

“A Literary Gold Mine”

“I not only find Literature and Its Writers to be an excellent instructional text, but I feel that my students are spending a semester with a literary gold mine. Many of them discover this and read far more selections than are assigned for the course.”

— Jane Whorton,
Pearl River Community
College

“I love your commentaries. I’ve never seen that kind of commitment to hearing what the writers themselves have to say about writing and their own work in a student text. It’s a great idea and one I enjoy using with my classes!”

— Elizabeth Flores,
College of Lake County

With its unique emphasis on how authors talk about what they do, this introductory anthology lets the words of the writers guide students in their exploration of the many ways to read, think, and write about literature.

- Showcases how writers talk about literature and writing by weaving authorial insights throughout its apparatus and by supplementing its stories, poems, and plays with the authors’ commentaries about them.
- A diverse selection of literature distinguished by the richest choice of fiction and featuring many writers presented in casebooks.
- Innovative editorial apparatus that keeps the focus on the writers — with extensive headnotes, concise introductions to literary elements, and questions and writing prompts on the Web site and in the Instructor’s Manual.
- Distinctive writing opportunities and plentiful writing instruction.

Thinking and Writing About Literature combines three books in one — a composition text, an introduction to literature, and a thematic anthology — all working together to help students become better academic writers, better literary readers.

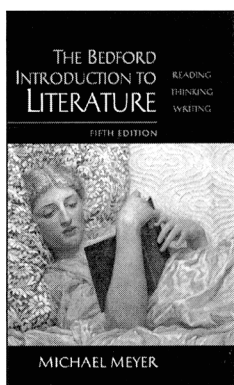

The text offers a well-balanced range of selections — 41 stories, 152 poems, 12 plays, and 17 essays — and includes both classic and contemporary examples of each genre, all readable, all teachable.

■ A Writing about Literature text in Part One provides the help students need to become better academic writers. Writing in Process casebooks conclude every chapter.

■ A comprehensive introduction to the elements of literature in Part Two gives students the tools they need to analyze and write about distinct literary forms.

■ A thematic anthology in Part Three provides stories, poems, plays, and essays that give students many reasons to write.
