

CONTRIBUTORS

N. Scott Arnold is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. He has published articles on ethics and economics in the Canadian Journal of Philosophy and Ethics. Currently, he is writing a book on Marx's radical critique of capitalism.

Ken Binmore is Professor of Mathematics with special reference to economic theory at the London School of Economics. His early work was in classical mathematical analysis, and he is the author of several textbooks in this area. More recently, he has been active in the application of game theory to economic bargaining problems in the economic context. Currently, he is concerned with both the philosophical foundations of game theory and with laboratory investigations of its practical validity.

William B. Griffith is Professor of Philosophy at George Washington University. In addition to teaching and writing on problems of economic justice, he has published papers on the relationship between knowledge claims and professional responsibilities. He is currently engaged in collaborative research with an economist on foundational problems in economics.

Jean Hampton is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Pittsburgh. She has recently published Hobbes and the Social Contract Tradition, and has written papers on modern contractarian thought, punishment, and Hobbes. She is presently writing a book with Jeffrie Murphy on forgiveness and hatred.

John C. Harsanyi is Flood Research Professor in Business Administration and Professor of Economics at the University of California at Berkeley. He has published three books and many articles on rational behavior, game theory, ethics, political power, social status, and the philosophy of science. He is now writing a book on utilitarian ethics.

Uskali Mäki has studied and taught economics and philosophy at the University of Helsinki and New York University. He is currently working on a project on the prospects of scientific realism in economics. He has written, among other topics, on Friedman's methodology and the Austrian approach.

Diana T. Meyers is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Connecticut. She is the author of Inalienable Rights: A Defense of Self, Society, and Personal Choice (forthcoming), and co-editor of Economic Justice: Private Rights and Public Responsibilities, Women and Moral Theory, and Political Realism and International Morality: Ethics in the Nuclear Age (forthcoming).

Gene E. Mummy is Associate Professor of Economics at Ohio State University. Although specializing in public finance economics, his research interests are broadly based. His published work has appeared in several journals, including the American Economic Review and the Journal of Political Economy. His current research deals with the interaction between property rights and activities of the state.

John E. Roemer is Professor of Economics at the University of California at Davis. He has published several books on Marxian economics. Recently, he has been studying problems in political philosophy and political theory using techniques adapted from game theory. His Property and Exploitation: An Introduction to Marxist Economic Philosophy is forthcoming.

David Schweickart is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Loyola University of Chicago. He is the author of Capitalism or Worker Control? An Ethical and Economic Appraisal and numerous articles on issues of social and political philosophy.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to ECONOMICS AND PHILOSOPHY, Department of Economics, Fernald House, Williams College, Williamstown, MA 02167, U.S.A. The journal's editorial office may also be accessed by BITNET; the address is MLSTEEGE@WILLIAMS. Please use for correspondence only. Authors should send four copies of their manuscript and reserve one copy for their use in checking proofs. Articles must be in English. Spelling, capitalization, and punctuation must be consistent within each article and conform with the Thirteenth Edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press).

Preparation of manuscript. A separate title page should be prepared carrying the article title, auxiliary short title (not over 50 characters), author's full name (in the form preferred for publication), and author's affiliation (including full mailing address and phone number). Because blind reviewing will be employed, authors are asked to identify themselves only on the title page.

The entire manuscript (including notes and references) should be typed double-spaced on 8½ by 11 inch or A4 paper, with wide margins for copy editing. Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

Figures. If the manuscript is accepted for publication, the author will be expected to provide figures that are ready for photographic reproduction; they cannot be redrawn by the printer. Charts, graphs, or other artwork should be drawn in black ink on white paper to occupy a standard area of 8½ by 11 or 8½ by 5 inches before reduction. All labels and details on figures should be clearly printed (or done in transfer type of a sans-serif face such as Helvetica) and should be large enough to remain legible after a reduction to half size.

References and Notes. Bibliographic citations in the text must include the author's last name and the date of publication and may include page references: for example, (Bryant, 1980, pp. 335–44). When an author's name is part of the text, the following form should be used: "Bryant (1980, pp. 335–44) maintained that . . ." When a work by two or more authors is referred to, all names should be given in the first citation: for example, (Kravis, Heston, and Summers, 1978), with subsequent citations of the form (Kravis et al., 1978). When separate works are referred to within the same parentheses, those by the same author should be separated by commas and those by different authors by semicolons: for example, (Fuss and McFadden, 1978; Georgescu-Roegen, 1971, 1976).

Complete bibliographic information for each citation should be included in the list of references. References should be typed in alphabetic order using the style of the following examples:

Arrow, Kenneth J. 1974. The Limits of Organization. New York: Norton.

Bryant, John. 1980. "A Model of Reserves, Bank Runs, and Deposit Insurance." Journal of Banking and Finance 4:355–64.

Fuss, Melvyn, and McFadden, Daniel (editors). 1978. Production Economics: A Dual Approach to Theory and Applications. Amsterdam: North Holland.

Georgescu-Roegen, 1976. "Chamberlain's New Economics and the Unit of Production." In Monopolistic Competition Theory: Studies in Impact, edited by Robert E. Kuenne, pp. 31–62. New York: Wiley.

Titles of journals should not be abbreviated.

When more than a simple source citation is called for, footnotes may be used. These should be numbered consecutively throughout the text and typed on a separate page following references. Source citations within footnotes follow the same style as citations in text.

Copyediting and proofreading. The publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proofread all articles accepted for publication, but authors will be consulted in the case of any substantial changes. Page proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only.

General. Authors receive 25 offprints of their article free of charge; additional numbers may be purchased if ordered at proof stage. Submission of an article implies that it has not been published elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press.
