

Modern Asian Studies 55, 4 (2021) p. 1411. © Cambridge University Press 2020. This is an Open Access article, distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution licence (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>), which permits unrestricted re-use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original work is properly cited.

doi:10.1017/S0026749X20000414 First published online 22 September 2020

ERRATUM

The Modernity of Caste and the Market Economy

DAVID MOSSE

SOAS University of London

Email: dm21@soas.ac.uk doi: 10.1017/S0026749X19000039. Published by Cambridge University Press, 30 October 2019.

The published version of this article¹ is missing part of the sentence referring to Rupa Viswanath's work on page 1234. The full sentence should read:

“Her recent book, The Pariah Problem (2014b), describes a chain of events and reactions that led a Dalit condition of agrarian enslavement to be ‘spiritualized’ (rendering untouchability religious) and missionaries to be opposed as a threat to Hindu religion rather than as a challenge to landlord abuse of Dalit labour.”

The Publisher apologises for this error.

¹D. Mosse, ‘The Modernity of Caste and the Market Economy’, Modern Asian Studies, vol. 54, no. 4, 2020, pp. 1225–71. doi:10.1017/S0026749X19000039.