Managing Editor: JUDITH A REES, Department of Geography, London School of Economics and Political Science, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE, UK

Executive Editors: DAVID K C JONES & DEREK DIAMOND, London School of Economics and Political Science, Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE, UK

Geoforum is concerned with all aspects of the management of the human environment; an area of study broadly defined to encompass urban and regional planning, industrial development, resource allocation and the management of physical environmental systems. It is an international, multi-disciplinary journal, global in outlook, integrative in approach and policy oriented.

Geoforum provides rapid publication of original research papers, reports and reviews. The editors concentrate on publishing results of applied research of an international and interdisciplinary character, particularly that which promotes better understanding of the complex interrelationships that exist within and between the physical and socio-economic systems, and which helps forge links between the natural and social sciences. There are also special theme issues designed to provide a full treatment of topical, contentious and important questions.

STUDIES IN POLAR RESEARCH

The Antarctic Treaty Regime

Law, Environment and Resources

Edited by GILLIAN D. TRIGGS

Under the General Editorship of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law

Based on an international conference, this book examines the legal structure established by the Antarctic Treaty, and discusses the legal, political and environmental issues raised. With contributions from some of the leading workers in this field, The Antarctic Treaty Regime puts the important question of the international regulation of the Antarctic into an accessible modern framework.

'... the most valuable review of the Antarctic Treaty system I have seen. It should be used as a ready reference by anyone with an Antarctic interest.'

New Scientist

239 pp. 1987 0 521 32766 0 £30.00 net

Antarctica: The Next Decade

Report of a Study Group Chaired by SIR ANTHONY PARSONS

In this survey, a study group, brought together by the David Davies Memorial Institute of International Studies, looks at the political and environmental questions raised by potentially conflicting interests in the Antarctic with ever growing international interest in the area as a source of important mineral resources.

Together with The Antarctic Treaty Regime, this forms an authoritative basis for the study of the Antarctic Treaty and its future.

'... both original and controversial. And anyone with an interest in this stark but beautiful continent would do well to examine (it).'

Antarctic Mineral Exploitation

The Emerging Legal Framework

FRANCISCO ORREGO VICUÑA

In this book, Professor Orrego Vicuña examines in depth the legal framework – the Antarctic Treaty, sovereignty, jurisdiction – as it relates to the exploitation of Antarctic minerals. This timely survey will attract a wide readership among those with a professional interest in Antarctic affairs.

INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH IN THE ANTARCTIC

Richard Fifield,
Managing Editor, New Scientist

The continent, seas, and atmosphere of the Antarctic constitute one of the greatest natural laboratories for modern science. The research undertaken in the Antarctic is concerned with topics as diverse as solar wind, plasma physics, radio research, ocean circulation and mixing, glaciation, climate history, weather phenomena, the study of a range of organisms (including krill, whales, fish, seals, birds, and lowly plants), the survival of life forms at low temperature, and the impact of man on a pristine environment.

SCAR, the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research, was established to coordinate the research programmes of the many nations active in the region. This book is based on special reports from SCAR's many working groups.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Carleton University Press announces TWO NEW TITLES!

Griffith Taylor: Antarctic Scientist and Pioneer Geographer

by Professor Marie Sanderson explores Taylor's colourful career, including his post-graduate work at Cambridge, his stint as chief geologist on the Scott Antarctic Expedition, and his development of university geography departments in both Sydney, Australia, and Toronto, Canada. Sanderson brings the story of this pioneer of "cultural geography" to life through extensive use of his journals, correspondence, and personal archives.

Advertising

Prices appear in the advertisements section; for details apply to the Editor or to the publishers.

Advice to contributors

Polar Record publishes original articles (2000 to 8000 words) and notes (usually less than 2000 words) of current and historic polar interest. Manuscripts, maps and photographs are accepted on the understanding that they are original, do not infringe copyright, and are not currently being offered elsewhere. Receipt is acknowledged; manuscripts are submitted to referees and any rejected will normally be returned to the author within six to eight weeks. Where the subject matter is appropriate, the Editor is usually prepared to advise authors on ways of making their material acceptable.

Presentation

Typescripts should be double-spaced with 3 cm margins, on one side only of A4 or similar paper. Send two copies and keep one for reference. Give name, affiliation and address of each author on the title page, noting which author the Editor corresponds with. Follow the style of articles and notes in the most recent issue of Polar Record.

Articles should start with an abstract of 150-250 words and a table of major headings; secondary and tertiary headings are not listed. Indicate in margins where tables and illustrations fit. Footnotes are discouraged; places where they are considered essential are marked in text with a superscript number, and the footnotes are listed at the end before the References.

Notes are short articles, generally of less than 2000 words. They do not require an abstract or table of headings, but either the first or the final paragraph should summarize the content.

References (essential ones only, please) are cited in text; full references appear in the listing under References at the end; for forms of citations and references see the most recent issue of Polar Record. Authors alone are responsible for the accuracy of their references. References to privately printed or other unpublished reports and data are not accepted unless copies of the material are freely available from a named library or similar repository. Tables should be kept as simple as possible and typed on separate sheets. They will normally be fitted across the single- or double-column page, only exceptionally lengthwise.

Illustrations. Drawings, maps and diagrams must be of professional standard, with lettering and numbers pencilled in clearly. Authors may be charged for re-drawing if an illustration is inadequate. They should if possible allow for about one-third reduction in width to fit a column (7.8 cm) or page (16.4 cm). Photographs (black and white only) that add substantially to the material are welcome. Glossy prints with high contrast, about one-third oversize, generally reproduce well.

Contributions on disc

The Editor welcomes contributions on floppy discs. The most suitable format is Apple Macintosh 3.5" disc. Output from a wide variety of word processing packages can be accepted, but in case of doubt, a MacWrite-compatible document should be produced. Diagrams also can be transferred on Macintosh discs. Discs from other microcomputers may be acceptable if the text is in the form of an ASCII file, with no word processing codes. TAB characters are acceptable. Currently, Polar Record can accept discs from Acorn BBC and Torch microcomputers, Amstrad PCW series microcomputers and, less readily, IBM PC compatible machines (5.25" discs only). If in doubt, please consult the Editor.
