Professional Notes

HERBERT STORING Fund

A Herbert J. Storing Memorial Fund has been established at the University of Virginia. The primary purpose of the fund will be to facilitate the publication of Professor Storing's six-volume work, The Complete Anti-Federalist, described by him shortly before his death as "the culmination of my scholarly work on the American Founding and the American Constitution." Resources permitting, the fund will also be used to support other posthumous publications and to establish a Herbert J. Storing Fellowship for graduate study in the Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia where he held the Robert Kent Gooch Chair at the time of his death.

Tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to: Professor R. K. Ramazani, Chairman, Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs, Cabell Hall 232, University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901.

Please make checks payable to: Herbert J. Storing Memorial Fund. A memorial to Herbert Storing by Ralph Lerner appears in this issue of PS in the Memoriam section.

SCANDINAVIAN Summer Seminars

The Danish Institute (Det Janske Selskab) has announced the following Scandinavian Summer Seminars in 1978:

Scandinavian Democracy

The Welfare State—Conforming or Liberating? September 4-16, Danish kroner 4000.

Seminar on the development of democratic ideas and institutions in Finland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Early democratic traditions, contemporary democracy in politics and economics. Systems of central government and administration, local government. Democracy in education, in the pursuit of welfare and quality of life at work and in the family: Helsinki, Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen.

Europe of Regions

A Conference on Regional Autonomy. September 17-22. Danish kroner 1200.

Lectures, discussions and group sessions on (1) Nature and Limits of Regional Autonomy, the Swiss Cantons and the German Bundeslander as practical examples; (2) The difficulties to overcome after the achievement of autonomy; (3) Autonomy as a means of lessening or eventually ending internal conflicts, in particular between Left and Right; (4) How to strengthen the understanding of the importance of and the adherence to regionalism. Among the lecturers, Professor C. Northcote Parkinson. To be held at the Danish Parliament, Christiansborg Castle, Copenhagen.

Human Relations

In the family and in the community. August 8-12. Danish kroner 900.

Lectures and discussions about: Family planning and responsible parenthood reflecting the view that every child should be welcome; education and guidance in contraception, free abortion. Sex education as a school subject with the purpose to develop a healthy and harmonious relationship. Youth in the community, early adolescence, youth uprising, youth problems, practical solutions. Women in the community, equal rights at home, at work, in politics. Removal of censorship aiming at greater personal freedom combined with greater personal responsibility. How to harmonize human dignity and public decency with the new attitudes? To be held at Gladsaxe near Copenhagen.

Scandinavian Architecture

August 27-September 9. Danish kroner 4000.

A comparative study of new trends in architecture and urban planning in the four Nordic countries. Lectures by experts in architecture and town planning, professionally guided study visits to buildings and urban districts, meetings and discussions with Scandinavian colleagues: Helsinki, Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen.

Language for the seminars is English. Costs include accommodation, meals and all organized activities. Additional seminars on Pre-School and Elementary Education, Special Education, Care of the Aged, Libraries, Applied Art and Industrial Design, and Art and Museums.

For information write to: The Danish Institute (Det danske Selskab), Kultorvet 2, DK-1175 Copenhagen K, Denmark.

STATE DEPARTMENT Publications

The Office of the Historian, Bureau of Public Affairs of the U.S. Department of State invites political scientists wishing to receive information on a regular basis on announcements, publications and other items of interest from the U.S. Department of State to write to David F. Trask, The Historian, Office of the Historian, Bureau of Public Affairs, U.S. Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520.

GERMAN Studies Review

The Western Association for German Studies has announced publication of the German Studies Review. The journal will welcome articles relating to German studies in history, literature, political science and other fields. The Association will also welcome members. Dues are $10 annually. For further information write to Gerald R. Kleinfeld, Editor, the German Studies Review, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona 85281.

FOREIGN POLICY Series

Bergen Community College, Paramus, New Jersey, in association with CBS Television will present its sixth major educational series entitled, "Paradox of Power: U.S. Foreign Policy" starting in the spring of 1978.

Among the guests who will appear on this series are: Andrew J. Young, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations; Zbigniew Brzezinski, National Security Advisor to President Carter; Terence A. Todman, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs; and Robert B. Semple, Jr., Foreign Editor for the New York Times.

Among the historians and political scientists who are committed to appear on the series are: James MacGregor Burns, Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., Walter La Feber, Henry Graff, and Louis Koenig. Organizations and groups that have agreed to act as consulting agencies for the series include: the Organization of American Historians, the Foreign Policy Association, the New York Times, the Center for the Study of the Presidency, the Eastern Community College Social Science Association, and the State Department. In addition, the Foreign Policy Association has agreed to provide original print material to accompany the course.

This 54-program series, which is the most extensive coverage of 20th century American foreign affairs ever to appear on television, will begin with an introduction on the process of policy making and then extend into such topics as: media intrusion into foreign policy, the intricacies of the Roosevelt era, containment and the "Cold War," and Vietnam. The series will even examine the most contemporary problems such as: detente, the new China policy, Cuba, and Panama Canal, the Middle East, the emerging African diplomacy, and the reaction to President Carter's position on human rights.

Two-year and four-year colleges may offer this course for credit through the Media Instructional Association based at Bergen Community College. Interested students whose institutions are not participating in the program may enroll for three college credits directly at Bergen Community College at a cost of $60 for tuition. In addition, any individual who desires to enroll for self-enrichment purposes (non-credit) can do so for $15.

Further information and a free brochure describing the entire series may be obtained by writing to: Public Media Programming, Bergen Community College, 400 Paramus Road, Paramus, New Jersey 07652.

BIO-ENERGY Council

The Bio-Energy Council was recently created to encourage the production of clean fuels and byproducts from urban and rural wastes and special crops.

The Council's program includes a detailed inventory of bio-energy projects, a Bio-Energy World Congress, an analysis of social/economic and environmental impacts, and a range of information-sharing activities.

The Council is inviting the suggestions and support of Bio-Energy Associates in this program. Tax-exempt Associate contributions can be made by individuals ($25 or more) and by organizations (up to $5,000). Associates will receive the Proceedings of the 1976 introductory conference on Capturing the Sun Through Bioconversion, the Bio-Energy Project Inventory Report, and the Council's general mailings for the coming year. Council staff can also provide them with reference materials on specific bio-energy projects and prospects.

For more information, write or phone The Bio-Energy Council, 1337 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Suite 204, Washington, D.C. 20036; (202) 833-5656.

ASIAN Descent Scholars Newsletter

The Newsletter for Scholars of Asian Descent is published approximately four times a year and is available from Professor Akira Kubota, c/o Asian American Studies Center, UCLA, Los Angeles, California 90024 at the annual subscription rate of $4. This publication is intended as a medium through which Asian scholars in Asian studies and other disciplines seek to increase communication with each other, to identify and examine their occupational difficulties, and to promote their professional effectiveness.

ENVIRONMENTAL Policy Directory

The Program in Public and Environmental Administration at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay is preparing a directory of political scientists and other students of public affairs who have a special interest in environmental and/or population policy. The directory will include names, affiliations, areas of expertise, research interests in environmental or population policy studies, courses offered in these areas, and a selected list of publications. Information will be collected through Spring, 1978, with anticipated publication in late summer or early fall. For further information and a copy of the questionnaire, contact: Michael E. Kraft, Public and Environmental Administration, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, Green Bay, Wisconsin 54302.

AGRICULTURAL Information System

Research papers, master's theses, seminar papers, journal articles and books on rural development and Agricultural Economics in Latin America will be welcomed at the Information Network (CEDEAL) organized by the Inter-American Center for Tropical Agriculture (CIAT) in Palmira, Colombia. The material will be reviewed by staff of the information network for possible insertion into the system. A monthly mailing of index cards citing material in these areas and containing a brief abstract of each piece is made to all subscribers to CEDEAL (Centro de Economía Agrícola y Desarrollo Rural Latino Americano). Material contained on these individual index cards is also issued as a complete volume each year.

A further service of CEDEAL is the availability to subscribers of inexpensive photoduplication of any material received and included in the CEDEAL collection, as well as a search of materials specified by a client.

Mail material or inquiries to Steffen W. Schmidt, Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, Iowa State University, Ames, Iowa 50011 or directly to CIAT.

The REPORTER Archives

In April 1975 the late Max Asciole of New York presented to Wake Forest University the news morgue and reference library of The Reporter, a magazine on world affairs published fortnightly from 1949 to 1968. Dr. Asciole, who founded the magazine and was its editor and publisher, gave the collection to the University in memory of his friend, the late Camilo Artom, internationally known biochemist long a member of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine faculty.

The morgue comprises approximately 280 file drawers of newspaper clippings classified and cross-referenced under subject headings, plus tear sheets of magazine articles, reports and other research material on domestic and foreign politics, government and economics, social subjects such as health, education, conservation; business, the arts, and other subjects. A biographical file covers about 1,000 names and includes their articles and speeches. There is also a file of leading columnists.

Writers, researchers and other scholars not connected with Wake Forest University are welcome to use the material. Write to Ruth Ames, Artom Collection, The Z. Smith Reynolds Library, Box 7777 Reynolda Station, Winston-Salem, North Carolina 27109 for further information, hours, etc.

EVALUATION Publication

Individuals interested in new opportunities for professional development, cross-disciplinary interaction, and improving skills as an evaluator may be interested in subscribing to Evaluation News which offers information on resources, training programs, and new developments in evaluation technology and theory, practical applications. For further information write to Michael Scriven, Editor, c/o Phi Delta Kappa, Eighth Street and Union Avenue, P.O. Box 7891, Bloomington, Indiana 47401. Annual dues for Evaluation News is $5.50.

NORDIC Society Conference Group

The Conference Group on Nordic Society is continuing its efforts to locate all individuals interested in social science research and teaching on the Scandinavian countries. A second wave of questionnaires is currently being circulated to all individuals who are actively engaged in research and teaching. The questionnaire is designed to construct a revised directory of published and current social science research. If you teach or do social science research on Scandinavia and have not received a copy of the initial questionnaire, would you please write to the address below for a questionnaire. If you are only interested in securing the current Directory of 100 names or finding out about visiting lecturers, research opportunities, and workshops, please indicate your interest to us. All inquiries should be addressed to: Professor Robert B. Kvavik, University of Minnesota, Department of Political Science, 267 19th Avenue South, 1414 Social Sciences Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455.

The Conference Group on Nordic Society was created by the Council for European Studies in response to initiatives taken at the 1976 annual meeting of the Society for the Advancement of Scandinavian Studies at Austin, Texas. The Conference Group is based at the Center for Northwest European Language and Area Studies at the University of Minnesota.

BIOLOGY AND POLITICS

Research Committee

The IPSA Biology and Politics Research Committee met at Villa Serbelloni, Bellagio, Italy, to make initial plans for the Biology and Politics panels at the 1979 IPSA Congress. Members of the Research Committee present were: Professors David Easton, Jean A. Laponce, William J. M. Mackenzie, John Wahlke, and Albert Somit. Also participating were: Professors Gerard Baerends, George Barlow, Heinz Eulau, Rollo Handy, Steven Peterson, Glendon Schubert, Joseph Tanenhaus, and Thomas Wiegale.

The Committee would welcome communications from individuals interested in presenting papers in the general area of Biology and Politics at the 1979 meeting. While first priority will be given to empirical research findings, papers dealing with philosophical, conceptual, methodological, etc., aspects of this general area will also receive serious consideration. Proposals and/or requests for further information should be addressed to Albert Somit, Executive Vice President and Professor of Political Science, State University of New York at Buffalo, 503 Capen Hall, Amherst, New York 14260.

URBAN SOCIAL INSTITUTIONS Ph.D. Program

The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee has announced a new doctoral program in Urban Social Institutions. USI is an interdisciplinary Ph.D. program intended to produce scholars capable of sophisticated and useful social science research. The program emphasizes the institutional, theoretical and empirical tools necessary for policy-relevant research in the social complex that constitutes the urban milieu. Students completing the program will be qualified for research and policy positions in a variety of governmental agencies, private industry, and in traditional academic posts.

Because of the interdisciplinary nature of the program, students will have great flexibility in mastering substantive areas built around a theoretical and research core. Areas of specialization include methodology, theory, institutional change, social structure and change, urban growth and development, race and ethnicity, policy and future analysis and service delivery systems, urban history, nonconventional behavior.

The requirements for admission to the program are: (1) a Master's degree or the equivalent in social science or a related field; (2) statistical proficiency of an intermediate grade (e.g., through correlational analysis and tests of significance); (3) first-hand experience of research with primary data; (4) a solid background in urban studies within some disciplinary framework (e.g., urban sociology, urban history, urban planning or the like). Should the entering student be inadequately prepared in one or the other areas, he/she may be admitted with the provision that the work be made up either before entering the program or concurrently with the first year's residence.

Urban Social Institutions began its first year in September, 1977. A limited number of students will be admitted for 1978. Some teaching and project assistantships will be available. Interested applicants should submit applications no later than March 22, 1977. For information contact: Professor Scott Greer, Acting Director, Urban Social Institutions, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, P.O. Box 413, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53201.

LATIN AMERICAN Series

The Institute for Latin American Studies of Northwestern Pennsylvania welcomes manuscripts for possible publications in its Latin American Monograph Series. It is published triannually by ILAS of Northwestern Pennsylvania and Mercyhurst College, of Erie, Pennsylv-vania. This series presents interdisciplinary studies on Latin American Politics, economics, culture, literature, and civilization. Manuscripts to be considered for publication should be typed in duplicate and sent to either: Max Azicri, Political Science Department, Edinboro State College, Edinboro, Pennsylvania 16444; or to H. Michael Erisman, Political Science Department, Mercyhurst College, Erie, Pennsylvania 16501.

WOMEN'S Prize

The Committee on the Status of Women in the Profession of the Western Political Science Association is administering the second annual competition for the outstanding article on women and politics. The article selected will be published in the Western Political Quarterly and the author will be awarded $100. Any political scientist may submit an article; the award winner must be or become a member of the Western Political Science Association.

The deadline for submission is February 1, 1978. No previously published material may be submitted. Please submit three copies of the article and a 100-word abstract which will not be returned to: Dr. Elizabeth Moulds, Department of Political Science, California State University, Sacramento, California 95819.

HANDICAPPED Directory

The Project on the Handicapped in Science of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) is developing a directory of scientists with handicapping conditions which will be distributed to public agencies, handicapped scientists, and consumer organizations to facilitate communication among them. Research for, and publication of the directory is supported by the National Science Foundation (Grant No. SP177-19913).

Each directory entry will contain basic personal and professional biodata, nature and age of onset of handicapping condition, and a summary of educational and professional experience including problems faced and overcome. The scientists will be asked if they would be willing to act as advisors, consultants and/or evaluators on many levels concerning science and the handicapped. This information will also be included in the directory. It is anticipated that the directory will identify handicapped scientists of specific scientific specialization who are willing to share experiences and information on coping strategies; educate the scientific community concerning their existence and their problems; organize action when needed; and provide the basis for problem analysis and professional planning for scientific societies, educational institutions, consumer organizations, and federal agencies.

The project defines science broadly to include all the natural and social sciences, mathematics, engineering and medicine—all fields for which a rigorous scientific education is required. It will seek to include those with degrees in these areas or equivalent training who are working in scientific, medical or technological fields. The directory will also include individuals trained in science but working in other areas or presently unemployed.

At this time the AAAS has names of over 500 disabled scientists who have been serving as a resource group to the Association. The Association is interested in increasing this number so that the directory will include as many handicapped scientists as possible. All handicapped scientists and graduate students of science not currently included in the resource group are urged to participate in the project by identifying themselves to Martha Ross Redden, Project Director, or Janette Aisford Owens, Project Assistant, Project on the Handicapped in Science, Office of Opportunities in Science, AAAS, 1776 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036; telephone number (202) 467-4497 (TTY or voice).

FEMINIST Publications

The Barnard College Women's Center has announced the publication of the two major papers from the fourth annual conference held at Barnard on April 23, 1977, The Scholar and The Feminist IV: Connecting Theory, Practice, and Values.

"The Social Implications of the Scientific Study of Sex," by Diana Long Hall, is a case study of the way in which knowledge in a new field is created. In this paper Ms. Hall, an historian of science in the departments of history and biology at Boston University and a Fellow of the Radcliffe Institute 1976-77, examines the way in which accepted, biased assumptions about science and sex roles affected the development of the field of sex endocrinology in the late 19th and early 20th century United States.

The second paper, "Is Traditional Scholarship Value Free? Toward a Critical Theory," by Mary E. Payer, a social philosopher and a Chamberlain Fellow in Philosophy at Columbia University, analyzes the broader social and theoretical implications of the specific day-to-day scientific and scholarly practices discussed by Hall. By examining such concepts as "science," "knowledge," and "interest," the paper clarifies the ways in which fundamental assumptions can bias the entire enterprise of scholarship.

The publication is available for $2.00 a copy or $1.50 for ten or more copies, and may be ordered from the Women's Center, Barnard College, New York, New York 10027.

WORKPLACE Inc.

The Workplace, a non-profit organization designed to provide workspace and office services, has completed its first year of service. Individuals wishing to have more details on the Workplace should write to the Directors, Beverly Nadel or Nora Jean Levin, 1302 18th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

CONGRESSIONAL Studies Program

The Catholic University of America, in conjunction with the U.S. Capitol Historical Society, is offering a program in Congressional Studies leading to a Master of Arts degree. The program, directed by Professors Norman J. Ornstein of the Department of Politics and Jon L. Wakelyn of the Department of History at Catholic University, will emphasize historical and contemporary approaches to Congress and the U.S. political system. Courses which have been or are currently being taught include History of the U.S. Congress, the Budget Process, Rules and Procedures in Congress, U.S. Government Reorganization, Congressional Elections, Congress in Theory and Practice, and the Congressional Committee System. Instructors in the program have included Terence T. Finn, Iric Nathanson, Walter Kravitz, Thomas Mann, Michael J. Malbin, William Maury, Norman J. Ornstein, and Rep. Charles Whalen (R-Ohio).

GERMAN Politics Group

The Conference Group on German Politics (CGGP), an independent voluntary organization of scholars who devote a major portion of their professional work to the study of German affairs, sponsored a roundtable on the 1976 German Election at the recent APSA Convention with papers presented by David Conradt, University of Florida, Kai Hildebrandt, University of Michigan, and William Andrews, SUNY, Brockport. In collaboration with country groups on British, French and Italian Politics, the CGGP also sponsored panels on separatism/regionalism and on current European economic policies.

A study group composed of nine CGGP members with specialized interest in legal affairs, civil liberties and public opinion traveled to the Federal Republic in December for a two-week tour sponsored by the German Information Center, New York and Inter Naciones, Bonn. Purpose of the trip was to assay the impact of recent terrorist incidents on mass opinion, elite opinion and on the self-understanding of professional groups such as law enforcement officials, lawyers and judges.

Preliminary plans are underway for an international conference of scholars to be held June 5-9, 1978 at Tutzing, Bavaria on the topic: "Participation and Politics: Comparative Public Policy." Plenary sessions and working groups will focus on issues in the policy areas of education, energy, urban politics and health. The conference is being cosponsored by the Studiengruppe Partizipationsforschung of the University of Bonn and the Tutzing Akademie fuer Politische Bildung. Alfred Diamant of Indiana University is American co-chairman for the conference.

The CGGP continues to sponsor a limited number of internships and scholars-in-residence awards in cooperation with German public and private offices. Leslie Sternberg, a graduate student at SAIS, and Professor George Szabowski of York University, Ontario, are currently in Germany on CGGP-sponsored programs. Deadline for 1978-1979 awards was January 13, 1978.

Membership in the CGGP is $3 per year. The group distributes a newsletter and through the volunteer efforts of its membership arranges panels and conferences of topical interest. Further information can be obtained by writing: CGGP, P.O. Box 345, Durham, New Hampshire 03824.

TEXAS Political Studies Journal

Edwin S. Davis of the Department of Political Science, Sam Houston State University, Huntsville, Texas 77340, has announced the establishment of the Texas Political Studies Journal. This journal will be known as the Texas Journal of Political Studies. It is to be published semi-annually with the first edition dated Fall, 1978. Yearly subscription costs are: Individual, $7.50; institutions, $10.

The editor is accepting manuscripts now for volume 1, number 1. A style sheet and further information may be obtained by writing to: Edwin S. Davis, Department of Government, Sam Houston State University, Huntsville, Texas 77340.

LITCHFIELD Festschrift

M. L. Wiesen is preparing a Festschrift in memory of Edward H. Litchfield, former Executive Director of the Association and Chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh. Individuals are invited to submit unpublished articles and essays in fields such as university administration, universality of principles of administration, international educational and cultural exchange of senior level personnel, governing of post-war Germany, new developments in state government civil service or merit systems, and relationships between top corporate management and Board of Directors. For further information write to M. L. Wiesen, Box 536, Fairfield, New Jersey 07006.

New PUBLIC POLICY Journal

A new quarterly journal of public policy (both foreign affairs and domestic) has been launched by The Heritage Foundation (a non-partisan public policy research foundation in Washington, D.C.). Entitled Policy Review, the new journal is edited by Robert L. Schuettinger, who has taught political science at Yale, The Catholic University of America, and other institutions. The first issue (Summer 1977) included articles by Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan on population trends and by Robert Moss (of The Economist) on Eurocommunism. The current (Fall 1977) issue includes articles by Colin Gray of the Hudson Institute on SALT, by Robert Conquest on the Soviet elite, and by former Congressman Charles Weltner on the Model Cities program.

Introductory copies are available for $2 from Policy Review, 513 C Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002. Subscriptions are $12 for one year.

ICPSR Summer Program

The Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) Summer Program is designed to encourage the diffusion to social scientists of basic and advanced methodological and technical training. Intensive inter-disciplinary work for historians, political scientists, sociologists, and other social scientists is provided through a set of two four-week courses. Instruction is offered in least squares-regression, causal inference, dimensional and dynamic analysis, and exploratory data analysis. In addition specialized two-week workshops are given on specific methodological problems, as well as on data management, librarian, and archival procedures. The Program also provides access to training in the techniques of survey research and mini-micro computer utilization.

The need for a training program arose out of the realization that few universities or colleges are able economically to maintain a curriculum in quantitative inquiry that meets the full range of needs for social scientists today. The Summer Program provides a wide range of advanced specialized training for graduate students and post-doctoral participants in most of the techniques of analysis currently employed by social scientists, plus opportunities for introductory work in modern social analysis for those whose careers or educational opportunities did not provide such training.

The ICPSR curriculum has evolved into a modular program of methodological and technical training that seeks maximum topical and disciplinary relevance. While primarily methodological in focus, the Program differs from conventional statistics curricula in two respects: it is designed to convey technical skills as an integral part of a broader context of substantive social inquiry, and it is oriented toward an active, learning-by-doing mode of training and instruction. Experiences in data processing and the analysis of data in individual or small group projects complement lectures and discussions in most of the courses. Introductory sequences are offered for students and teachers needing basic skills. Intermediate level courses provide scholars with an opportunity to become familiar in depth with a wide variety of analytical techniques. Additionally, advanced seminars offer participants experience with innovative methods and techniques often not yet readily available in published form.

Program Design

The Program is conducted for eight weeks each July and August. It is structured into two sets of four-week modules designed to provide a flexible and challenging instructional format. The participants select seminar and workshop modules according to their main interests, and supplementary lectures to receive overviews and exposure to areas other than those chosen in the seminars and workshops. Participation in the Summer Program is counted as the equivalent of up to six graduate credit hours. An individual participant's program may consist of various combinations of seminar and/or workshop modules, supplemented by lecture modules as desired.

Methods Seminars: The objective of the intensive methods seminars is to provide the participant with the opportunity for a focused and intensive experience in the application and adaptation of specific quantitative research and analysis techniques. The four-week modules include:

Proseminar in behavioral research methods: research design, elementary data analysis.

Methods of general statistical analysis: least squares, nominal data, multi-level analysis, recent developments in data analysis.

Techniques of causal inference: causal inference, recent developments in causal modeling.

Techniques of dimensional analysis: factor analysis, multi-dimensional scaling, recent developments in dimensional analysis.

Techniques of dynamic analysis: time series, panel analysis, process modeling.

Seminar in quantitative methods of historical analysis.

Exploratory data analysis.

Research Workshops: The workshops are designed to provide each participant with an opportunity for intensive experience in the application of research methods to either a general substantive area or a specific substantive problem of scholarly interest. Specific subjects are amended from year to year; they have typically covered such topics as the following: Political alienation, black political behavior, mass media and the political process, elite-mass linkages, undergraduate teaching, political economy, public policy evaluation.

Two of the several special workshops which will be offered during the 1978 Summer Program will focus on (a) quantitative analysis of criminal justice problems utilizing archival resources developed with the support of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and (b) quantitative analysis of issues on aging drawing upon archival resources developed with the support of the Administration on Aging.

An intensive two-week workshop on data management procedures will also be given. This workshop will concentrate on data archival, librarian, and servicing techniques.

General Lectures: Supplementary lectures are intended to give an exposure to concepts and ideas in areas other than those covered by an individual participant's primary selection of seminar modules. Lecture modules offered include: Topics in general statistical analysis, causal inference, dimensional analysis, dynamic analysis, topics in formal political theory, and elementary and advanced mathematics for social scientists.

Related Programs: While the ICPSR Summer Program focuses on methods of data analysis rather than data collection, the SRC Summer Institute offers training in the methodology of survey research: study design, sampling, questionnaire construction, interviewing, coding, and analysis. Interested participants should avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the program conducted by the Survey Research Center (which is held concurrent with the ICPSR Summer Program), or to select courses from both programs.

In addition, an intensive one-week seminar on "Mini and Microcomputers: Their Structures, Characteristics and Applications" will be conducted in conjunction with the University of Michigan Engineering Summer Conference in late July for those interested in learning about the latest developments in this area of hardware and technology.

Admissions

Admission to the Summer Program is arranged through the individual ICPSR campus representative. Each January, application materials and program descriptions are sent to these representatives. Information may also be obtained directly from: Director, ICPSR Summer Program, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.

PHI KAPPA PHI Journal

Stephen W. White, Editor of the Phi Kappa Phi Journal, will welcome manuscripts for the journal. Articles are especially sought in areas related to feminism, futurism, and business and professional ethics. They should be no longer than six to ten double-spaced typewritten pages. Articles should be sent in duplicate with a self-addressed stamped envelope for return. For further information write: Stephen W. White, Editor, Phi Kappa Phi Journal, Box 19420A, East Tennessee State University, Johnson City, Tennessee 37601.

GREEK Political Thought Group

A group has been established for those interested in the political thought and institutions of ancient Greece. Anyone wishing to attend occasional seminars or to receive circulated papers should contact either D. Hall, Department of Political Theory and Government, University College of Swansea, Singleton Park, Swansea SA2 8PP or Dr. F. Rosen, Department of Government, London School of Economics, Houghton Street, London WC2 2AE.

RANN Symposium

The Proceedings of the RANN 2 Symposium, presenting results of the November 1976, Second Symposium on Research Applied to National Needs (RANN), have been released by the National Science Foundation.

The RANN 2 Symposium was designed to bring together researchers, users of research in industry and government, and science policy-makers at the national, state, and local levels to report on current and prospective RANN activities over a broad range of areas and to foster the interchange of ideas and concerns between users and providers of research.

The Proceedings present a record of the substance of the symposium, including formal papers, questions and answers exchanged during the panel sessions, and summaries of the round-table discussions which address the relation between science and society, and the application of scientific and technological knowledge for socially useful purposes.

The Proceedings have been organized in six volumes: General Information and Plenary Sessions, Using Natural Resources, Improving Productivity, Coping With Man-Made and Natural Hazards, Improving Government Responsiveness to Public Needs, and Regulation.

Copies of the volumes, NSF 77-51 through NSF 77-56, are available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 for $17.00 per set. The stock number is 038-000-00343-7.

MYRDAL Prizes

The Evaluation Research Society will welcome nominations for its Myrdal Prizes honoring Gunnes and Alva Myrdal.

It is in their spirit that the Evaluation Research Society offers three Myrdal prizes for outstanding leadership and distinguished achievement in government, the sciences, and the human services.

In government, the prize is awarded for creative and original leadership in the conceptualization and sponsorship of new intellectual work in the field of evaluation. In 1977 this Prize was awarded to Dr. Howard R. Davis, Chief, Mental Health Services Development Branch, NIMH.

In science, the prize is given to the individual having made a significant contribution to advancing the conceptualization or development of methodologies used in evaluation research. In 1977 this Prize was awarded to Dr. Donald Campbell, Professor of Psychology, Northwestern University.

In human services delivery, the prize is given to the individual who has done the most to upgrade service delivery through the application of evaluation. In 1977 this Prize was awarded to Dr. Julius Richmond, Assistant Secretary for Health, HEW.

Nominations are solicited for each of these three prizes to be awarded next year. Nominations of individuals, including supporting material regarding their achievements, should be sent no later than May 1, 1978, to the Chair of the Myrdal Prizes Committee: John R. Barry, Department of Psychology, University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia 30602.

Final selection of the prize winners from among the nominations received will be made by majority vote of the Myrdal Prizes Committee. Awards will be presented at the Annual Meeting of the Evaluation Research Society in Washington, D.C. in October 1978.

INTERFUTURE Program

Interfuture, a non-profit educational organization conducting programs for college students for cross-cultural research abroad will focus its 1978-79 projects on Surinam, Belgium, Britain, Holland, Ireland, Ivory Coast, Jamaica, and Ghana.

InterFuture study projects range over many fields, including social sciences, peace studies, humanities, history, education, environmental studies, the arts, business, urban problems, ethnic and women's studies, the media, and public health. IF Scholars have designed study projects on such topics as multinational corporations, black theater, folk arts, sports exchanges, labor-management relations, educational reform, rural development, sickle cell anemia testing programs, nutrition, family planning, the elderly, political protest groups, ocean pollution, wildlife preservation, and television news analysis.

Once a student selects a topic, InterFuture gives her or him a network of support which includes training conferences, continuing advice, and international contacts. Credit-worthiness of each student's project is determined by his or her home college or university as part of work toward the bachelor's degree. Nearly 100 students have been InterFuture Scholars since the program was established in 1969.

For further information write to InterFuture, Suite 420, Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

PI SIGMA ALPHA

Six new chapters of Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Political Science Honor Society, have recently been installed. The chapters are at Wright State University, Indiana University at South Bend, Northeastern Illinois University, University of San Diego, Susquehanna University, and Alma College.

New England CONGRESSIONAL Caucus

The New England Congressional Caucus (NECC) is seeking political scientists interested in spending their sabbatical leave in a policy making position. Faculty members would work with the New England Congressional Delegation in substantive areas such as energy, transportation, and welfare reform. No financial support is available. For further information please contact Robert L. Pratt, Executive Director, NECC, 53 D Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003, (202) 543-3396.

JUDICATURE Journal

Judicature, the refereed journal of the American Judicature Society, is published ten times a year and circulated to 33,500 judges, lawyers, social scientists, and others concerned with the effective administration of justice. It serves as a forum for empirical analysis and policy discussions about court organization, operation, and personnel, and court-related activities. Recent issues, for example, included articles on congestion and delay in courts, jury selection and decision making, unionization of state court employees, juvenile justice, bar polling, misdemeanor courts, and lower court judges' perceptions of the Supreme Court.

Manuscripts submitted for consideration should normally be 15-20 double-spaced typewritten pages, but longer and shorter manuscripts will be considered. Footnotes should be used in moderation, not as extensively as in a law review article. Two copies of the manuscript are required. Authors are notified of the referees' decision within 30 days and most accepted articles are published within six months.

Submit manuscripts and inquiries to: David Richert, Editor, Judicature, 200 West Monroe Street, Suite 1606, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

POLICY STUDIES Directory

The Policy Studies Organization is currently compiling information for a Policy Studies Personnel Directory. The Directory will include entries for all persons who have a research, teaching, or practitioner's interest in specific policy problems or general policy analysis approaches, and who would like to be part of a directory including such people. Users of the Directory will be persons who would like to determine who is doing related research or other policy activities with whom they might be able to share ideas to their mutual benefit. Other users may include government agencies, funding sources, academic recruiters, and research centers. The indexes and cross-reference lists will facilitate such uses.

To be included in the Directory send to the Policy Studies Organization, 361 Lincoln Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois 61801: (1) your name; (2) your title and affiliation; (3) your address; (4) your academic degrees, indicating years, fields involved, and schools from which the degrees were received; (5) the specific policy problems up to five in which you are interested, such as environmental protection, health, criminal justice, foreign policy, or other specific problems; (6) the general approaches up to five in which you are interested, such as policy administration, comparative policy, research methodology, research utilization, policy formation, or other general approaches; (7) the articles or books you have published up to five that deal with the causes or effects of alternative public policies; and (8) your current policy research activities in a maximum of 100 words. Questionnaire forms covering these items are being sent to past and present members of the Policy Studies Organization and to subscribers to Policy Analysis and Public Policy, although anyone who wants to use the questionnaire form can obtain one from the Policy Studies Organization.

This is the fifth in a series of directories published by the Policy Studies Organization. The other four deal with (1) policy studies activities of political science departments and interdisciplinary programs, (2) policy research needs of governmental agencies, (3) policy grants available from funding sources, and (4) activities of policy research centers. Each of the five directories is available from the Policy Studies Organization for $2.50 or available free to PSO members as part of their $8.00 per year dues. A free copy of the Policy Studies Personnel Directory will also be sent to all persons who are included in the directory and to policy studies teaching and research programs.

HAROLD INNIS Clearinghouse

In recognition of the contributions of Harold Innis, the distinguished Canadian social scientist, the Harold Innis Foundation is establishing a clearinghouse for studies relating to him and his work. To this end, the Foundation is soliciting names of scholars interested in the work of Innis and copies of or references to any material, completed or in progress, related to his works. Memberships in the Foundation are welcome at $10.00 a year.
