THE COMING SOVIET CRASH

Gorbachev's Desperate Pursuit of Credit in Western Financial Markets

Judy Shelton, The Hoover Institution

“A fresh and timely perspective on the Soviet Union's economic predicament, its expanding activities in international financial markets, and their implications for Western policies. It warrants close attention by businessmen and policy makers, as well as the general public.”—The Wall Street Journal

“Informative and insightful... Shelton has a talent for making the arcane and complex seem vivid and clear. American public servants and businessmen could profit from reading Shelton's lucid exposition and listening to her sensible recommendations.”

—The New York Times Book Review

“An excellent analysis. Shelton understands... the political and social bureaucratic structure that underpins the Soviet economy. Required reading.”

—Richard Perle, Former Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Policy

1989 ISBN: 0-02-928581-X $22.50

BEYOND GLOBALISM

Remaking American Foreign Economic Policy

Raymond Vernon, Harvard University
and Debora Spar

“A masterful account of the changes in American foreign economic policy—and the world economy—since World War II.”
—Foreign Affairs

“A penetrating and sensitive examination of the changing interaction between the Executive and Congressional branches in the area of foreign economic policy—which is key to our ability to implement sensible policy formulations.”

—Anthony M. Solomon, Former President of the Federal Reserve Bank

“In this pathbreaking book, Vernon and Spar show why a sensible foreign economic policy is as crucial to our future as is a sensible defense policy—and why the former is so difficult to achieve. All who want to understand the real workings of international political economy should read this book and take to heart its lessons.”

COMMERCE AND COALITIONS

How Trade Affects Domestic Political Alignments

Ronald Rogowski

Why do countries differ so greatly in their patterns of political cleavage and coalition? Ronald Rogowski suggests a startling new answer: when international trade expands, owners of locally abundant factors in each country assert themselves more, while owners of scarce factors become defensive. When trade declines, the reverse occurs. In economic assumptions and universal sweep, this theory represents a major departure from previous interpretations.

RESISTING PROTECTIONISM

Global Industries and the Politics of International Trade

Helen V. Milner

"Why have governments not erected as many trade barriers in the troubled 1970s and 1980s as they did in the 1920s and 1930s? Professor Milner of Columbia argues that the increased internationalization of business has made many firms in many sectors of industry opponents of protectionism, and that this makes a difference to governments. Her evidence is drawn from six U.S. industries in the 1920s, six U.S. firms in the 1970s and six French industries, also in the 1970s. An enormous amount of good work has gone into this valuable study, which is meticulous in its analysis and sensible in its judgments."

DEADLY PARADIGMS

The Failure of U.S. Counterinsurgency Policy

D. Michael Shafer

"Surprisingly, given its importance in American foreign policy, counterinsurgency as a set of doctrines and a set of policies has received very little scholarly attention. This is by far the most ambitious work on the subject, and it succeeds admirably first in explicating the intellectual universe which gave rise to the doctrines and policies, and second in examining the ways in which the policies were actually carried out."

Academic Council on the United Nations System

United Nations Study Program: 1990-1991

Purposes

The Academic Council on the United Nations System announces the competition for the United Nations Study Program for the academic year 1990-91. Under the program, a number of UN officials will be selected for study programs in universities and a number of scholars from colleges and universities for assignment with UN offices at New York Headquarters, in Geneva and in the regional offices in Addis Ababa, Baghdad, Bangkok, Nairobi, Santiago and Vienna. Normally, assignments will be made for a full academic year, although shorter periods may be considered under special circumstances. The purposes of the program are threefold:

- to provide an opportunity for academic scholars to work in a UN program related to their areas of major research;
- to provide advanced training and intellectual growth for UN officials;
- to build close and enduring contacts between academic scholars and international officials in the UN system

Qualifications

For the academic year, 1990-91, the program is open to academic scholars on sabbatical leave or with other support, whose research is related to the problems of international cooperation and the activities of international organizations. The ACUNS Selection Committee will look for the following qualifications: a Ph.D. or its equivalent and evidence of research activity that would benefit from a period of direct involvement in UN programs; a continuing commitment to the study of international cooperation and international organizations; and capacity to work effectively in the international environment of the United Nations. UN assignments will be made through the Office of Human Resources Management at UN Headquarters in New York.

Application Procedures

Persons who are interested in applying for the program should write directly to:

Executive Director/ACUNS
The Dickey Endowment
207 Baker Library/Box 6025
Dartmouth College
Hanover, New Hampshire 03755

Applicants should submit a full curriculum vitae, a statement of 3 to 5 pages explaining the research they propose to pursue and how a UN assignment would contribute to their professional development, a statement on the source and length of research support and arrange to have three letters of recommendation sent directly to ACUNS. Where possible, an effort will be made to provide a travel and relocation allowance to augment research support. Applications must be received no later than December 30, 1989.

International Economic Update

INCOME TAXATION AND INTERNATIONAL MOBILITY

edited by Jagdish N. Bhagwati and John Douglas Wilson

Today millions of people work in countries where they are not citizens. Bhagwati and Wilson address the novel theoretical and practical problems that this growing phenomenon of international personal mobility creates for the design of a country's tax system. "Written by highly competent experts, this book provides many new insights into a very difficult subject." — Joseph A. Pechman, Senior Fellow Emeritus, The Brookings Institution

REAL EXCHANGE RATES, DEVALUATION, AND ADJUSTMENT Exchange Rate Policy in Developing Countries

Sebastian Edwards

"This is certainly the leading book for anyone interested in exchange rate issues in developing countries. The coverage from theory to case studies offers ample material for ministers in a bind and for students of the subject. It is well written, well documented and even lively."
—Rudiger Dornbusch, MIT

LESSONS FROM THE GREAT DEPRESSION

Peter Temin

Temin provides an integrated view of the depression, covering the experience in Britain, France, Germany, and the United States, describing the cause of the depression, why it was so widespread and prolonged, and what brought about eventual recovery. If there is one key lesson to be learned, the author points out, it is that political ideology drives economic events.

THE INTERNATIONAL DEBT CRISIS IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

edited by Barry Eichengreen and Peter Lindert

Eichengreen and Lindert bring together original studies that assess the historical record to see what lessons can be learned for resolving today's debt crisis. They address questions central to any informed discussion on the subject, and offer a wide variety of approaches to negotiation over defaulted loans between creditors and debtors.
