

NOTICE

The next issue of The American Slavic and East European Review, Volume XIV, No. 3, will contain the following articles:

Lazar Volin, Soviet Agricultural Policies

Arthur P. Mendel, N. K. Mikhailovskij and His Criticism of Russian Marxism

H. Gordon Skilling, The Formation of a Communist Party in Czechoslovakia

Leon I. Twarog, A Novel in Flux: V. Kostylev's Ivan Groznyj

George Gibian, C. G. Carus' Psyche and Dostoevsky

Demetrius Dvoichenko-Markov, A Rumanian Priest in Colonial America

VISSARION BELINSKI (1811-1848)

A STUDY IN THE ORIGINS OF SOCIAL CRITICISM IN RUSSIA

By HERBERT E. BOWMAN. The only book-length study in English of a major Russian social philosopher and literary critic—who was also one of the important figures who worked out the philosophical foundations of the Russian revolution of 1917. In relating Belinski to the thought of his time, the book provides an important study of a critical era in Russian thought. Belinski was the major contemporary critic of Pushkin, Gogol and Lermontov, as well as the first to give critical recognition to such new writers as Turgenev and Dostoevski. Moreover, his influence as a literary critic gave birth to the now dominant Russian literary tradition which regards literature as performing primarily a social function.

Mr. Bowman's study is designed for the specialist in Russian literature and affairs, as well as for the interested general reader. A special introduction to the cultural and intellectual situation in which Belinski was active has been included for the nonspecialized reader. $4.00

Through your bookseller, or from

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

44 Francis Avenue, Cambridge 38, Massachusetts

Write for circular describing the books of Harvard's Russian Research Center, Dept. A5-42

RUSSIAN PRONUNCIATION
THE RUSSIAN SYSTEM OF SPEECH HABITS IN SOUNDS, STRESS, RHYTHM, AND INTONATION TOGETHER WITH A RUSSIAN PHONETIC READER

By S. C. BOYANUS

A completely rewritten version of the Manual of Russian Pronunciation, completing and fully developing the author's significant study of phonetics, and incorporating a new phonetic reader. Material not contained in the earlier work includes: A new explanation of the stressed syllable in Russian, and of the unstressed vowel system; new accounts of the Russian vowel-glides, the i-i phoneme, and "Palatalization of Consonants in Juxtaposition in Russian." The Russian system of intonation is shown as a whole for the first time, and diagrams are provided showing its basic patterns.

A full description of Russian sounds is made, with reference to the symbols of the International Phonetic Association. Diagrams show correct tongue positions for Russian consonants and vowels. Special attention is given to those sounds that present particular difficulty for the English-speaking student. Numerous exercises provide the English translation as well as the phonetic transcription of the Russian.

The Phonetic Reader contains colloquial prose in narrative, descriptive, and conversational styles. The material in verse is highly poetic, yet conversational, and not a single obsolete or old-fashioned word is used. Selections are made from Pushkin, Tolstoy, Tchekov, and others.

The appendix contains an analysis of Dr. Boyanus' personal division of syllables in rapid speech, as well as a valuable new approach to describing the rhythm and quality of Russian speech.

The book is designed to meet the needs of students and teachers of Russian, providing a concise yet thorough treatment of Russian pronunciation. The description of Russian sounds, however, has been put in simple non-technical language for the student who is instructing himself. $7.50

For examination copies write to Dept. AS-41

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS
44 Francis Avenue, Cambridge 38, Massachusetts

Anthology of Old Russian Literature

Edited by AD. STENDER-PETERSEN with Stefan Congrat-Butlar

This distinctive and unique anthology embraces the periods of the Kievan, Old Muscovite, and New Muscovite literatures. It represents the most important works of these periods either in extenso or in characteristic fragments. An Introduction outlines the history of Old Russian literature, and shorter introductions give the background information for the various pieces. Each text (in Russian) is followed by detailed grammatical explanations and specialized annotations, and a Glossary defines all words in the texts unknown in modern Russian. $8.50

Ivan Turgenev: Rudin

Edited with an Introduction
by GALINA STILMAN

This edition of the Russian text of Rudin is intended for students of intermediate and advanced levels. The novel has been slightly abridged, but not rewritten or "adapted." The Introduction, in Russian, gives a brief biography of Turgenev and background information on Rudin. Explanatory notes and vocabularies have been supplied. Mrs. Stilman has based this student edition of Rudin on her several years of experience in using Rudin as a text in Russian classes at Columbia University. $3.50

Slavic Languages: A Condensed Survey

ROMAN JAKOBSON

An up-to-date summary of information about the Slavic languages, this second edition is a revision that includes the results of recent research. It contains a map and a survey of the present distribution of the thirteen living Slavic languages and a discussion of the major characteristics of each; a history of the literary and liturgic languages, with samples for each of them; and a concise survey of comparative phonology and comparative grammar. A selective bibliography is also included. $.80

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS, New York 27

BOOKS IN RUSSIAN

The Chekhov Publishing House announces the publication in the Russian language of the following titles:

Paul Bouryschkine—THE MERCHANTS' MOSCOW
350 pp. $3.00

Paul Bouryschkine, who was a prominent representative of Moscow's business circles, depicts in his memoirs the important role played by the Russian merchant class in the cultural and economic development of Russia.

Gregory Danilevsky—MOSCOW IN FLAMES
316 pp. $2.50

An exciting story of war and romance told against a background of Napoleon's conquest of Moscow in 1812. Written by Gregory Danilevsky, one of the most popular authors of the late nineteenth century, this historical novel tells the tale of a Russian noblewoman turned partisan and her efforts to join her officer fiance.

Julia Sazonova—A HISTORY OF RUSSIAN LITERATURE
(Ancient Period)
Vol. I 411 pp. $3.00 Vol. II 412 pp. $3.00

In the foreword to the 2-volume work "History of Russian Literature," Julia Sazonova points out that her aim is "to show the development of ancient Russian Literature, oral and written, from its sources to the establishment of the Muscovite Czarism."

Father George Shavelvsky—Recollections of the Last Head
Chaplain of the Russian Army and Navy
Vol. I 415 pp. $3.00 Vol. II 413 pp. $3.00

These recollections consist of two volumes dealing with the period in Russian life from 1910 to the collapse of the Russian anti-Communist "White" Army in the Civil War, touched off by the Bolshevik Revolution. Father Shavelvsky, who was appointed head chaplain in 1910 of the Russian Army and Navy, had a unique opportunity of observing the attitudes and moods of the armed forces throughout the Russian Empire.

Rev. Alexandre Semenov-Tian-Chansky—JOHN OF KRONSTADT 380 pp. $3.00

Already during his lifetime Father John of Kronstadt was revered and loved throughout Russia, whose coming ordeals he prophetically foretold. The author does not confine himself to writing a simple biography—he also initiates the reader into the inner life of Father John of Kronstadt, and shows the mainsprings of his inspiration and strength.

Write for catalogues and address all inquiries to

CHEKHOV PUBLISHING HOUSE

of the East European Fund, Inc.
387 Fourth Avenue
New York 16, N. Y.
