

"Among the most widely-cited journals of historical research in the United States."

Coming in volumes 23 and 24 of the

Journal of Social History 1989-1991

The Journal continues to define new areas of historical coverage and to clarify major interpretive issues in the field with groupings of articles on such subjects as:

New approaches in gender history

- male friendships
- women in immigration and migration
- sexual standards and sexual behavior

Problems in the history of deviance

- alcoholism
- prostitution
- rural and environmental history

New linkages: social history and legal history; social history and European Jews; medicine, witchcraft and social change; religion and social behavior.

Plus new research on social class, race, and frontier patterns, in the United States, Japan, Latin America, Europe, and Russia.

Plus many other articles and reviews, as the JSH maintains its role as a major outlet for historical research.

Also: The JSH discount book service to individual subscribers — 25 percent off on titles from 15 American and British publishers.

Annual subscription rates: $51 institutions, $25 individuals, $17 students

THE JOURNAL OF INTERDISCIPLINARY HISTORY

Robert I. Rotberg and Theodore K. Rabb, Editors

"JIH publishes many of the most exciting state-of-the-art articles that now appear anywhere in the United States. Provocative, original, and (not least) beautifully edited, the articles in this journal set the standard for historical writing today."

— Richard L. McCormick,
Rutgers University

"An immediate success, in a field that has had many failures and many mediocre enterprises, JIH has managed for the better part of two decades to remain a magazine of consistently high interest to a wide scholarly audience."

— Jack P. Greene, The
Johns Hopkins University

Unmatched by others in its field, The Journal of Interdisciplinary History is a highly distinguished publication that takes an exceptional approach to historical study. It incorporates the concepts and quantitative methods of the new history, bringing the best of economics, sociology, political science, archaeology, and demography into historical research.

Each issue of The Journal of Interdisciplinary History presents substantive articles and book reviews on topics spanning every geographical area and chronological period.

URBAN URBAN FORUM URBAN URBAN

URBAN FORUM is a new interdisciplinary journal dealing with all aspects of urban and rural development in South Africa. The journal, which is addressed to academics and professionals working in the field, is intended to help explore South Africa's urban options and to motivate fairer, more democratically managed and more efficient urban and rural development projects.

AFRICAN STUDIES is the longest-established journal of Southern African studies. It publishes articles on social anthropology, history, politics, African languages and sociology, continuing a tradition of excellence established by some of the pioneers of African Studies, while looking forward to the development of post-apartheid South Africa.

Introducing Radical History Review

Published for MARHO: The Radical Historians' Organization

Now published by Cambridge University Press, Radical History Review presents innovative scholarship and commentary that looks critically at the past and its historians from a non-sectarian perspective drawn from the political left. It scrutinizes conventional history and seeks to broaden and advance the discussion of crucial issues such as the role of race, class and gender in history. The journal offers original articles, review essays that examine the uses and abuses of history in the popular media, history museums and other public forums, and interviews with leading radical historians.

Each volume is illustrated with drawings, cartoons, photographs and other graphic art. Issues are often thematic and cover a wide range of geographic areas and subjects from sociology, politics, history and feminism to culture, literature, art and film. Recent themes have included: History from South Africa, The Women's Story, Film and History, Art and Ideology, and European Modernism.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal publishes research and reviews on all aspects of the African past. Contributors should keep in mind the general readership for whom they are writing and relate their findings specifically to relevant secondary literature.

Contributions may be sent to any of the Editors listed on the inside cover; they should be addressed to them at their Departments of History.

Authors may submit contributions in either English or French. They should not exceed about 7500 words (excluding notes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. Where appropriate, carefully drawn maps, photographs, and other illustrations should accompany the text. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words, should be attached on a separate sheet.

Contributors should seek clarity, brevity, and simplicity of expression and avoid long sentences and unduly lengthy or short paragraphs. They should closely observe the conventions set out below ('Format and Style').

Typescripts or print-outs must be checked personally before despatch, to remove accidental errors.

Page proofs will be sent to each contributor, if necessary by air mail. Corrections must be kept to a minimum: they should not include new material. Contributors should be prepared to return corrected proofs promptly. Authors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints and may purchase additional copies, provided that they order before publication on the form sent out with proofs.

Format and Style

Articles should be submitted in two copies. They should be typed in double-spacing throughout. Lines beginning new paragraphs should be indented. Ample margins (at least one inch left and right, one and one-half inches top and bottom) must be left, and all pages should be numbered.

Spelling (in English) may follow either British or American convention but must be consistent. African words and names should conform to the orthography of the International African Institute. In referring to people, Bantu prefixes should normally be omitted: thus 'Luganda', 'Buganda', but 'a Ganda', 'the Ganda'.

Quotations of more than forty words or so should begin on a new line, indented from the left-hand margin.

Italics should be used only for the names of publications and for words in languages other than English. Foreign words should be used only when necessary, and then only with a translation in parentheses.

Figures should be used for units of measurement, percentages (to be shown in the form '7 per cent', not '7%'), and any number which includes a decimal point. Spell out other numbers up to ten and multiples of ten up to one hundred ('seven', 'twenty', but '25', '127', and '10,000'). Cite dates in the form '12 February 1968' (or 'Feb.' in source-references). Express sequences in the briefest form possible ('68-9', but '1911-12', '1849-50').

Notes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article and typed double-spaced, separately from the text. Citations of references should be made only in the notes and not in the text, and there should be no separate bibliography. First references should be given in full, thus: S. Johnson, The History of the Yorubas (Lagos, 1921); E. W. Smith, 'Sebetwane and the Makololo', African Studies, xv (1956), 49-74. All subsequent references should be given in abbreviated form, thus: Johnson, History, 43; Smith, 'Sebetwane', 65, except that ibid. should be used to refer to an immediately preceding citation of a title. Loc. cit. and op. cit. should not be used. Do not abbreviate periodical titles. Archival citations should be as brief as is consistent with clarity. The identity and location of each archive must be fully spelled out where it is first cited.

Maps should be prepared where the topography is important for an understanding of the text. Maps should if possible be camera-ready and show all relevant information, but only such information as is mentioned in the text. Photographs should specifically enhance the text and carry full captions and attributions.
