The Psychology of Female Serial Killers

A riveting scientific account of why and how female serial killers commit murder—and often get away with it.

You've heard of Ted Bundy and John Wayne Gacy. But have you heard of Amy Archer-Gilligan? Or Belle Gunness? Or Nannie Doss?

"Fascinating, ground-breaking, and long overdue... A must-read."

Patricia Pearson, author of When She Was Bad: How and Why Women Get Away with Murder and Wish You Were Here: A Murdered Girl, a Brother's Grief and the Hunt for a Serial Killer

"Highly accessible, extensively researched, and valuable to professional and lay reader alike."

Professor Frederick Toates and Dr. Olga Coschug-Toates, authors of Understanding Sexual Serial Killing

"Dr. Harrison's masterfully crafted book is a comprehensive, engaging, and thought-provoking insight into female serial homicide."

Dr. Clare S. Allely, author of The Psychology of Extreme Violence

"Her scholarship, insightful analysis, and penchant for detail make this book the best on the market. Excellent reading for those interested in why and how women become serial killers."

Dr. Eric W. Hickey, author of Serial Murderers and their Victims, 7th Edition

"This is a welcome and necessary addition to the small but growing body of literature that scrutinizes age-old preconceptions about serial murder."

Enzo Yaksic, author of Killer Data: Modern Perspectives on Serial Murder

Mission Statement

The European Journal of Sociology (EJS) is a peer-reviewed general sociology journal, founded in 1960 by prominent European scholars and intellectuals such as Raymond Aron, Ralf Dahrendorf, Tom Bottomore, Michel Crozier and Éric de Dampierre. EJS embraces the scientific ambitions of the historical and modern classics of the discipline and publishes original empirical and theoretical articles from all areas of sociology. The journal invites especially the submission of manuscripts concerned with the economy, the state, religion, law, science, politics, technology, and culture. Over the course of its history, EJS has developed a reputation for comparative and historical research and a keen interest in the evolution and diversity of cultures, civilizations, and institutions. The journal welcomes innovative qualitative and quantitative research and encourages sociologically informed contributions from anthropologists, economists, political scientists, historians, legal scholars, and philosophers. EJS aims at advancing theoretical debates in the discipline, disseminating sociological research from European countries, and enhancing interaction between European and non-European sociology. Contributions may take several forms: research articles, critical essays, key concept and state of the art papers. Extended book reviews appear in the journal's final issue each year.
