Studies in Family
Kinship and Demography

Published by the National Council on Family Relations

Editor: Tamara K. Hareven

Associate Editor: Robert Wheaton

The Spring 1982 issue of the Journal of Family History is devoted to the Family in Eastern Europe, guest edited by Michael Mitterauer of the Institut für Wirtschaftsgeschichte und Sozialgeschichte at the University of Vienna. Of particular interest to East European specialists, Professor Mitterauer's collection of essays features the work of leading family historians of Central and Eastern Europe, as well as the work of two American pioneers in the field.

Michael Mitterauer, "Introduction"

Béla Gunda, "The Ethno-sociological Structure of the Hungarian Extended Family"

E. Fügedi, "Some Distinctive Characteristics of the Medieval Hungarian Noble Family"

Milovan Gavazzi, "Compound Families in Southeastern Europe"

Juhan Kahk et al., "Peasant Family and Household in Estonia During the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries"

Peter Czap, Jr., "The Perennial Multiple Family Household, Mishino, Russia 1782-1858"

Andrejs Plakans, "Ties of Kinship and Kinship Roles in an Historical Eastern European Peasant Community: A Synchronic Analysis"

M. Mitterauer and A. Kagan, "The Russian and Central European Family Structures Compared"

Individual copies are available for $5.00 from the National Council on Family Relations, 1219 University Ave. SE, Minneapolis, Minn. 55414.

The JOURNAL OF FAMILY HISTORY is an interdisciplinary scholarly undertaking, which publishes relevant research in history, demography, anthropology, and sociology—in the liberal arts as well as in the social sciences. Articles are published which

- advance the theory and methodologies used in the field
- present the results of recent research work in hitherto neglected areas
- provide up-to-date resumes of existing scholarship
- review major scholarly works in Family History

In the first four years of publication, special issues have appeared on Sexuality and the Family in France; Papers from the Cullom Shelby Davis Center at Princeton University (two issues); The Family in Latin America; and Women's Participation in the Work Force. The Family in Eastern Europe is the Journal's sixth such special issue.

The Rise and Fall of Childhood

by JOHN SOMMERVILLE, Department of History, University of Florida

"Go to school. Stand before your teacher, recite your assignment. . . . Be humble and show fear before your superiors."

—A Sumerian scribe to his son, c. 1800 B.C.

Since the dawn of history, parental admonitions to children have projected certain unchanging assumptions. Yet while some tenets of child rearing have remained constant over the centuries from Sparta to Spock, Sommerville pinpoints many significant changes in adult perceptions of their offspring. This readable history of children highlights changing cultural attitudes, expectations, and fears adults have harbored about the young. Sommerville describes major transformations in the upbringing, health, education, morals, and work patterns of children and adolescents over the course of Western civilization. Illustrated with vignettes and commentaries from different historical periods, The Rise and Fall of Childhood will be a useful guide and text for professionals, scholars, and students interested in social history, families, children, education, social welfare, and related areas.

CLASS CONFLICT AND COLLECTIVE ACTION

edited by LOUISE A. TILLY and CHARLES TILLY,
University of Michigan

Published in cooperation with the Social Science History Association

The contributors to Class Conflict and Collective Action break with the predominant definition of class conflict as societal tension-release, and instead see social movements as responses to the concerns of everyday life. Studying the effects of European proletarianization and capital concentration between 1750 and 1914, the essays seek to determine at what point class conflict generated a collective action, and how the historical forms of contention changed under the influence of capitalism and nationalization. Edited by noted scholars Louise and Charles Tilly, this book forms a vital contribution to the ultimate goal of a comparative history of the Western industrial working class.

Class Conflict and Collective Action, the first volume in Sage's New Approaches to Social Science History series, integrates a body of original and innovative material, using a common intellectual framework, a comprehensive introduction and conclusion, and tight and careful editing throughout. The book will hold great interest for those studying social history, European history, labor history, and research in power structures and the politics of collective action.
