

Andrew D. Martin, assistant professor, department of political science, State University of New York, Stony Brook.

Sakah S. Mahmud, associate professor of political science, Transylvania University (KY).

Barry M. Mitnick, professor, Katz Graduate School of Business, University of Pittsburgh.

Matthew Reed, assistant professor of general education, The DeVry Institute (NJ).

Marilou M. Righini, acquisitions editor and consultant, Transnational Publishers, Inc.

Donna Lee Van Cott, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Richard O. Snyder, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Brian Weiner, assistant professor of politics, University of San Francisco.

Promotions

Regina Axelrod, professor, department of political science, Adelphi University.

Georgia Duerst-Lahti, professor, department of political science, Beloit College.

David Fott, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

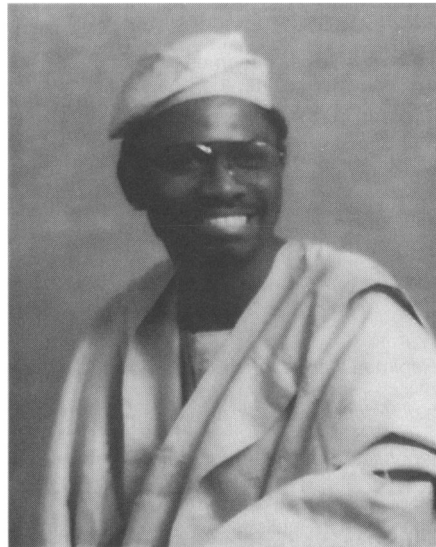

Leslie Hill, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Bates College.

Richard I. Hofferbert, distinguished professor, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Arie M. Kacowicz, senior lecturer (with tenure), department of international relations, Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

John McCormick, associate professor with tenure, Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

Gerardo L. Munck, associate professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Bamidele A. Ojo

Bamidele A. Ojo, associate professor with tenure, School of Political and International Studies, Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Melissa A. Orlie, associate professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

John A. Rapp, professor, department of political science, Beloit College.

Howard J. Wiarda, Leonard J. Horowitz Professor of Latin American Politics and Studies, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Charles Winslow, associate professor, Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis.

Retirements

Stephen P. Cohen, professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Michael C. Stratford, associate professor emeritus, department of political science, Central Michigan University.

Marvin G. Weinbaum, professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Steven J. Brams, professor, department of politics, New York University, will be a Visiting Scholar at the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City in 1998–99.

Vincent Kelly Pollard, lecturer, department of political science, University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Gregory Roof, visiting professor, department of political science, University of Houston; formerly University of Texas at Dallas.

Kenneth Shepsle, professor, department of government, Harvard University, will be London School of Economics Centennial Professor at the London School of Economics and Political Science in 1998–1999.

Awards

NAPA Book Awards

Jacob S. Hacker, Hartley Fellow in Governmental Studies at the Brookings Institution, and Paul C. Light, director of the public policy program of the Pew Charitable Trusts, each won National Academy of Public Administration Louis Brownlow Book Awards. Hacker won for The Road to Nowhere: The Genesis of President Clinton's Plan for Health Security (Princeton University Press, 1997), and Light won for The Tides of Reform: Making Government Work, 1945–1995 (Yale University Press, 1997).

McClain, Perry, King Elected to ICPSR Executive Committee

Paula D. McClain, professor of government, University of Virginia, Huey Perry, professor of political science and Chancellor's Fellow at Southern University, and Gary King, professor of government, Harvard University, were recently elected to the Executive Council of the Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) of the University of Michigan. McClain and Perry will serve four-year terms ending in 2002 and King will fill the remaining two years of a vacant seat.

Choice Names Outstanding Political Science Books for 1997

The following APSA members' (names in bold) books were chosen as priority purchases for undergraduate library collections by Choice magazine, the book review journal published by the Association of College and Research Libraries. The categories have been assigned by Choice.

Political Science

Robert E. Goodin and Hans Dieter Klingemann, eds., A New Handbook of Political Science (Oxford University Press).

Matthew Holden Jr., Continuity and Disruption: Essays in Public Administration (University of Pittsburgh Press).

Irving Louis Horowitz, Taking Lives: Genocide and State Power (Transaction Publishers).

Comparative Politics

Frances Hagopian, Traditional Politics and Regime Change in Brazil (Cambridge University Press).

Wendy Hunter, Eroding Military Power in Brazil: Politicians Against Soldiers (University of North Carolina Press).

Carol Skalnik Leff, The Czech and Slovak Republics: Nation versus State (Westview Press).

Célestin Monga (Linda L. Fleck and Célestin Monga, trans.), The Anthropology of Anger: Civil Society and Democracy in Africa (Lynne Rienner Publishers).

Elizabeth J. Perry and Li Xun, Proletarian Power: Shanghai in the Cultural Revolution (Westview Press).

International Relations

David H. Dunn, ed., Diplomacy at the Highest Level: The Evolution of International Summits (Macmillan [UK]/St. Martin's Press).

Martha Finnemore, National Interests in International Society (Cornell University Press).

Andrew J. Nathan and Robert S. Ross, The Great Wall and the Empty Fortress: China's Search for Security (W.W. Norton & Company).

Suisheng Zhao, Power Competition in East Asia: From the Old Chinese World Order to Post-Cold War Regional Multipolarity (St. Martin's Press).

Political Theory

James Bohman, Public Deliberation: Pluralism, Complexity, and Democracy (MIT Press).

Gregory G. Brunk, Donald Secrest, and Howard Tamashiro, Understanding Attitudes About War: Modeling Moral Judgments (Pittsburgh University Press).

Charles W. Dunn and J. David Woodward, The Conservative Tradition in America (Rowman and Littlefield Publishers).

Heinz Eulau, Micro-Macro Dilemmas in Political Science: Personal Pathways through Complexity (University of Oklahoma Press).

Amy Gutmann and Dennis Thompson, Democracy and Disagreement (Belknap Press/Harvard University Press).

Sanford Lakoff, Democracy: History, Theory, Practice (Westview Press).

Ruth Lane, Political Science in Theory and Practice: The "Politics" Model (M.E. Sharpe).

Michael P. Zuckert, The Natural Rights Republic: Studies in the Foundation of the American Political Tradition (University of Notre Dame Press).

U.S. Politics

Howard Ball, Hugo L. Black: Cold Steel Warrior (Oxford University Press).

Bruce Bimber, The Politics of Expertise in Congress: The Rise and Fall of the Office of Technology Assessment (SUNY Press).

James M. Glaser, Race, Campaign Politics, and the Realignment in the South (Yale University Press).

Stephen M. Griffin, American Constitutionalism: From Theory to Politics (Princeton University Press).

Louis Henkin, Foreign Affairs and the United States Constitution (Oxford University Press).

Loch K. Johnson, Secret Agencies: U.S. Intelligence in a Hostile World (Yale University Press).

Douglas L. Koopman, Hostile Takeover: The House Republican Party, 1980-1995 (Rowman and Littlefield Publishers).

Jessica Korn, The Power of Separation: American Constitutionalism and the Myth of the Legislative Veto (Princeton University Press).

Warren E. Miller and J. Merrill Shanks, The New American Voter (Harvard University Press).

Wayne D. Moore, Constitutional Rights and Powers of the People (Princeton University Press).

Alan Rosenthal, Drawing the Line: Legislative Ethics in the States (University of Nebraska Press).

John Gerard Ruggie, Winning the Peace: America and World Order in the New Era (Columbia University Press).

Ronald K. Vogel, ed., Handbook of Research on Urban Politics and Policy in the United States (Greenwood Publishing).

NCAPSA 1998 Pi Sigma Alpha Award

Norman J. Ornstein, Resident Scholar at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy, received the National Capital Area Political Science Association 1998 Pi Sigma Alpha Award at the NCAPSA's Spring Conference in March. The award is given to an individual with political science training who has made a significant contribution to public affairs. Ornstein is an election analyst for CBS News and a frequent commentator on The Lehrer Report, Nightline, and Face the Nation. His books include Intensive Care: How Congress Shapes Health Policy and Vital Statistics on Congress, both of which he coauthored with Thomas E. Mann. Through his commentary and publications, Ornstein has played a major role in public policy debates over topics as varied as the nomination procedures for presidential candidates, organizational reform in Congress, and health care policy.

SSRC Names Fellowship and Grant Award Winners

The Social Science Research Council, in conjunction with the American Council of Learned Societies, awarded fellowships and grants to the following political scientists, in the categories indicated:

International Predissertation Fellows

Melani Cammett, University of California, Berkeley

Majid Ezzati, Princeton University

George Gavrillis, Columbia University

Naoko Kada, University of California, San Diego

Michelle Kuenzi, Michigan State University

Gabriel Ondetti, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Chikako Ueki, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Meredith Weiss, Yale University

Eastern Europe–Dissertation Fellowships

Rawi Eugene Abdelal, Cornell University
Ann M. Grzymala-Busse, Harvard University

Eastern Europe–Predissertation Travel Grants

Robin S. Brooks, University of California, Berkeley

Eastern Europe–Language Training Grants

Stephen R. Bloom, University of California, Los Angeles
Brad A. Guitierrez, United States Air Force Academy

Eurasia–Dissertation Write-up Fellowships

Alexander Cooley, Columbia University
Elizabeth Pascal, University of Michigan

Near and Middle East–Predissertation Fellowships

Anne Marie Baylouny, University of California, Berkeley
Melani Cammett, University of California, Berkeley

South Asia–Bangladesh Fellowship Program, Predissertation Fellowship

Riaz Khan, University of Chicago

South Asia–Bangladesh Fellowship Program, Dissertation Fellowships

Fahimul Quadir, Dalhousie University

Eurasia–Advanced Research Grants

Randall Stone, University of Rochester

Japan–Advanced Research Grants (Japan–U.S. Friendship Commission)

Joyce Gelb, The Graduate Center, City University of New York

Japan–Postdoctoral Fellowships (Japan Society for the Promotion of Science)

Dajin Peng, University of South Florida

Paul A. Kowert, Florida International University
Daqing Yang, George Washington University

Near and Middle East–Postdoctoral Fellowships

Ali Ahmida, University of New England

Abe Fellowship Program

David Arase, Pomona College
John Campbell, University of Michigan
Peter Katzenstein, Cornell University
Robert Kneller, National Institutes of Health
Tsutomu Kono, United Nations University
Chieko Kitagawa Osturu, National Museum of Ethnology

Berlin Program for Advanced German and European Studies

Marc Howard, University of California, Berkeley

International Migration Program–Dissertation Fellowships

Patrick Joyce, Harvard University

International Migration Program–Minority Summer Dissertation Workshop

Ana Law, University of Texas at Austin
Reuel Rogers, Princeton University
Cara Wong, University of California, Berkeley

International Migration Program–Postdoctoral Fellowships

Michael Jones-Correa, Harvard University
Jane Junn, Rutgers University
Fred Krissman, Washington State University

Sexuality Research Fellowship Program–Postdoctoral Fellowships

Katie Gilmartin, University of California, Santa Cruz

SSRC–MacArthur Foundation Fellowships on Peace and Security in a Changing World–Dissertation Fellowships

Chandra Sriram, Princeton University
Jae-Jung Suh, University of Pennsylvania

SSRC–MacArthur Foundation Fellowships on Peace and Security in a Changing World–Postdoctoral Fellowships

Elizabeth Kier, University of California, Berkeley
Etel Solingen, University of California, Irvine

International Peace and Security–Research Workshops

Tarak Barkawi, King's College London, and Mark Laffey, Kent State University
Chip Gagnon, Cornell University, and Darini Rajasingham, International Center for Ethnic Studies, Colombo, Sri Lanka

Midwest Political Science Association Gives Best Annual Meeting Paper Awards

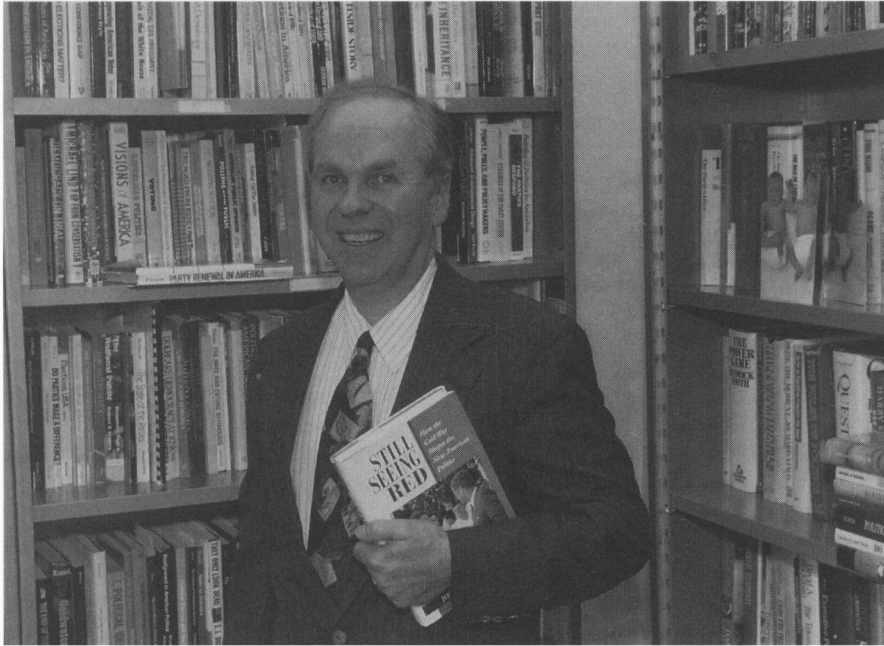

R. Michael Alvarez, California Institute of Technology, and Jonathan Nagler, University of California, Riverside, received the Robert H. Durr Award for the best paper applying quantitative methods to a substantive problem for “A New Approach for Modeling Strategic Voting in Multiparty Systems.”

Brandice Canes, Stanford University, received the Patrick J. Fett Award for the best paper on the scientific study of Congress and the Presidency for “The President’s Policy Influence from Going Public: A Formal and Empirical Analysis.”

Brandice Canes, Stanford University, received the Westview Press Award for the best paper delivered by a graduate student for “The President’s Policy Influence from Going Public.”

Jonathan Katz, California Institute of Technology, and Gary King, Har-

Kudos

John K. White, professor of politics at The Catholic University of America, was named the 1997 District of Columbia Professor of the Year by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education and the Carnegie Foundation. The Professors of the Year awards recognize excellence in undergraduate instruction. In 1997, CASE and the Carnegie Foundation gave the awards to professors in 48 states and the Virgin Islands.

White, who has taught at Catholic since 1988, was commended for his teaching style and lecturing ability. "I really like to be involved with students," White said. "Not just in terms of simple lecture format, but also engaging them in questions and answers."

White teaches several courses on the undergraduate and graduate level, including Introduction to American Politics, The American Presidency, National Elections, and American Political Parties and the Political Process. He often brings guests speakers into his classes and organizes trips to places like the U.S. Capitol so students can observe politics in action. He has received many teaching awards, including The Alpha Delta Gamma Instructor of the Month Award for December 1996 and SUNY, Potsdam's President's Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1985.

White received his Ph.D. from the University of Connecticut in 1980 and has published extensively on American political parties, voting behavior, and the American presidency. His latest book, Still Seeing Red: How the Cold War Shapes the New American Politics, was published last year by Westview Press.

vard University, received the Pi Sigma Alpha Award for the best paper delivered during the MPSA 1997 annual meeting for "A Statistical Model for Multiparty Electoral Data."

Mary Ann R. Tetrault, Iowa State University, received the Sophonisba Breckinridge Award for the best paper about women and politics for "Justice for All: Wartime Rape and Women's Human Rights."

Other Awards

Donald F. Kettl, professor of political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison, received a Mid-Career Award from the university in recognition of his outstanding research.

Donald P. Kommers, professor of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame, was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws by the law faculty of the University of Heidelberg, Germany.

Ellis Krause, professor of political science, University of California, San Diego, was awarded an Abe Fellowship to pursue work on "Japan and APEC: Regional Multilateralism and US-Japan Relations." He will conduct his research primarily at the Institute of Social Sciences at the University of Tokyo.

Martha Kumar, professor, Towson State University, received the Regents Faculty Award for Scholarship/Research, which is given annually by the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland System. Professor Kumar is the first faculty member at Towson State to win the award.

Diana Mutz, associate professor of political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison, received a H.I. Romnes Faculty Fellowship from the university. The Fellowship is awarded to recently tenured faculty with outstanding records of research and publication.

Rosemary O'Leary, professor of public and environmental affairs, Indiana University, has been awarded the 1998 Indiana University President's Award for Distinguished Teaching, the highest teaching award given in Indiana University's state-wide system.

T.J. Pempel, professor of political science, University of Washington, was awarded an Abe Fellowship for work on "Financial Deregulation, Politics, and Social Cohesion: A Comparative Study." His results will be published in several articles as well as a book. While in Japan he will be affiliated with Hitotsubashi University.

Carol Skalnack Leff, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-

Champaign, was recipient of the 1997–98 William F. Prokasy Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Stanley A. Renshon, professor, City University of New York, whose book High Hopes won the Richard E. Neustadt Award in 1997, was also named the 1998 winner of the National Association for the Advancement of Psychoanalysis' Gradvia Award for the best published work that advances psychoanalysis in the category of biography.

Graham K. Wilson, professor of political science, University of Wisconsin, Madison, received a Vilas Associates Award from the university to support his current research into how the world role the United States has assumed over the last 50 years has shaped the country's domestic politics.

M. Crawford Young, Edwin Young Professor of Political Science, University of Wisconsin, Madison, received the University of Wisconsin's 1997 Hilldale Award for the Social Sciences in recognition of his outstanding performance in research, teaching, and service.

Lupia Wins National Academy Award

Arthur Lupia, a political scientist from the University of California, San Diego, was selected by the National Academy of Sciences to receive its Award for Initiatives in Research that honors a scientist less than 35 years old for pathbreaking work. Lupia is the first political scientist chosen for this honor. Below is reprinted the citation read at the awards ceremony at the National Academy on April 27 and a portion of Lupia's response.

Citation for Arthur Lupia delivered by Samuel H. Preston, for the selection committee.

Social scientists are fond of saying that "God gave physics all the easy problems." Be that as it may, the social sciences surely have more than their share of difficult problems.

Tonight's prize winner, Arthur Lupia, has not shied away from the challenge. He seeks to understand political decision making using information theory and game theory among other tools. His two major streams of application are to the general public in electoral settings and to elites in governing settings. The overriding question is whether and how people can achieve their goals when they possess at best only a small fraction of relevant information.

In answering this question, he applies mathematical models, laboratory experiments, survey instruments, and computer simulations. By showing under what circumstances politics does and does not lead to outcomes that properly reflect the interests of relevant parties, he has helped lay a firmer foundation for our political institutions. These results are brought together in a highly original 1998 book with Matthew McCubbins entitled, The Democratic Dilemma: Can Citizens Learn What They Need to Know?

His nominators universally refer to him as the leading political scientist of his generation. We are proud to give the National Academy of Sciences Award for Initiatives in Research to Arthur Lupia.

Excerpts from Arthur Lupia's acceptance speech

Along the way, many people and institutions have helped me pursue a life in science. I want to thank a few of them. Thank you, Cal Tech, Peter Ordeshook, Richard McKelvey, and Ramy Farid. Thank you, UC San Diego, Sam Popkin, and Kaare Strom. And thank you, Mat McCubbins, for your friendship and for sharing your tremendous intellectual vision.

I want to thank the American Political Science Association. The forum you provide for such a broad exchange of scholarly ideas is far more valuable than most people appreciate. You make me proud to be a political scientist.

Thank you Political Science Division of the National Science Foundation, for directing so many of your resources to scholars who are committed to the scientific study of politics. [And] thank you, Cambridge University Press for publishing our book, The Democratic Dilemma.