New Revels Plays paperbacks

Sir Thomas More

by Anthony Munday and others

VITTORIO GABRIELLI and GIORGIO MELCHIORI eds

A modern-spelling critical edition of this controversial play, showing that, far from being unfinished and chaotic, it is a well-constructed and stage-worthy play.

INDIAN THEATRE

TRADITIONS OF PERFORMANCE

Farley P. Richmond, Darius L. Swann, and Phillip B. Zarrilli, editors

Indian Theatre expands the boundaries of what is usually regarded as theatre in order to explore the multiple dimensions of theatrical performance in India: from rural festivals to contemporary urban theatre, from dramatic rituals and devotional performances to dance-dramas and classical Sanskrit plays. "...synthesizing a wealth of historical, literary, and ethnographic material ... [and] by placing their findings within contemporary conceptual frameworks, the editors and their collaborators bring into focus what is fundamental about this most varied of the world's theatrical cultures." - James R. Brandon

THE THEATER OF THE MAHABHARATA

TERUKKUTTU PERFORMANCES IN SOUTH INDIA

Richard Armando Frasca

With performative roots stretching back two millennia, to the earliest levels of developed Tamil culture, the terukkuttu - the rich, powerful ritual theatre tradition of Tamilnadu, the Tamil-speaking area of south India - is an important mode of mythic re-enactment, particularly in connection with the most vital Tamil version of the Mahabharata epic. By examining its historical background, literary corpus, performing techniques, and ritual contexts, Richard Frasca shows that is a theatre form that transmutes textual narrative into sacred time and space, ritually restoring and renewing the villages and festivals that sponsor its performances. This first major study of the genre is pioneering in its approach; it casts new light on the relationship between theatre and ritual and the role of performance in society.

Inside The Royal Court Theatre, 1956-1981

Artists Talk

Edited by Gresdna A. Doty and Billy J. Harbin

From the moment in 1956 when it chose to produce the work of an unknown young writer speaking for a frustrated postwar generation, the English Stage Company (ESC) at the Royal Court Theatre has been a major influence on theatre all over the world.

On the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ESC's founding, Gresdna A. Doty and Billy J. Harbin organized a celebratory conference in Baton Rouge, Louisiana which was attended by such notable delegates as William Gaskill, Caryl Churchill, Martin Esslin, David Hare, Christopher Hampton, Ann Jellicoe, Nicholas Wright and Max Stafford-Clark. The editors' skillful transcript of the conference provides firsthand accounts of the heady achievements of the ESC as well as of the artistic mistakes, management quarrels, personality clashes, box-office failures, and financial crises that the company has endured. The frank exchanges, many of them humorous, and the lively anecdotes mirror the vigorous life of the ESC and constitute a work that anyone interested in modern theatre will find illuminating.

IT'S HOT... IT'S FUN... IT'S TDR

TDR

The Drama Review: A Journal of Performance Studies

“TDR is the most interesting and readable magazine on theatre arts.” -- Spalding Gray

“TDR is an important, necessary forum for polemical work on the ideology of performance.” -- Jill Dolan

TDR is a scholarly, lively journal examining and debating the whole range of performance: theatre, dance rituals, politics, performance art, sports. Contributors are anthropologists, sociologists, performance scholars, and artists from all over the world. Each issue presents information from many different perspectives with beautifully illustrated photos and figures.
