Myths and Meanings of Urban Life on the Zambian Copperbelt

James Ferguson

Once lauded as the wave of the African future, Zambia's economic boom in the 1960s and early 1970s was fueled by the export of copper and other primary materials. Since the mid-1970s, however, the urban economy has rapidly deteriorated. Focusing on the experiences of mineworkers in the Copperbelt region, James Ferguson traces the failure of standard narratives of urbanization and social change to make sense of the Copperbelt's recent history.

MYTH AND REALITY IN THE RAIN FOREST

How Conservation Strategies Are Failing in West Africa

John F. Oates

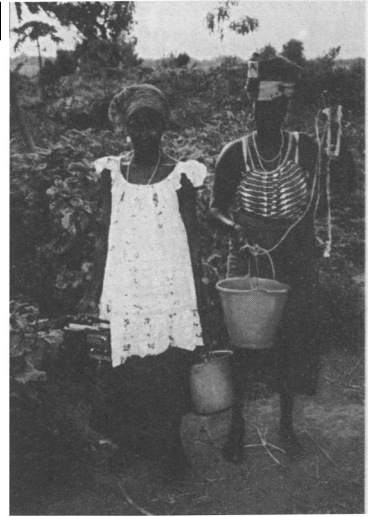

"This book is the most powerful analysis yet of the reasons why conservation is failing in Africa. Its policy relevance is profound."

—Michael E. Soulé, author of Reinventing Nature?

John Oates tackles one of the most serious challenges facing the world's conservation leaders today: how can the needs of wildlands and wildlife be reconciled with the needs of people? Drawing on his extensive experience as a primate ecologist who has worked on rain-forest conservation projects in Africa and India, Oates argues that the linking of conservation to economic development has had disastrous consequences for many wildlife populations, especially in West Africa.

Agroforestry and Gender Politics in The Gambia

Richard A. Schroeder

"In this engaging and exceptionally well-crafted case study, Schroeder shows clearly how local dynamics intersect with wider processes. . . . Changes in cropping patterns, land rights, work routines, and gender politics were shaped by multiple struggles and interactions among women and men, landholders and land users, farmers, government officials, and representatives of various international agencies."
