

Announcements

The INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION (IEHA) will hold its fourteenth World Congress in Helsinki, Finland, in August 2006. The Congress will last five days. Each day will be divided into four time blocks of ninety minutes each (two before lunch and two after lunch).

The scientific program of the Congress will have approximately one hundred sessions spread over five days of meetings. The IEHA welcomes sessions on all topics in economic history, history of economics, demographic history, social history, urban history, cultural history, gender studies, methodological aspects of historical research, and related fields. The IEHA particularly wants to attract sessions on the period before 1800 and on countries other than those of Western Europe and North America. Organizers will be given wide discretion to shape the format of sessions.

There are two calls for session proposals. The deadline for the first call was April 30, 2003. The deadline for the second is January 31, 2005. No distinction will be made between sessions submitted in reply to the first or second call for papers. For more information, please contact:

THE HAGLEY MUSEUM AND LIBRARY. CALL FOR PAPERS: For its 2004–05 research seminar series, the Center for the History of Business, Technology, and Society at the Hagley Museum and Library invites paper proposals from advanced scholars in the history, sociology, or anthropology of work, technology, and/or enterprise. We welcome applicants who are developing or researching questions, issues, or topics that lie beyond dissertation revision and publication, that is, “second book” or later projects. Hagley will cover travel and local expenses and will also provide an honorarium to seminar presenters. All papers will be precirculated, and each session will open with one or more formal comments on the text.

Deadline for submissions is April 9, 2004. Kindly send a one- to two-page statement regarding the work in progress and a short vita to:

Dr. Roger Horowitz
Hagley Museum and Library
P.O. Box 3630

GRANTS-IN-AID: The Hagley Museum and Library offers short-term grants-in-aid for scholarly research in the imprint, manuscript, pictorial, and artifact collections. They are designed to assist researchers with travel and living expenses while using the research collections. Scholars receive a stipend, make use of the research holdings, and participate in the programs of the Center for the History of Business, Technology, and Society. These grants are to support serious scholarly work. They are available to both degree candidates and senior scholars and writers working independently, as well as to college and university teachers, librarians, archivists, museum curators, and scholars from fields other than the humanities. Scholars are expected to participate in seminars, which meet periodically, as well as attend noontime colloquia, lectures, and other public programs offered during their tenure. Low-cost housing may be available on the museum grounds. Stipends are for a minimum of two weeks, a maximum of two months, at no more than $1,400 per month.

HENRY BELIN DU PONT FELLOWSHIPS: These fellowships honor the memory of Henry Belin du Pont, a founding trustee and long-time supporter of Hagley. The Henry Belin du Pont Memorial Fund supports access to, and use of, Hagley's research collections. The fellowships are intended to support serious scholarly work. They enable scholars to pursue advanced research and study in the library, archival, and artifact collections of the Hagley Museum & Library. Applicants must be from out of state, and preference will be given to those whose travel costs to Hagley will be higher. Fellows are expected to participate in seminars, which meet periodically, as well as attend noontime colloquia, lectures, and other public programs offered during their tenure. Low-cost accommodations may be available on the museum grounds. Stipends are for a minimum of two months and a maximum of six months, at no more than $1,400 per month.

Deadlines for 2004 for both the grants-in-aid and the Henry Belin du Pont Fellowships are June 30 and October 31. To apply, please visit the Hagley Web site: <http://www.hagley.lib.de.us/grants.html>.

HAGLEY–WINTERTHUR FELLOWSHIPS in ARTS and INDUSTRIES. A cooperative program of short- to medium-term research fellowships for scholars interested in the historical and cultural relationships between economic life and the arts, including design architecture, crafts, and the fine arts. Fellows receive a stipend, make use of the rich research collections of both the Winterthur Museum, Gardens, and Library (www.winterthur.org) and the Hagley Museum and Library. The fellowships are intended to support serious scholarly work. They are available to degree candidates and senior scholars, as well as applicants without advanced degrees. Applications are welcome from scholars and writers working independently, as well as college and university teachers, librarians, archivists, museum curators, and scholars from fields other than the humanities. As much as possible, recipients should be prepared to devote their full time to the fellowship for the duration of their appointment. As centers for advanced study in the humanities, Hagley and Winterthur are focal points for a community of scholars. Fellows are expected to participate in seminars, which meet at both institutions, as well as attend noontime colloquia, lectures, and other public programs offered during their research stay. Low-cost accommodations may be available at both institutions. Stipends are for a minimum of one month and a maximum of six months, at no more than $1,400 per month.

The application deadline is December 1, 2004. To apply, please contact:

HENRY BELIN DU PONT DISSERTATION FELLOWSHIP. This fellowship is designed for graduate students who have completed all course work for the doctoral degree and are conducting research on their dissertation. We invite applications from Ph.D. candidates whose research on important historical questions would benefit from use of the Hagley Museum and Library's research collections. Applicants should demonstrate superior intellectual quality, present a persuasive methodology for their projects, and show that there are significant research materials at Hagley pertinent to their dissertation. This is a residential fellowship with a term of four months. The fellowship provides $6,000, free housing on Hagley's grounds, use of a computer, mail and Internet access, and an office. Recipients are expected to have no other obligations during the term of the fellowship, to maintain continuous residence at Hagley for its duration, and to participate in events organized by Hagley's Center for the History of Business, Technology, and Society. At the end of residency the recipient will make a presentation at Hagley based on research conducted during the fellowship. Hagley will also receive a copy of the dissertation, as well as any publications aided by the fellowship.

The application deadline is November 15, 2004. Potential applicants are strongly encouraged to consult with Hagley staff prior to submitting their dossier. Inquiries and applications should be directed to:

JAMES J. HILL LIBRARY. Each year, the Hill Library sponsors the Hill Research Grants program, an international competition open to scholars whose projects require substantive use of the manuscript collections at the Hill Library.

The James J. Hill Papers (1856–1916) are among the most complete business and private papers of any major American industrialist of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The Louis W. Hill Papers (1886–1948) document many of the same subjects as those compiled by his father. Beyond that, Louis Hill was involved in the development of Minnesota's iron-mining industry, as well as the creation of Glacier National Park and the related tourist industry. His papers and those of his spouse, Maud Van Cortlandt Taylor Hill, also detail social and cultural activities from the Gilded Age to the post-World War II era. The Reed/Hyde Family Papers (1853–1960) document the business activities, family, and social lives of four generations. Samuel Reed was a civil engineer best known for his surveying and construction work on the Union Pacific Railroad, which, in 1869, became the nation's first transcontinental line. Other family members were involved in farming, milling, mining, and many other activities in the Upper Midwest and elsewhere.

The application deadline is November 1, 2004. For more information on the Hill Grants Program and to apply, please contact:

ALLIED SOCIAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATIONS MEETING call for papers: The Economic History Association will sponsor two sessions at the Allied Social Science Associations meetings in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on January 7–9, 2005. Dora Costa (MIT) and Ben Chabot (Michigan) are EHA's representative to the AEA-ASSA, and the program committee includes Werner Troesken (Pittsburgh). Authors interested in presenting papers should send a one-page proposal, including an abstract or description of the paper and all contact information to Lee\_Craig@ncsu.edu by May 1, 2004. Please note on the subject line that you are sending a proposal for the ASSA meetings, and either include the proposal in your message or end the documents as attachments in either Word or WordPerfect format.

Hard copies may be faxed to:
Lee A. Craig
AEA-ASSA Proposals
919-515-5613

We would like to make summaries of the papers available in advance of the ASSA meetings, and the Cliometric Society has agreed to publish them in the Society's newsletter. Authors submitting proposals should be prepared to send a 3,000-word summary to the Cliometric Society office by September 1, 2004. For further information, please contact Lee Craig at Lee\_Craig@ncsu.edu or 919-513-2870.

CENTRE for ECONOMIC POLICY RESEARCH and REVIEW of FINANCE JOINT CONFERENCE. A conference on “Early Securities Markets: Berlin and its Rivals in the Nineteenth Century” will be held on October 15–16, 2004, at Humboldt University, Berlin. The conference is supported by the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation and the Institut zur Erforschung der Wirtschaftlichen Entwicklung, University of Freiburg.

This conference will focus on the evolution and performance of early securities markets, a subject that allows for analysis of trading in largely unregulated markets. The impact of increasing regulation on market liquidity and price discovery and the consequences of improvements in communication technologies would also be suitable topics for examination.

Contributions will also be evaluated for publication in a special issue of the Review of Finance, which will be dedicated to Early Financial Markets and will be edited by William Goetzman and Colin Mayer. The journal’s submission fee is waived for conference participants. Contributors should indicate if they do not want their work submitted to the journal.

The deadline for submissions is June 15, 2004. Submissions should be sent to:

Ms. Gabriele Rothardt
Institut zur Erforschung der Wirtschaftlichen
Entwicklung Universität
Freiburg

GORDON CAIN FELLOWSHIP. The Gordon Cain Fellowship in Technology, Policy, and Entrepreneurship at the Chemical Heritage Foundation is open to Ph.D. scholars who plan to conduct historical research on the development of the chemical industries. The outcome of this research should further public understanding of the relation between technology, policy, management, and entrepreneurship, and shed light on the complex development of modern society and commerce. With Beckman Center staff, the Cain Fellow will organize a conference, inviting scholars to discuss the subject of the fellow's research. The period of fellowship is from September 2005 to May 2006, to be spent in residence at CHF. A stipend of $43,000 plus a small travel allowance will be offered. The deadline for applications is January 15, 2005.

Requirements consist of a research proposal (not more than 1,000 words) describing the project, the relevance of resources at CHF to the project, how the project will advance historical scholarship, and how the outcome might be published; a curriculum vitae; and two letters of reference (to be sent directly from the source to CHF).

CHEMICAL HERITAGE FOUNDATION TRAVEL GRANTS. CHF offers travel grants for research at its Othmer Library of Chemical History. Applicants are also encouraged to use other CHF resources, including its archival collections and oral histories, and to explore Philadelphia-area resources. These grants may be used for travel, food, lodging, and copying costs. For researchers within the United States, grants are in the range of $500. Individuals traveling internationally may be considered for grants in the range of $1,000.

The application deadline is September 1, 2004 for grants taken from October 1 to December 31, 2004.

The requirements are a one-page statement of the research project and the applicability of CHF's resources; a curriculum vitae; a budget estimate; and one letter of reference (to be sent directly from the source to CHF).

EDELSTEIN STUDENTSHIP. The Sidney M. Edelstein International Studentship in the History of the Chemical Sciences and Technologies supports dissertation research and writing. It is open to graduate students in the history of the chemical sciences and technologies who have completed all Ph.D. requirements except the dissertation. Typically the student's time is divided between the CHF in Philadelphia and the Edelstein Center for History and Philosophy of Science, Technology, and Medicine at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. The period of fellowship is September 2005–May 2006, to be spent in residence at CHF. A stipend of $16,000 and a travel allowance are also available. The deadline for applications is January 15, 2005.

Requirements are a research proposal (not more than 1,000 words) describing the project, the relevance of resources at CHF and the Edelstein Center to the project, how the project will advance historical scholarship, and how the outcome might be published; a curriculum vitae; and two letters of reference (to be sent directly from the source to CHF).
