THE FIRST AWARD OF THE DEÁK PRIZE

The Board of Editors is pleased to announce the first award of the Deák Prize to Frederick L. Kirgis, Jr. of the University of California at Los Angeles School of Law for his article "Technological Challenge to the Shared Environment: United States Practice," which was published in Volume 66 of the American Journal of International Law at pages 290 to 320.

The Deák Prize, which was established in memory of the late Professor Francis Deák, is to be awarded from time to time to a particularly meritorious article in the Journal, with preference given to articles by younger authors. The prize was made possible through a generous gift from Philip F. Cohen, the President of Oceana Publications Inc.
