Language, Society, and Paleoculture

ESSAYS BY EDGAR C. POLOMÉ

Edited by Anwar S. Dil. These 18 essays treat three aspects of a leading sociolinguist's research on language, culture, and society: the languages of eastern and central Africa, the process of creolization, and linguistic paleontology and the reconstruction of proto-cultures. Part I offers a sociolinguistic perspective on the language policies of Zaire and Tanzania. Part II contains papers on Swahili, tracing its development in Zaire and dealing with its modernization in Tanzania. Part III explores the theory of creolization. Part IV concerns the use of lexical data to probe the cultural and religious past of the Indo-Europeans and the Bantus. This is the 19th volume in the series Language Science and National Development. $20.00

The Highest Stage of White Supremacy

The Origins of Segregation in South Africa and the American South

JOHN W. CELL

Analyses the origins of segregation as a specific stage in the evolution of white supremacy in South Africa and the American South. Professor Cell argues that segregationism was a distinct system and ideology of race-class stratification, closely associated with urbanisation, industrialisation, and modern processes of state and party formation.

Black Soul White Artifact

Fanon's Clinical Psychology and Social Theory

JOCK McCULLOCH

Examines all Frantz Fanon's writings — not only The Wretched of the Earth, Black Skin White Masks and Toward the African Revolution, but also a number of clinical psychiatric studies written in Algeria and Tunisia which change the established view of his work. Dr McCulloch raises important questions about political control and the relationship between personality and politics.

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the business man, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
