The Politics of Urban Development in Singapore

By ROBERT E. GAMER. Some of the most basic questions about urban life, economic development, power structure, and human welfare are explored in this book. An intensive case study of urban renewal in a developing nation, it analyzes the dynamic programs which Singapore instituted in the 1960's to end political instability and urban deterioration. $13.50

Java in a Time of Revolution

Occupation and Resistance, 1944-1946

By BENEDICT R. O'G. ANDERSON. The author analyzes the Indonesian revolution of 1945 against the background of Javanese culture and the Japanese occupation, exploring the origins of the revolutionary youth groups, the military, and the political parties to challenge conventional interpretations of revolutionary movements in Asia. $15.00

South Asian Political Systems Series

The Politics of Afghanistan

By RICHARD S. NEWELL. The forces at play in Afghan politics today are clearly delineated for specialist and nonspecialist alike in this compact introductory survey. The heart of the book deals with the changing objectives and features of local and provincial government and the rapidly expanding administrative requirements brought about by economic, political, and social change. $9.50

Conspiracy at Matsukawa

Chalmers Johnson

The Matsukawa incident of 1949—the unexplained death of the president of the Japanese National Railroads and the sabotage of a train—produced the greatest cause célèbre in the history of law suits in Japan. Mr. Johnson uses his study of that incident to analyze the Americans' efforts during the Occupation to introduce Anglo-American adversary proceedings into Japanese criminal trials and to explore the change in Occupation policy when the Americans changed their emphasis from Japanese democratization to economic growth. He also studies the relationship between the Occupation and Japan's present status as the world's third ranking industrial power. LC: 73-161998 480 pages illustrations maps $10.95

Modern Verse from Taiwan

Translated, with an Introduction and Notes, by

Angela Jung Palandri

While mainland Chinese poets have learned since 1949 to celebrate the New Society without sounding a discordant note, contemporary poets in Taiwan have been free to respond to aesthetic and intellectual impulses reaching them from abroad. In this volume Professor Palandri presents twenty poets she considers to be representative of important aspects of recent and contemporary writing.

The Year of My Life

A Translation of Issa's Oraga Haru

Nobuyuki Yuasa

Oraga Haru is the autobiographical record of what Issa heard, thought, and felt in the year 1819, a year that has become the year of his life. The medium he used for his autobiography is known as haibun, a mixed form of haiku and prose, but within this form he developed a style distinctly his own. Nobuyuki Yuasa has exquisitely rendered into English both the prose and poetry of the entire volume.

OSS: The Secret History of America's First Intelligence Agency

R. Harris Smith

Conceived in the military crisis of World War II, the U.S. Office of Strategic Services was America's first Central Intelligence Agency. The OSS was not a tidy, routinized bureaucracy; nor did it function with military precision and efficiency. Orders were given and forgotten or ignored. OSS officers were typically young, brilliant amateurs who dared to establish "unofficial" emotional rapport with such revolutionary leaders as Ho Chi Minh, Tito, and Mao Tse-tung. Their fascinating stories are pieced together in the first systematic and global study of the OSS. "Unquestionably the best history of the OSS ever written, it is also a fascinating study of politics and people, intrigue and imagination, accident and adventure. It will constitute an important part of the history of the United States."—Tom Braden

Delusions and Discoveries

Studies on India in the British Imagination 1880-1930

Benita Parry

Mrs. Parry's study is an attempt to understand something of the interior British experience of India in a period which covers the age of imperial confidence and the setting in of disenchantment. She does this by considering how writers—Rudyard Kipling and E. M. Forster among numerous others—reordered their ideas and perceptions in fiction.

The Household Dimension of the Family in India

A. M. Shah

In this study Mr. Shah challenges the familiar assumption that the joint family in India is disintegrating under the impact of industrialization and that the elementary family is emerging as the most significant household unit. Census figures since 1825 support his argument that a multiplicity of household types has long existed and that their range of distribution has not changed markedly during this period.

China and Japan at War 1937–1945

THE POLITICS OF COLLABORATION. John Hunter Boyle. This work describes the most ambitious of the attempts at wartime collaboration between Imperial Japan and Nationalist China, the Japanese-backed regional puppet governments initially set up in various parts of China in the late 1930's and ultimately consolidated in a single national collaborationist regime in Nanking under Wang Ching-wei. Popular Movements and Secret Societies in China, 1840–1950

Edited by Jean Chesneaux. Historians of China have increasingly shifted their focus from government and the gentry to the popular movements and secret societies that claimed the allegiance of China's peasant masses. The papers in this volume are concerned with the impact of these societies on the great crises of the modern era in China: the rebellions of the 1850's and 1860's, the Revolution of 1911, the Communist-Kuomintang conflict, and the Sino-Japanese War of 1937–45. $11.50

A Western Approach to Zen

CHRISTMAS HUMPHREYS

■ Mr. Humphreys is the distinguished British jurist, scholar, and founder of The [English] Buddhist Society. Since the Society's inception, he has worked with the Zen class in London. For 30 years, this group has practiced a system of inner development derived from the needs and abilities of the Western mind.

In this first American edition (August 1972), Humphreys looks into the future of Zen in the West and its steady and continued growth outside Japan and Asia. He explains how serious students, unable to live for years in Zen monasteries, or to study under the personal guidance of Zen teachers qualified in Japan, can nevertheless come to know the wisdom of Zen. #0211 cloth $5.95

The Science of Yoga

A Commentary on the Yoga-Sutras of Patanjali in the Light of Modern Thought

I. K. TAIMNI

■ Each of Patanjali's sutras is given in the original Devanagari script, followed by a transliteration in Roman letters, a literal translation into English with explanation, and finally a modern paraphrase of the text and the author's commentary.

This is a spacious book of xiii + 448 pages and is illustrated with 15 drawings and a chart of the stages of Samadhi. It is "free from the usual deficiencies and incompetence of most of the popular literature propagating Yoga and can well be recommended to students as a valuable introductory reading on the subject." Intermediate Cambodian Reader edited by Franklin E. Huffman with the assistance of Im Proum

A sequel to Mr. Huffman's Cambodian System of Writing and Beginning Reader, this book is intended to develop the student's ability to the point of reading unedited Cambodian texts with the aid of a dictionary. Part One consists of thirty-seven reading selections in Cambodian from publications by leading national writers and scholars. Part Two is a comprehensive Cambodian-English glossary containing vocabulary items in this as well as Mr. Huffman's preceding volume. CHINA AND THE OVERSEAS CHINESE

A Study of Peking's Changing Policy 1949-1970

STEPHEN FITZGERALD

A detailed examination of the policy of the People's Republic of China towards those of Chinese nationality living outside China, mostly in Southeast Asia—a number estimated at between 12 and 13 millions.

Dr. FitzGerald discounts the view that these overseas Chinese have been used as a kind of fifth column to stir up revolution in their resident countries. His study provides evidence that the policy of the Chinese Communist Party has if anything discouraged such activities. (Cambridge Studies in Chinese History, Literature and Institutions) $19.50

KŌTOKU SHŪSUI

Portrait of a Japanese Radical

F. G. NOTEHELPER

The first Western study of a leader in the early Japanese socialist movement, who was condemned on the charge of high treason and executed in 1911. Kōtoku, as early as 1906, predicted the conflict with America as the inevitable outworking of Japanese imperialism; with Japan's defeat in World War II his image changed from that of traitor to that of visionary and outstanding political theoretician.

Professor Notehelfer presents a personal as well as a political biography, drawing on Kōtoku's extensive diaries and correspondence.

GANDHI'S RISE TO POWER

Indian Politics 1915-1922

JUDITH M. BROWN

A political study of the first clearly defined period in Mahatma Gandhi's Indian career. The author traces from new source material precisely what he did, on whom he relied for support, what his relations were with the established political leaders of the subcontinent, and how he saw his own actions and his role in Indian public life.

The study seeks to determine whether Gandhi's career generated change in Indian politics or whether it exploited existing forces for change. (Cambridge South Asian Studies 11) $19.50

PRIVATE INVESTMENT IN INDIA 1900-1939

AMIYA KUMAR BAGCHI

Professor Bagchi presents a case study in the economic relations between an imperial power (Britain) and a dependent colony (India), examines the social relations between the British and the Indians, and provides a detailed account of the mechanics of imperialism.

He develops a simple theoretical framework and tries to isolate the influence on private investment in India of factor supplies as against demand conditions. All major manufacturing industries of the period 1900-1939 are studied in detail. (Cambridge South Asian Studies 10) $19.50

INDIA'S ECONOMIC RELATIONS WITH THE USSR AND EASTERN EUROPE 1953-1969

ASHA L. DATAR

Traces the history of economic relations between India and the Soviet Union preceding the treaty of mutual military protection which signaled the end of India's non-alignment.

By assembling and analyzing much new material on individual Soviet projects and on overall Indian trade with East Europe, the author draws significant conclusions on the advantages and disadvantages of close ties between a developing country and the centrally planned economies. $17.50

It examines the history of aid flows to Pakistan; their interaction with economic growth and planning; the role of foreign aid in the balance of payments and external indebtedness; and the reciprocal links between aid on the one hand and income, employment, investment and the structure of Pakistani industry on the other. $19.50

THE WEARY AND THE WARY

U.S. and Japanese Security Policies in Transition

Robert E. Osgood Robert Osgood examines the effects of the Nixon doctrine of disengagement from Asia and of a changing international environment on U.S.-Japanese relations and on the world balance of power. The perspective is that of a superpower weary of exercising power, and an emerging industrial nation wary of assuming military dominance in Asia. $5.00, $2.00 paper

ETHICS AND WORLD POLITICS

Four Perspectives

Edited by Ernest W. Lefever The war in Vietnam has forced Americans to look again at the presumed role of moral values in international politics. Is there an inherent contradiction between Western ethical values and the pursuit of "national interests"? In Ethics and World Politics Ernest Lefever, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., Paul Ramsey, and Mark Hatfield examine these and other questions of morality in U.S. foreign policy. $6.00, $2.50 paper

BUREAUCRACY AND FOREIGN POLICY

Francis Rourke Professor Rourke maintains that needed reforms in the foreign policy process cannot occur through administrative reorganization. Limited though bureaucratic structures are, they must have a role in the decision-making process. This cogent essay argues that the political structure must be changed so that the president's virtual monopoly over the conduct of foreign policy is curtailed. $6.00, $2.00 paper

Professor Chin-tung Liang, Director of the Institute of Modern History, Academia Sinica, is a well-known jurist as well as historian in China. He taught comparative criminal law for a number of years at the National University at Peking. He is the author of several books, including A History of the First World War (Peking: Oriental Press, 1921), Extraterritoriality in China (Shanghai: Commercial Press, 1931), The Chinese Revolution of 1911 (New York: St. John's University Press, 1962), The Cairo Conference and China (Hong Kong: The Asian Press, 1962), A Historical Study of the Mukden Incident of 1931 (Hong Kong: Asian Book Company, 1963), and The Sinister Face of the Mukden Incident (New York: St. John's University Press, 1969). His latest book is the Chinese version of this study. Published in Taipei, Taiwan, in July 1971, it went through six printings within three months. One of the best-sellers in Free China, it was awarded the 1971 Sun Yat-sen Medal for intellectual distinction.

In his early years, Professor Liang devoted himself to public service. He served as a justice of the Supreme Court of the Republic of China. During World War II, he held high offices in the Ministry of Finance and served in Washington, D.C., as a representative of the Chinese government for the administration of lend-lease supplies to China. Particularly because of this latter personal experience, he was most knowledgeable of the complicated relations between China and the United States throughout the war years.

After the Communist domination of the mainland, Professor Liang resigned from public service and turned his attention to the study of history. Since 1964, he has been a Research Professor of Modern Chinese History at St. John's University.

In his study, Professor Liang has offered us an insight supported by documentary proofs that show the tremendous impact on the world situation in general and Chinese-American relations in particular. . . . It is imperative that for a thorough and genuine understanding of the truth of this most unfortunate episode Western readers be familiar with the facts presented from both American and Chinese sides. Needless to add, what is most valuable in this study is that Professor Liang has had unprecedented access to the private papers and official archives of Generalissimo Chiang, known as the Tachi Archives, disclosed for the first time to the public in the interest of historical truth.
