The Regulators

Watchdog Agencies and the Public Interest

LOUIS M. KOHLMEIER, JR.

"The author covers the whole broad front of governmental regulation—the President and the executive agencies, the Supreme Court and constitutional law, the Congress and its committees, and its creatures, the independent regulatory commissions. . . . Anyone who is teaching a course in government and business, or even an introductory U.S. Government course, will find this book useful supplementary reading. The instructor can even tell his students to skip the last chapter, and to come up with their own proposals to cure the mess of federal regulation. In other words, the author of this book states the problem, and describes the situation well enough to serve pedagogically as well as otherwise."—Henry Reining, Jr. in The Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, September, 1970. Paper. Tentative: 338 pp.; $2.95

The Stable Crisis

Two Decades of German Foreign Policy

WOLFRAM F. HANRIEDER

This treatment of West German foreign policy from 1949 to the present brings together international and domestic perspectives, stressing their mutual impact. The Federal Republic's three major goals—security, political and economic recovery, and reunification—are treated chronologically, with emphasis on the international environment within which they met success or failure. Where relevant, policies of West Germany's allies, and those of the Soviet bloc, are discussed. Domestic consensus or opposition to government programs is explored through discussion of political parties and relevant pressure groups. May, 1970. Paper. 221 pp.; $3.50

Issues and Parties in Legislative Voting

Methods of Statistical Analysis

DUNCAN MacRAE, JR.

Unusual in its degree of mathematical rigor, this book is intended to help evolve a new approach to teaching research methods in political science. Using some calculus, it introduces matrix algebra and factor analysis. Develops methods of cumulative scaling, cluster and factor analysis and applies them to distinct procedures for identifying issues and measuring partisanship from roll-call data. The methods introduced are adapted and modified so as to be most applicable to the particular problems of roll-call analysis. February, 1970. 329 pp.; $9.95

Political Ideas and Ideologies

A History of Political Thought

MULFORD Q. SIBLEY

An introductory text dealing with the issues of political theory and the history of political thought. In four parts: ancient political speculation among the Hebrews, Greeks, and Romans, and political ideas implicit in the New Testament; major currents of political thought and ideology in the "Christian centuries" (100 A.D. to 1500 A.D.); predominant lines of development from the Renaissance to the end of the 18th century; major political thought since the French Revolution. Political ideas related to historical events and to the general history of science and philosophy throughout; analysis and criticism of each body of ideas. Overall effort to show the history of political ideas as a continuing dialogue between alternative viewpoints. May, 1970. 612 pp.; $10.95

Thoughts on POLITICS and ENVIRONMENT

Identity, Power, and Change

Edited by
Michael A. Weinstein, Purdue University
Writings by:
PLATO/LASSWELL/FROMM/
ROUSSEAU/EASTON/MARCUSE/
HOBBES/DAHL/CAMUS

This unique reader applies theoretical approaches to relevant issues, lending clarity and meaning to the study of political theory. In a disciplined and systematic presentation, it introduces students to a wide range of political opinion and philosophy. Selections amplify various schools of political thought—psychological, systems, and conflict—while within each category are pieces from a classical writer, a behavioralist, and a social critic. Substantial introductory and concluding essays by the editor, in addition to headnotes for each reading, place the works in a significant context whereby students can analyze and integrate material from within the broad spectrum of political theory.

The Crisis of Survival

Articles by:
ODUM/DeMOTT/DARLING/LINDSAY/
ILTIS/STEIF/BERLAND/HOWARD/
WALD/MILES/INGLIS/NADER/
BOULDING/GIBSON/BORLAND/
NELSON/SPROUT/HAYES/
HILL/KENNAN

A striking collection of articles on the critical state of our present environment and the prospects for survival in the future, this is the most complete and authoritative book available on the subject. Devoted entirely to the analysis of environmental problems and proposed remedies, it brings together articles written by leaders in the drive for ecological reform. Selections represent reasoned scientific, political, and humanistic views of the nature and scope of the crisis. General introductions by Eugene Odum and Benjamin DeMott add more complete coverage and insight into the crisis. With its candid and thorough examination of environmental problems and prospects, this is more than a valuable guide and sourcebook — it is a major contribution to the field of environmental health.
