ADVICE TO CONTRIBUTORS

Polar Record publishes original articles (2000 to 8000 words) and notes (usually less than 2000 words) of current and historic polar interest. Manuscripts, maps and photographs are accepted on the understanding that they are original, do not infringe copyright, and are not currently being offered elsewhere. Receipt is acknowledged; manuscripts rejected after refereeing will normally be returned to the author within six to eight weeks. Where the subject matter is appropriate, the Editor is usually prepared to advise authors on ways of making their manuscripts acceptable.

Presentation. Type manuscripts double-spaced and with 3 cm wide margins, on one side only of A4 or equivalent paper. Send two copies and keep one for reference. Give name, affiliation and address of each author on the title page, noting which author the Editor corresponds with. Follow the style in the most recent issue of Polar Record.

Articles should start with an abstract of 150–250 words and a table of major headings; secondary and tertiary headings are not listed. Please indicate in text where illustrations and tables are to be inserted. Footnotes are discouraged; places where they are considered essential are marked in text with a superscript number, and the footnotes are listed at the end before the References.

Notes are short articles, generally of less than 2000 words; they do not require an abstract or table of headings, but long notes should end with a summary paragraph.

References, (essential ones only) are cited in text in the following forms: (Stirling 1981), (Stirling and Cleator 1981), (Stirling 1980; Cleator 1981, 1982), (Stirling and others 1981), reported by Stirling (1981, 1982). Full references are listed alphabetically at the end of the paper in the following forms:

LAURSEN, V. 1951. Bibliography for the Second International Polar Year, 1932–33. Copenhagen, Horshölm.

Reports

HATTERSLEY-SMITH, G. 1980. The history of the place names in the Falkland Islands Dependencies (South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands). British Antarctic Survey Scientific Reports, No 101.

References to privately printed or other unpublished reports and data are not accepted unless copies of the material are freely available from a named library or similar repository.

Style and spelling generally follow the Oxford English Dictionary and The Oxford Dictionary for Writers and Editors. Dates must be written in the form '1 January 1984' except in tables and figures, where they are abbreviated. Please use metric units (Imperial equivalents may be added in brackets where appropriate) and the 24-hour clock.

Tables should be kept as simple as possible, and typed on separate sheets. They will normally be fitted across the page, only exceptionally lengthwise. Drawings, maps and diagrams must be of professional standard, with lettering and numbers pencilled-in clearly, preferably on a transparent overlay. Authors may be charged for re-drawing if an illustration is inadequate. They should if possible allow for reduction in width by about one third to fit the page; drawings 16–18 cm wide are ideal.

Photographs (black and white only) that add substantially to the article or note will be welcome. Glossy prints with high contrast, about one third oversize, generally reproduce well.

A pamphlet of further guidance for potential authors is available from the Editor on request.

FRIENDS OF THE POLAR INSTITUTE

The association of Friends of the Polar Institute was established in March 1946. Anyone interested in polar exploration and research is welcome to become a Friend, and help in promoting the work of the Scott Polar Research Institute. Over the years the Friends, both as a group and individually, have assisted the Institute in many ways, notably by their advice and voluntary help, and through their subscriptions and contributions. Funds provided by the Friends have allowed the Institute to add to the library, archives and museum, to bind and repair manuscripts and old books, and to buy equipment and provide for other needs that could not be met from ordinary resources.

Friends receive the annual report of the Scott Polar Research Institute, the annual report of the Friends' committee (which shows how the funds have been allocated), notices of public lectures given in the Institute, and other communications. The minimum annual subscription is £2.50; covenanted subscriptions are especially welcome. Please address enquires, applications to join and donations to the Director's Secretary, Scott Polar Research Institute, Lensfield Road, Cambridge CB2 1ER.
