"An instant classic of military history."—CHALMERS JOHNSON

Nomonhan Japan Against Russia, 1939

Alvin D. Coox. This monumental two-volume work is the first in any language to describe the fierce undeclared war fought by Japan and the Soviet Union on the Manchurian border in 1939. Based on 30 years of research and hundreds of interviews, it chronicles Japan's crushing defeat at the hands of superior Soviet forces, provides a definitive analysis of the war's enormous impact on Japanese and Soviet strategies before and during World War II, and offers a complete history of Japan's famed Kwangtung Army. Illustrated with maps and 88 photographs. The set, $95.00

The Pacific Century Economic and Political Consequences of Asian-Pacific Dynamism

Staffan Burenstam Linder. Spectacular growth in the Pacific Basin is forcing a shift in the world's economic and political center of gravity, away from the Atlantic to the Asian-Pacific sector. Offering the general reader a firm grasp of Pacific dynamism and its impact on the global marketplace, this book speculates on how Pacific growth will influence economic and political strategies in other areas, how it will encourage stronger interregional partnerships, and how its effects can be used by non-Pacific nations to their own benefit. Cloth, $18.95; paper, $7.95

The Bakufu in Japanese History

Edited by Jeffrey P. Mass and William B. Hauser. For over half its history Japan has been ruled by warriors. During most of this time its form of government was the Bakufu (or shogunate): the Kamakura (1185-1333), the Muromachi (1336-1573), and the Tokugawa (1603-1867). These eight papers describe and analyze the curious phenomenon of this recurring form of military government, and represent the first attempt in English to understand Japan's experience with shogunates as one of the key themes of its history. $34.00

China and the Christian Impact

A Conflict of Cultures

JACQUES GERNET

Translated by JANET LLOYD

This invigorating new book turns the tables on traditional approaches to the history of China, presenting for the first time a coherent analysis of the impact of Christianity in the seventeenth century from the Chinese point of view. The aim is to reveal what the Chinese said and wrote about the Jesuit missionaries, and how their reactions reflect fundamental differences between Western and Chinese conceptions of the world.

The Holy War of Umar Tal

The Western Sudan in the mid-Nineteenth Century

David Robinson

Based on extensive study of archival materials, Arabic documentation and oral interviews, this is the first systematic study of a Muslim holy war which radically altered the lives of several million Senegalese, Malians and Guintans in the mid-nineteenth century. It places the holy war of Umar Tal in the context of similar wars of religion.

THE BRITISH ACADEMY
ORIENTAL DOCUMENTS · IX
LETTERS FROM ETHIOPIAN RULERS
Early and Mid-Nineteenth Century

Translated by David L. Appleyard and A. K. Irvine and annotated by Richard K. P. Pankhurst

The first half of the nineteenth century saw the beginning of what may properly be termed diplomatic communication between the rulers of Ethiopia and European governments, notably the British Government. The period was one of great importance in Ethiopian history, constituting the troubled prelude to the formation of the modern Ethiopian state.

The present collection contains twenty-nine letters (plus an appendix of a further seven documents), beginning with the earliest surviving missive from an Ethiopian ruler to the British Government, Ras Wäldä Sillase's letter of 1810 to George III. Most of the letters published here date from before 1855 and were sent by various figures: the puppet monarch Sahlä Dingil, and seven provincial rulers, Ras Wäldä Sillase and Däğazmač Säbagadis of Tigre, Ras Wibe of Tigre and Sämen, Ras Ali Alula of Bägemdär, Kings Sahlä Sillase and Haylä Mäläkot of Šäwa, and Nä'ib Idris of Arkiko. For the sake of completeness a number of letters pertaining to Emperor Tewodros (r.1855-68) have been included, which were omitted from the earlier volume in the series.

Catalogue of Arabic Manuscripts in The Library of the Institute of Ismaili Studies

ADAM GACEK

The library of The Institute of Ismaili Studies, London, holds a sizeable number of manuscripts in Arabic, Persian and Khojki. The collection of Arabic manuscripts covers a variety of subjects, with a clear preponderance of Shiite material. The Catalogue is divided into two volumes, the first of which describes the Ismaili literature. Both volumes (419 main entries) are preceded by a short introduction on the palaeography and codicology of the collection, and contain over 130 illustrations, of which five are in colour. The entries are arranged alphabetically by title, and the Catalogue is provided with a wide range of indexes, some in the vernacular, including an index of incipits, dated manuscripts and watermarks.

Asian Power and Politics

The Cultural Dimensions of Authority

LUCIAN W. PYE, with MARY W. PYE

In a major new book, Lucian Pye reconceptualizes Asian political development as a product of cultural attitudes about power and authority. He not only contrasts the great traditions of Confucian East Asia with the Southeast Asian cultures and the South Asian traditions of Hinduism and Islam, but also explores in depth the national differences within these larger traditions. The result is a dramatic advance in the theory of comparative political cultures.

The book revitalises Asian political studies on a plane that comprehends the large differences between Asia and the West and at the same time is sensitive to the subtle variations among the various Asian cultures. Its comparative perspective will provide indispensable insights to anyone who wishes to think more deeply about the various paths being followed by Asian states in modernising.

The Sculpture of India, 3000 BC–AD 1300

PRAMOD CHANDRA

Among the many artistic events of 1985 and 1986 devoted to the history and culture of India, one of the most notable is the exhibition of Indian sculptures organised by Pramod Chandra for the National Gallery of Art. It comprises more than 100 choice sculptures in stone, ivory and bronze from all regions of the subcontinent, about half of which have never left India before. Several are familiar masterpieces of the highest quality; others are newly discovered works. The exhibition catalogue provides an introductory survey of Indian sculpture over the ages, followed by illuminating analyses of the individual works which are accompanied by striking photographs, most of them taken in India, in situ, especially for this volume.

The World of Thought in Ancient China

BENJAMIN I. SCHWARTZ

The centre of this prodigious work of scholarship is a fresh examination of the range of Chinese thought during the formative period of Chinese culture. Benjamin Schwartz looks at the surviving texts of this period with a particular focus on the range of diversity to be found in them. While emphasising the problematic and complex nature of this thought he also considers views which stress the unity of Chinese culture. Attention is accorded to pre-Confucian texts, to the evolution of early Confucianism, to Mo-Tzu, to the "Taoists", the legalists, the Yin-Yang school, the "Five Classics" as well as to intellectual issues which cut across the conventional classification of schools.

The Lure of Zion

The Case of the Iraqi Jewish Community

The Iraqi Jewish community, one of the oldest in the world, was an essential constituent part of Iraqi society. In the early 1950s—in circumstances that remain controversial—most Jews left Iraq. Israel claimed them as its own.

The Lure of Zion presents a detailed and sober account of the Iraqi Jews, culminating in the events that finally led to the uprooting of one of the Middle East's oldest communities. Hardcover £16.00; paperback £4.95.

Nabia Abbott

The Two Queens of Baghdad

Nabia Abbott's famous history of Khaizurān and Zubaidah, respectively the mother and wife of Hārūn al-Rashīd, the most renowned of the Baghdad caliphs, has long been unavailable. Originally published in 1946 and predating modern feminism, this book nonetheless recognizes the central importance of recovering the role of women in history. It is published here as a companion volume to Abbott's Aishah, reissued by Al Saqi in 1985. Hardcover £16.00; paperback £4.95.

A COMPARATIVE DICTIONARY OF THE INDO-ARYAN LANGUAGES

ADDENDA AND CORRIGENDA

R. L. Turner, Edited by J. C. Wright

Sir Ralph Turner's A Comparative Dictionary of the Indo-aryan Languages, comprising some 140,000 words arranged under the 15,000 Sanskrit or Sanskrit-related etyma from which they appear to derive, was published by Oxford University Press in 1966. It was followed by Indexes (1969) and a Phonetic Analysis of the entire corpus of the material (1971). Described as 'one of the most outstanding events in the history of Indian linguistic studies', it took its place as a basis for all subsequent research beside Grierson's monumental Linguistic Survey of India (1903–27), of which it was long intended to form the concluding volume.

Subsequently Sir Ralph compiled a further 12,000 slips, noting and indexing new attestations and etymologies taken from works published since 1966. These provide additional data relating, for the most part, to Kacchī, West Pahārī, Garhwālī, Assamese, Old Mārwarī, Brajbhāṣā, Maldivian, and the Shughni group of Iranian border languages, as well as Sanskrit. The scope of the Dictionary is thereby extended particularly in respect of the peripheral dialects, which have been less exposed to loss of inherited vocabulary due to the inroads of Persian, English and Sanskrit.

Sir Ralph died in 1983, in his 95th year. Until a few days before his death he was still engaged upon a final revision of this volume. It has been prepared for and seen through the press by Professor J. C. Wright, Professor of Sanskrit in the University of London.
