

raphic Development, incorporated as a professional association, SALALM, in 1968. Write Marietta Daniels Shepard, Executive Secretary, SALALM, Pan American Union, Washington, D. C. 20006.

4th Annual Workshop on Economic Development of Mexico
 Location: Mexico City
 Date: June 17–July 18, 1969
 Write J. L. Hodgson, Workshop on Mexican Economic Development, University of the Americas, P. O. Box 968, México 1, D. F., Mexico.

16th Conference of the Inter-American Bar Association
 Location: Rio de Janeiro
 Date: July 7–12, 1969
 Write John O. Dahlgren, Acting Secretary General, IABA, 704 Federal Bar Building, 1815 H. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20006.

6th Meeting on Public Health of Argentina
 Location: Resistencia
 Date: August 1969.
 Write Jorge Alberto Mera, Secretario General, Asociación Argentina de la Salud Pública, Paraguay 2155, 10° piso, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

14th Conference of Instituto Internacional de Literatura Iberoamericana
 Location: Toronto
 Date: August 24–28, 1969
 Official theme of the conference is The Essay and Literary Criticism in Latin America. Write Kurt Levy, president, Instituto Internacional de Literatura Iberoamericana, University of Toronto, Toronto, Canada.

INSTITUTIONAL NEWS

University of the Americas Publishes Economic Monograph Series

The continuous growth of the economy of Mexico has become increasingly a subject of investigation by local organizations, but little of the resulting material is available in the English-speaking world. The Tlatelolco Economic Monographs, published by the University of the Americas, are geared to making obtainable in English information on the development of the Mexican economy. The monographs appear in two series: the Pochteca series, translations of papers and discussions from conferences held in Mexico on Mexican and Latin American economics; and the Tiankisco series, results of original investigation conducted by members of the university economics department and other Mexican research institutions. Editors of the series are Jacqueline L. Hodgson, Fred Schloesser, and W. Zev Bairey. Information concerning titles, prices, and publication dates may be requested from the editor-in-chief, Professor Hodgson, Economics Department, University of the Americas, Box 968, México 1, D. F., Mexico.

University of Arizona Sponsors International Forum "Brazil '69"

Each year, the Student Union Activities Board, University of Arizona, presents an International Forum on a different country. This year's event, held February 10–15, 1969, featured Brazil. Along with the art exhibits, films, open market shops, and entertainment of Brazilian character, special talks were given by John W. F. Dulles, University of Arizona, and Carlos Lacerda, former governor of Guanabara, Brazil. A Brazilian currency exchange was maintained, so that open market shoppers might purchase goods from Brazil on sale there. Further information is available from Bernard Pugeat, Public Relations chairman, SUAB International Forum, S.U.P.O. Box 10,000, University of Arizona, Tucson 85721.

Latin American Association of Agrarian Law Establishes Offices

Founded in March 1968 at a meeting on public administration in Alcalá de Henares, Spain, the Asociación Latinoamericana de Derecho Agrario has as its purpose the promotion of study, teaching, and dissemination of information on agrarian law. Special emphasis is to be given to comparative studies between countries and regions, and to the interchange of knowledge between institutions or individuals making such studies. Headquarters of the organization have been established at the Fundação Getulio Vargas in Rio de Janeiro, and plans are being formulated to sponsor a congress of agrarian specialists, to publish a newsletter and journal of the association, to make available fellowships for study in agrarian law, and to establish formal contact with organizations of similar purpose. Information is available from the Executive Director, Octavio Mello Alvarenga, Associação Latino-Americana de Direito Agrário, Rua Joaquin Nabuco, 244, Apt. 101, Rio de Janeiro, ZC 37, GB, Brazil.

Peruvian Center of Selva Research Established

The Instituto Raúl Porras Barrenechea has created the Centro de Investigaciones de Selva which is inspired by the historical and bibliographical work of Porras Barrenechea on Amazonian themes. The new center will pursue the following objectives: to compile and edit the various writings of Porras, thus bringing order to the documentation accumulated by him over many years of research; promote anthropological studies of the selva, with particular attention to Peruvian Amazonia; to act as a contact center for investigators and institutions engaged in research in the special field; to organize seminars, conferences, and courses to create more widespread public knowledge of the native peoples of the selva; to act as a consultative organ and protector of the people of the Amazon area; to build up an index on the selva regions; and to promote the establishment of photographic and phonographic archives with ethnographic material, in order to preserve manifestations of the traditional cultures in the face of rapid social and economic changes. Correspondence regarding the new center may be addressed to Stefano Varese, director, Centro de Investigaciones de Selva, Instituto Raúl Porras Barrenechea, Coloma 368/398, Miraflores, Lima, Peru.

Costa Rican University Establishes Department of Human Sciences

The Departamento de Ciencias del Hombre, established in 1967 as a unifying organ for the related activities in social sciences at the Universidad de Costa Rica, includes the following programs: introductory sociology and anthropology in the first university year, a three-year program for psychology professorships, and university degrees in sociological, anthropological, and psychological studies on the basis of a four-year program. Courses are offered in conjunction with the departments of social science, political science, and economics; in particular, collaboration with professors of the Centro de Investigaciones Psicológicas is pursued in the areas of courses and planning research projects. Detailed information regarding courses, entrance requirements, and specific programs may be requested from the director, Eugenio Fonseca T., Departamento de Ciencias del Hombre, Facultad de Ciencias y Letras, Universidad de Costa Rica, Ciudad Universitaria "Rodrigo Facio," San José, Costa Rica.

Center for Tropical Studies of Florida State University Reports

The Center for Tropical Studies, established in 1966 by Florida State University, has as its headquarters the FSU Canal Zone Program offices at Albrook Air Force Base, Canal Zone, Panama. Attention within the center is focused on research and graduate instruction in the tropical environment; emphasis has traditionally been on biological problems, but recent research and instruction have been offered in the fields of anthropology, psychology, economics, government, and geography, and students benefit from use of the field stations operated in Panama by the center.

The Isthmian Anthropology Society is an organization sponsored by the FSU Canal Zone branch. Membership is made up for the most part by amateurs in the Canal Zone and Panama who pursue group projects of excavation and research on the anthropological and archeological wealth of the area. With its basic purpose being that of providing instruction in proper scientific procedure, the Society has established rules by which archeological finds become the property of the sponsoring university or governmental body which authorized the "dig" and reports of excavations by the Society are published with technical details intact for the benefit of other researchers. Explorations are currently being conducted at the Spanish colonial sites of Fort San Lorenzo and Panama Viejo, at burial sites near Madden Lake, and sites in the Azuero Peninsula. The Society was established in 1967 under the direction of Horace Loftin, director of the FSU Canal Zone Program and the Center for Tropical Studies. President is Mrs. Bertha Brown. Correspondence regarding the Center or the Society may be addressed to Dr. Loftin or Mrs. Brown, Sociedad Istmeña de

Latin American Research Review

Antropología, FSU Center for Tropical Studies, Box 930, Albrook Air Force Base, Canal Zone, Panama.

Lecture Seminars Sponsored at University of Glasgow

During the fall 1968, five lecture seminars were sponsored by the Institute of Latin-American Studies of the University of Glasgow. Speakers, all associated with the sponsoring institution, and their topics were: Nathan Warman, Unrest in Mexico; Gerald Roberts, The Political Cauldron in Peru; William C. Atkinson, The "Reforma Universitaria" (Córdoba 1918) and Its Aftermath; Lauchlin Currie, director, Centro de Investigación para el Desarrollo, Universidad Nacional de Colombia, and visiting professor at the University of Glasgow, The Interplay of Economic and Non-Economic Factors in Colombian Development; and Simon Mitchell, Jangada Fishermen of North East Brazil. Information may be requested from Professor Atkinson, director, Institute of Latin-American Studies, University of Glasgow, Glasgow, Scotland.

Proyecto Acolhua Established at Universidad Iberoamericana

With the objective of furnishing advanced students in anthropology and ethnology with better technical and practical training, the Instituto de Ciencias Sociales of the Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City, with approval of the graduate school, created Proyecto Acolhua, now in operation in the Texcoco area. Students involved in the project have an opportunity to study the social and cultural factors and the effects of economic and technological change and to apply to their studies a series of methods and theories which might aid interpretation. The Texcoco area is of particular benefit, because it permits the study of the influence of the major urban center on its rural surroundings. Further information is available from Proyecto Acolhua, Escuela de Graduados, Instituto de Ciencias Sociales, Cerro de las Torres 395, México 21, D. F., Mexico.

University of Illinois Initiates Research Program on Latin America

The Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Illinois, in cooperation with the university's Center for International Comparative Studies, is inaugurating a three-year research program on Modernization and Urbanization Problems in Latin America. Thirteen faculty members, representing the disciplines of anthropology, economics, geography, history, law, political science, rural sociology, and sociology, together with some 20 advanced graduate students, will conduct field research on 12 separate but closely related projects coordinated by the Center's Director of Research, Robert E. Scott. The research projects cluster in three areas which represent differing levels of change in modernization-urbanization—Mexico, Brazil, and the Andean countries. Both prior to and following the field research, maximum interdisciplinary influence on each project is to be provided by means of colloquia in which all researchers and other interested graduate students may take part. Information regarding the new program is available from Carl W. Deal, acting director, Center for Latin American Studies, University of Illinois, Room 250, 1208 W. California, Urbana, Illinois 61801.

Inter-University Committee on Andean Studies Formed

Cooperation in teaching and research is the objective of the newly-formed Inter-University Committee on Andean Studies, established by Cornell University, State University of New York at Buffalo, Syracuse University, and Pennsylvania State University. A meeting of the committee was held in September 1968, to consider means of collaboration between the participating universities on projects of mutual interest in Andean studies. Among specific projects discussed were a special conference on Migration in the Andes, to be organized by Richard W. Patch, SUNY at Buffalo, a newsletter on Andean studies, to be known as Nispa Ninku, edited by John V. Murra, Cornell University, a computerized Quechua dialect archive to be developed by Donald F. Solá, Cornell University, in cooperation with the Universidad Mayor de San Marcos, Lima, and summer training projects in the field. Additional projects, such as student exchanges, seminars, research programs, and information exchanges, are to be planned. Further information is available from Professor Solá, Department of Linguistics, 404 Lincoln Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York 14850.

Symposium on Latin America Featured at Johns Hopkins University

Revolution in Latin America was the title of the Milton S. Eisenhower Symposium, sponsored by the Student Council and the International Forum of Johns Hopkins University during December 1968. Speakers at the sessions were Luis Muñoz Marín, former governor of Puerto Rico, Edward Boorstein, Herminio, Portell-Vila, editor of Radio Free Americas, Hector Garcia Godoy, Ambassador of the Dominican Republic to the United States, Abraham Lowenthal, Brookings Institution, Alberto Lleras Camargo, former President of Colombia, Sol M. Linowitz, U. S. Ambassador to the OAS, Thomas Mann, former U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, and David Butler, John Dreier, Milton S. Eisenhower, and Lincoln Gordon, all of Johns Hopkins University. Information is available from the sponsoring groups, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland 21218.

University of Kansas Institutes Cooperative Research Program on Central American Development

A $200,000 grant from the Ford Foundation during the summer 1968

Latin American Research Review

has implemented the establishment of a cooperative Research Program on Central American Development at the University of Kansas. Emphasizing multidisciplinary approaches to development problems and collaborative projects involving faculty and graduate students from both Kansas and Central American universities, the program comprises three major phases. A cooperative research project in education will emphasize research in the area of sociology of occupations and university programs for occupational preparation in Guatemala, as well as a study of secondary teaching of vocational and technical fields and problems of job placement in Costa Rica. A second program is to involve political scientists and public administration scholars in the study of national administration and local government vis à vis development in Nicaragua, in cooperation with the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Nicaragua. A continuing seminar on Central American development represents the third phase; the seminar will include Kansas scholars and students involved in research in Central America, Central American visitors, and scholars from other U. S. universities with research interests in Central America, who will engage in interchange of ideas and information regarding research and ultimately provide guidelines to serve for future research and development efforts in the area. Information on the program may be obtained by writing Herman D. Lujan, coordinator, Cooperative Research Program on Central American Development, 504 Blake Hall, University of Kansas, Lawrence 66044.

Latin American Fine Arts Festival Featured at University of Nebraska

The Institute for Latin American and International Studies, in collaboration with the University of Nebraska Art Galleries, Howell Theater, School of Music, College of Engineering and Architecture, and the Departments of Art and women's Physical Education, presented a Latin American Fine Arts Festival, held during November 8, 1968–January 30, 1969. The festival consisted of several events, including a demonstration of Latin American folklore dances, a Maya Rubbings exhibition, a presentation of The Rogues' Trial, a drama by Ariano Suassuna, Brazil, a performance of Festive Overture by Juan Orrego-Salas, Chile, and an architectural exhibit entitled Recent Habitat in Latin America. Information may be requested from the Institute for Latin American and International Studies, 709 Oldfather Hall, University of Nebraska, Lincoln 68508.

University of New Mexico Opens Center in Ecuador

The Centro Andino de Estudios e Investigaciones at Quito, Ecuador, designed for study by upper division undergraduates and graduate students, was opened in the fall 1968 by the University of New Mexico. The center features a rotation of faculty from New Mexico and Ecuador and an interdisciplinary program of studies which offers courses in history, language, and literature during all semesters, and has varying focuses on the areas of anthropology, archeology, economics, political science, and sociology. Students may enroll in additional classes at the Universidad Central or the Pontificia Universidad Católica, both in Quito. In addition to classes, participating students are offered pre-professional training in such fields as journalism and public education and are provided with opportunities for in-country touring. Inquiries concerning the Andean center may be addressed to Marshall Nason, director, Language and Area Center for Latin America, Ortega Hall, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque 87106.

Pennsylvania State University Sponsors Public Lectures

A lecture series on Latin American topics is being conducted during the 1968–69 school year at Pennsylvania State University. Speakers and their topics include: Wilson Martins, New York University, Contemporary Brazilian Literature; Concha Zardoya, Indiana University, El Yo en la poesía de Antonio Machado; Peter M. Boyd-Bowman, State University of New York, Buffalo, The Spanish of Mexico and the Caribbean in the 16th Century; Joaquín Casaldueiro, University of California, San Diego, Forma de la obra del barroco con especial referencia a la comedia; and Roberto Esquenazi-Mayo, University of Nebraska, ¿Existe una nueva novela hispanoamericana? Information is available from the Department of Spanish, Italian, and Portuguese, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pa. 16802.

Movement of Professionals

The annual listing of Foreign Scholars Available for Appointment in U. S. Universities and Colleges under provision of the Fulbright-Hays Act, 1969–1970 is to be published in March 1969. Information on scholars nominated for Fulbright-Hays grants who seek lecturing or research appointments at American institutions is included, along with an outline of the procedures for extending invitations and conditions of appointment. The list may be obtained from Miss Grace E. L. Haskins, Program Officer, Committee on International Exchange of Persons, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20418.

The University of Alabama reports that Eric N. Baklanoff assumes the position of Dean for International Programs as of February 1969. Dr. Baklanoff, formerly director of the Latin American Studies Institute of Louisiana State University, will work closely with the various Latin American programs of the university. Teaching British and North American literature at the Huntsville campus of the University of Alabama during September-December 1968 and at the Tuscaloosa campus during January-May 1969 is Enrique Luis Revol, Universidad Nacional de Córdoba, Argentina. Herbert E. Francis was on leave during September-December 1968, teaching English at the Argentina university.

Thomas G. Sanders, on leave from Brown University, joined the American Universities Field Staff during the 1968–69 school year as a Faculty Associate in Chile, specializing in religion and Latin American modernization.

Latin American Research Review

The University of Florida reports that Germán O. E. Tjarks is a visiting professor during July 1968–June 1970; Professor Tjarks, formerly of the Universidad de Buenos Aires, is conducting courses on the history of Argentina and Chile. In extended stays from those reported in earlier issues of LARR, Irving L. Webber (see LARR II:2, pp. 210–211) continues to conduct courses in sociology at the Universidad del Valle, Cali, Colombia, until September 1969, and Cornelius Goslinga is lecturing at the same institution, on leave from Florida where he was a visiting professor (see LARR III:2, p. 196) in the fields of Latin American and Caribbean history and art, during the academic year 1968–69. Professor Goslinga will resume lecturing in Gainesville until September 1970.

On leave from Lehigh University during the summer 1968 was Alvin Cohen, who conducted courses in economics at the Universidad Mayor de San Andrés, La Paz, Bolivia.

During the spring term 1969, Emir Rodríguez Monegal, editor of Mundo Nuevo (Paris and Buenos Aires), is teaching Latin American literature at the University of Liverpool, England.

A number of Latin American scholars hold visiting professorships at the University of Notre Dame during the 1968–69 academic year. During the period September 1968–June 1969, Hernán Vera-Godoy, Comisión de Reforma Agraria (CORA), Santiago, Chile, taught economics, and Luis Sendoya, Universidad del Valle, Cali, Colombia, taught modern languages. During the spring semester, visiting professors include Roberto Pineda, Centro Interamericano de Vivienda y Administración (CINVA), Bogotá, in economics, Virginia de Pineda, Universidad Nacional de Colombia, Bogotá, in sociology, Mario Zañartu, S. J., Centro Bellarmino, Santiago, in economics, Neil Hurley, S. J., Centro Bellarmino, in government, and

José Miguens, formerly of the Universidad Católica de Argentina, Buenos Aires, in sociology.

Fulbright Lecturer in Dramatic Art for the Asociación de Universidades Colombianas, Bogotá, during the 1967–68 academic year was Ned A. Bowman of the University of Pittsburgh.

Melville E. Osborne, Professor of Government, was appointed director of the Center for Ibero-American Civilization at Southern Methodist University, effective February, 1969.

Frank G. Carrino, of the State University of New York at Albany, was conducting courses in Latin American Literature at the Universidad de Guadalajara, Mexico, during the fall 1968.

The Latin American in Residence Chair, a newly-established interdisciplinary chair filled each year in rotation by one of the departments which share in the Latin American Studies Programme at the University of Toronto, is being filled during 1968–69 by Manuel Zapata de Olivella. The Colombian novelist-social anthropologist, editor of Letras Nacionales, Bogotá, lectures on the novel in Latin America, in the Department of Italian and Hispanic Studies.

At Vanderbilt University, Adolfo V. Casais Monteiro, of the Universidade de Araraquara, Brazil, is lecturing in Portuguese and Brazilian literature during the spring semester 1969. The Vanderbilt/Brazil Program made it possible for the following professors to conduct courses in Brazil during July 1968–July 1969: William O. Thweatt and Samuel Levy, both teaching economics at the Universidade de São Paulo; C. Elton Hinshaw, teaching economics at the Fundação Getulio Vargas; and Carlos M. Pelaez and Rowan H. Ireland, conducting courses in economics and sociology respectively at the Instituto das Ciências de Homen, Universidade de Recife.