The Sufi Orders in Islam

J. Spencer Trimingham

Islamic mysticism has been the subject of many studies, but the orders through which the organizational aspect of the Sufi spirit was expressed have been neglected. The author claims that a misleading impression is conveyed if too much reliance is placed upon the writings of Sufi poets and theosophists. His book is the first attempt this century to study the orders within the context of Islamic society. £3·25

Islamic Rationalism

The Ethics of 'Abd al-Jabbār

George F. Hourani

'Abd al-Jabbār was a Persian Muslim of the tenth and eleventh centuries A.D., who wrote in its most developed form the rationalistic theology of the Mu'tazilite school. His works contain a rationalistic theory of ethics that resembles modern British intuitionism; Professor Hourani has reconstructed the theory from various passages in the text, giving frequent passages in translation. £2

Precept and Practice

Traditional Buddhism in the Rural Highlands of Ceylon

Richard F. Gombrich

The author suggests that early writers misunderstood the behavioural implications of Buddhist canonical doctrine, whereas, at the other extreme, anthropologists who wish to explain religious behaviour ignore textual tradition at their peril. He concludes that in central Ceylon Buddhist theory has changed little, and that both the changes and certain gaps between theory and practice can be explained as unintended consequences of Buddhism's original doctrines. £4

Catalogue of the Ancient Persian Bronzes in the Ashmolean Museum

P. R. S. Moorey

The Ashmolean Museum has a very representative collection of over five hundred bronze objects from western Persia, virtually all pre-Achaemenid in date. This catalogue presents a complete illustrated inventory of the collection which is particularly rich in 'Luristan Bronzes'. The volume provides a wide-ranging and up-to-date review of all available evidence for the history of pre-Achaemenid metalwork in western Persia. 85 plates 2 maps 37 text figures £13

In Search of Omar Khayyam

ALI DASHTI

A Persian scholar presents a reconstruction of the character of Omar Khayyam compiled from contemporary or near contemporary sources. He then uses it to establish not only the authenticity of quatrains in the Rubaiyat but also to arrive at the nature of the poet's religious and philosophical beliefs. A hundred quatrains are here presented in a new translation. Translated from the Persian with introduction, Notes and a new rendering of quatrains by L. P. ELWELL-SUTTON

The Philosophical Traditions of India

P. T. RAJU

A comprehensive and readable introduction to all the main schools of Indian Philosophy. Dr. Raju gives due weight to logic and metaphysics. He refrains, however, from the temptation of indiscriminately reading Western doctrines into Oriental wisdom but draws astute comparisons with Western philosophy where justified. £3·95

OLAF GRAF

Tao und Jen

Sein und Sollen im sungchinesischen Monismus

1970. XII, 429 Seiten, ISBN 3 447 00020 1, broschiert DM 70, —

The present research analyses the Neoconfucian Hsingli-hsueh, well known all over the Far East as compendium and summary of the Sung-chinese philosophy by interpreting the KIN SE LU (CHIN SSU LU)—Compilation of TSCHU HI (CHU HSI), China's greatest thinker. In systematically confronting with the periods of Western philosophy the author tries to bring to light what is of everlasting value in that Sung-thinking and to claim in such way for it the well-deserved place in a Philosophia perennis of mankind, undoubtedly for the first time in such a copious thoroughness. The discussion of the fundamental doctrines of natural as well as metaphysical philosophy of this Sung-ethics urged for the author the attempt to catch up again the age old problem how near or still far for the Eastern mind drew the Absolute, called the TAO (universal cause and universal norm), to our Western idea of God conceived as a theistic-personal notion. Above all hence are resulting—despite of the monistic position of the East—surprising convergences to the ethics of mediaeval Latin scholasticism. First of all it is the doctrine of JEN as original as profound which should ensure to that Eastern morality its place permanent in the universal history of philosophy.

The Taiping Rebellion and the Western Powers

A Comprehensive Survey

S. Y. Teng

The Taiping Rebellion (1850–64) cost the lives of millions of Chinese, severely weakened the dying Manchu dynasty, and opened the country to increasing Western influence. The author of this study devotes his attention to complex historical problems including the extent of missionary influence and the importance of the role of General Gordon and other Western personalities. 5 maps £5·50

Ballad of the Hidden Dragon

(Liu Chih-yüan chu-kung-tiao)

Translated by M. Doleželová-Velingerová, assisted by

J. I. Crump

This is one of the only two complete examples of a form of the medieval Chinese ballad-singer's art called 'chu-kung-tiao'. In these ballads, often of epic length, prose narrative alternated with verse, and different musical modes (kung-tiao) were used in the groups or suites of tunes to which the verse parts were sung. £3·50 The Oxford Library of East Asian Literatures

Essays on Gandhian Politics

The Rowlatt Satyagraha of 1919

Edited by R. Kumar

Opposition to the Rowlatt Act of 1919 marked an important stage in the growth of Indian nationalism, transformed Gandhi into the dominant national figure, and ushered in the era of mass politics in the country. These essays explore the climate and structure of politics in India in 1919. They illumine both the great political agitations launched by Gandhi and the nature of political society in India. 8 maps 1 text-figure £3·25

the festivals of NEPAL

MARY M.
ANDERSON

Every day in the Kingdom of Nepal there seems to be a festival. They mark the changing of seasons, strengthen the ties of caste, of family, of religion and reflect completely the Nepalese way of life. Now they are more and more in danger of becoming 'tourist attractions' but Mary Anderson, before it is too late, has recorded a delightful calendar of the most important ones in Kathmandu Valley, explaining their mythological, religious and historical backgrounds and retelling their legends and folktales.
