

Notes on Contributors

Peter Lipton

Professor of the History and Philosophy of Science at the University of Cambridge and Fellow of King's College. Author of Inference to the Best Explanation (Routledge, 1991).

Philip Hugly

Professor of Philosophy at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. His current research focuses on Wittgenstein, Frege and Russell. He and Charles Sayward recently published Intensionality and Truth.

Charles Sayward

Professor of Philosophy at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. His current research focuses on the philosophy of mathematics. He and Philip Hugly recently published Intensionality and Truth.

Thomas Baldwin

Professor of Philosophy at the University of York. He has published G. E. Moore (Routledge, 1990) and edited new editions of some of Moore's works. He was a subject editor (20th century philosophers) for the new Routledge Encyclopedia of Philosophy (Routledge, 1998), and is currently writing an introduction to recent philosophy.

Stewart Candlish

Teaches in the Department of Philosophy at the University of Western Australia. Author of the articles 'Bradley, Francis Herbert' and 'Private Language Argument' in The Routledge Encyclopedia of Philosophy.

Charles D. Tarlton

Teaches political theory at The University at Albany, New York. He has, in recent years, written about Bentham, Locke, and Hobbes, which work had appeared both in the United States and the United Kingdom. He is currently working on the literary analysis of the political writings of Machiavelli and on political aspects of the moral philosophy of F. H. Bradley.

Rom Harré

Emeritus Fellow of Linacre College, Oxford, and Professor of Psychology at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. His work includes studies in the philosophy of physics and philosophy of psychology.

Philippe Mongin

Directeur de recherche, THEMA, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique & Université de Cergy-Pontoise (France).

Notes on Contributors

Nathalie Sigot

Professeur de sciences économiques, Université de Besançon and member of the Centre d'Histoire de la Pensée Economique (University of Paris I) and of the ERSI (University of Picardie). Her research concerns the history of economic thought, and more precisely Jeremy Bentham and the history of utilitarianism.