New books on African Studies from Cass

Politicians and Soldiers in Ghana: 1966 - 1972

Dennis Austin and Robin Luckham (Eds.)

The editors have brought together a number of writers on Ghanaian politics in a well-directed account which has as its focus the general election of 1969, flanked by the two coups of February 1966 (the fall of Nkrumah) and January 1972 (the fall of Dr. Busia). The result is a brilliant illumination of the vital years which mark the transition from nationalist party rule to the inescapable dominance of the armed forces. 0 7146 3049 7 Cased £8.00 0 7146 4019 0 Paper £3.75

War and Society in Africa

Bethwell A. Ogot

Much has been written on the nature and role of the military in Africa, largely because of the numerous coups which have taken place since 1960. But we are unlikely to understand the military in independent Africa unless we also study the military in the pre-colonial and colonial period. This book explores aspects of African warfare by considering ten wars selected in Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Rhodesia and South Africa. The categories of war include civil and anti-colonial struggles and hostilities between European powers. 0 7146 4009 3 Paper £2.00

The Struggle for Secession 1966 - 1970: A personal account of the Nigerian Civil War

Ntiyong U. Akpan

Were Biafran secession and the resultant civil war inevitable? Was the one possible without the other? As Chief Secretary to the Military Government and Head of the Civil Service, the author was uniquely placed to provide the first authentic account of this Nigerian tragedy. Closely associated with the Biafran cause until the end of the war, Mr. Akpan offers an objective assessment of people and events and, in particular, of General Ojukwu. 0 7146 2930 8 Cased £5.95

Nigerian Studies: The religious and political system of the Yoruba

R.E. Dennett

Dennett's study of the Yoruba is designed to provide a clear and intelligible description of the beliefs and values which underlie traditional practices and customs. Written in 1910, it assesses the religious institutions and relates them to the political and economic life of the people. This fascinating and meticulous record is based upon the author's personal experience and the writings of Nigerian scholars of the early part of this century. 0 7146 1654 0 Cased £6.75 illus.

Government and Labour in Kenya: 1895 - 1963

Anthony Clayton and Donald Savage

Stretching from the end of the nineteenth century to the era of Tom Mboya and the development of trade unionism, this is the first major work on labour policy in Kenya. The full impact of the Western labour system and attitude to work, the relationship between coloniser and colonised, and the national spirit which it encouraged, are clearly revealed in this fresh and thoroughly researched account. 0 7146 3025 Cased £15.00

LONRHO: PORTRAIT OF A MULTINATIONAL

Cronje, Ling & Cronje

This is the first book on Lonrho, the London-based multinational company whose boardroom row last year caused so much public interest and led to an investigation by the Department of Trade and Industry. The authors examine the background and history of the company, its expansion in Black Africa, South Africa and Rhodesia, the Boardroom crisis and political reaction to it, and the company's entry into the Arab world. The book, an extraordinary example of investigative journalism into current affairs, provides a detailed insight into the high-level politics between a major multinational company and Third World leaders. £5.00 approx.

STRATEGIC HIGHWAYS OF AFRICA Guy Arnold & Ruth Weiss

There are a number of major strategic highways in Africa – existing and projected – whose opening up or destruction will have important political and economic repercussions. Fourteen African countries are landlocked, and rivers, roads and railways are therefore vital economic and political links. Amongst these are the TANZAM railway, and the Trans-Africa Highway. This book provides an overview of Africa's future by examining the significance of its strategic highways. The authors are well-known for their writing on Africa. Guy Arnold was formerly Director of the Africa Bureau and Ruth Weiss was, until recently, Economic Editor of The Times of Zambia. £5.00 approx.

THE DYING LION: FEUDALISM AND MODERNIZATION IN ETHIOPIA

Patrick Gilkes

AFRICAN CREATIVE WRITING SERIES

AC
WS

General Editor:

Professor Michael J C Echeruo

Michael Echeruo is now
Chairman of the Department of English at the University of Ibadan.

Longman's new African Creative Writing Series is being launched to provide readers with the very best in African plays, poetry and novels.

The first three titles to be published in the series are:

The Marriage of Anansewa

Efua T Sutherland

A comedy about the naive and rascally attempts of Ananse to make money by betrothing his daughter to several rich chiefs simultaneously. The action is engagingly presented through narrative, song, dance and dramatic action in the Ghanaian tradition.

Shaihu Umar

Umaru Ladan and Dexter Lyndersay

A play based on the novel by Sir Abubakar-Tafawa Balewa. The Hausa hero narrates the dramatic and moving story of his life while events he describes are taking place on stage until eventually life catches up with him and the old man himself must take part in the final scene.

The Sobbing Sounds

Omunjakko Nakibimbiri

The frank and revealing autobiography of an audacious young Ugandan with a lust for life.

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the businessman, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
