A Bibliography of German-language Legal Monograph Series

Bibliographie rechtswissenschaftlicher Schriftenreihen

Preface: Gerhard J. Dahlmanns

1978. XVI, 383 pages. Cloth DM 88.00. ISBN 3-7940-7037-2. In German and English.

This bibliography of legal monograph serials is an unusual work in every respect. For the first time, the important German-language writings on legal science which have appeared in serial form and which, for nearly one hundred years, – as a class of their own – have formed an essential part of the literature on jurisprudence, have now been collected, compiled and edited.

Aus bisher vorliegenden Rezensionen:

„Dem Inhalt nach bringt es handbuchartig soviel Verschiedenartiges – weit mehr, als der Titel anzeigt. Der Titel könnte auch lauten ‚Weltgeschichte der juristischen Methode‘ oder ‚Methoden der Rechte‘, denn die Rede ist von allen gewesenen und gegenwärtigen Rechtskulturen und ihrer Art, das Recht zu denken und anzuwenden.“

Juristische Arbeitsblätter 3/1976

„Eine ganz zeitgemäße Gelehrsamkeit entfaltet für den geduligen Leser die Fülle der – wenn das Wort erlaubt ist – abendländischen Rechtskultur in allen ihren historischen und räumlichen Verzweigungen.“

Wilhelm Henke in Juristenzeitung 11/12-1976

„Seinem Inhalt nach ist das Buch der Rechtsvergleichung, Rechtsgeschichte und Rechtsphilosophie zuzuordnen und bietet eine Fülle von Informationen über zeitlich und räumlich weit auseinanderliegende Rechtskreise . . . Der gewaltige Strom von Gedanken und Erkenntnissen dieses Buches wird von dem Autor meisterhaft gebändigt und fließt in eine stets erkennbare Richtung, die durch das Leitthema angegeben ist: den richtigen Ort der Rechtsmethodik zu bestimmen.“

J.C.B.Mohr (Paul Siebeck) Tübingen

Gerichtshof decisions, and only 20 percent of the Verwaltungsgerichtshof. Most decisions are heavily edited before publication. Decisions of the Oberlandesgerichte are not reported, except that some of them are published in law reviews on a random basis.

Belgium The appellate courts consist of:

Cour de Cassation (Court of Cassation)

Conseil d'Etat (Council of State)

Cours d'Appel (Courts of Appeal – five in number)

Decisions of the Cour de Cassation are reported on a selective basis in an official series. Presumably all important decisions of the Conseil d'Etat are published privately. There is no regular publication system for the decisions of the Cours d'Appel.

Federal Republic of Germany The appellate system is quite intricate as there are six specialized and mutually exclusive court hierarchies:

Bundesverfassungsgericht (Federal Constitutional Court)

Bundesgerichtshof (Federal Court of Justice)

Bundesarbeitsgericht (Federal Labour Court)

Bundessozialgericht (Federal Social Court)

Bundesfinanzhof (Federal Court of Finance)

Bundesverwaltungsgericht (Federal Administrative Court)

Verfassungsgerichte der Länder (State Constitutional Courts)

Bayerisches Oberstes Landesgericht (Supreme Regional Court of Bavaria; there are no courts of this resort in the other states)

Oberlandesgerichte (Higher Regional Courts – 19 in number)

Oberverwaltungsgerichte (Higher Administr. Courts – 10 in number)

Finanzgerichte (Finance Courts – 13 in number)

Landesarbeitsgerichte (Higher Labour Courts – 12 in number)

Landessozialgerichte (Higher Social Courts – 11 in number)

The reporting practice in the Federal Republic of Germany is extremely varied. Except for certain decisions of the Federal Constitutional Court, which are officially published by the Ministry of Justice, the only official series of law reports exists for the Federal Court of Finance, where about 27 percent of its decisions are published on a selective basis. In terms of practical reality, however, this statement is inaccurate. Private series of reports exist for each of the above federal courts. Though they do not have an official imprimatur, they are invariably published under the editorial supervision of the judges sitting in the respective courts. The series for the Federal Constitutional Court contains full texts of all decisions of that court. The reporting for the other federal courts is more selective with the ratio of published decisions ranging between 50 and 60 percent. Similar situation prevails for subordinate appellate courts on state or regional levels, though
