manuscripts treating all fossil organism groups are welcome, including invertebrates, vertebrates, plants, algae, and microorganisms of all sorts, as well as ichnofossils (trace fossils).

The Journal of Paleontology accepts only online manuscript submissions through the website:

<http://journalofpaleontology.alltrack.net/>

Author guidelines can be downloaded at:
