

can Program, the East Asia Program, and the International Security Program. For academic participants, eligibility is limited to the postdoctoral level; for participants from other backgrounds, an equivalent degree of maturity and professional achievement is expected. Fellows are expected to devote their full time to research and writing. A fellowship normally lasts from four months to a year. Within certain limits established by the board of trustees, the Center seeks to enable each fellow to meet, but not to exceed, his or her income rate for the preceding year. The Center holds one round of competitive selection per year. Deadline for receipt of applications is October 1, and decisions on appointments normally become available by early February of the following year. For information and application materials contact The Wilson Center, Smithsonian Institution Building, Room 321, Washington, D.C. 20560; telephone (202) 357-2841.

Announcement of Awards

Four Political Scientists Elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences

Four political scientists have recently been elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a national honorary society founded in 1780 by John Adams and other intellectual leaders prominent in laying the philosophical foundations of the new American nation. The newly elected members are: Joseph LaPalombara, Arnold Wolfers Professor of Political Science and chairman of the department, Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut; Hanna F. Pitkin, professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley, California; Robert D. Putnam, professor of political science, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts; and Kenneth Neal Waltz, Ford Professor of Political Science and Comparative Studies, University of California, Berkeley, California.

NSF Graduate Awards

Among the 460 individuals receiving National Science Foundation Graduate Awards of $4,320 for tuition for study plus $3,400 for tuition for the institution selected by the Fellow are the following who will study political science: John D. Donanue, University of California, Berkeley; Jeffrey A. Frieden, Columbia University; Terri L. Jennings, University of California, Berkeley; Ira J. Klein, Harvard University; Margaret A. Latus, Princeton University; Kristie M. McClure, Princeton University; and Charles M. Silver, University of Chicago.

ACE Fellow in Academic Administration

American Council on Education President Jack W. Peltason has announced the 1980-81 ACE Fellows, which includes a political scientist, Lynton Hayes, chair of the Department of Political Science, The University of West Florida.

During the fellowship year each Fellow, either on a home or host campus, works with at least two mentors, most often the president and chief academic officer. The Fellow participates in academic administration and policy making and engages in other activities. Among the activities planned for the 1980-81 class are three week-long seminars on academic administration, staff visits to mentors and Fellows, reading in the field of higher education, travel to neighboring institutions, and preparation of a paper on administrative problems.

A survey of the first 14 years of the Fellows Program shows that over 80 percent of more than 600 participants have made significant advances into leadership position in academic administration. A total of 55 have become presidents or chancellors, and more than 300 others have become vice presidents, vice chancellors, provosts, deans or directors.

1980 NASPAA Research Fellowships

Five candidates for doctoral degrees in public affairs and administration education have been awarded research fellowships of up to $8,000 in public personnel management, according to an announcement by Clinton V. Oster, President of the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA) and Frank Francoise, President of the National Association of Counties (NACo). The fellowship awards were made possible by a grant funded by the Office of Personnel Management under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act. The recipients, their schools and research topics are as follows:

Judith J. Hendricks, Temple University, Department of Political Science, "Affirmative Action in the State of Delaware: Organizational Incentives and Disincentives."

Romain F. Krzmarzick, University of Southern California, School of Public Administration, "Perceived Effectiveness of Labor Relations Boards: A Comparison of California Boards with the National Labor Relations Board."

Alice Ann Love, University of Delaware, College of Urban Affairs/Public Policy, "A Study of Managerial Beliefs About Workers in the Public Sector: Theory X or Theory Y?"

Patricia Ann Somers, The Ohio State University, Center for Human Resource Research, "The Effect of and Interaction Between

Quality of Working Life Projects and Collective Bargaining in the Public Sector."

Frederick P. Trapp, University of Southern California, School of Public Administration, "Personnel Management Innovation."

This is one of NASPAA's main efforts to improve the quality of public management by co-sponsoring this program with NACo. Both academics and practitioners will benefit from the research these 15 doctoral candidates are producing. NASPAA and NACo encourage people involved in public management to support research efforts designed to improve the quality of service to the public. Announcements for the 1981 NASPAA/NACo Public Personnel Management Research Program will be distributed in August, 1980.

1980-81 White House Fellow

A political scientist, Major Wallace Earl Walker, a permanent associate professor in the Department of Social Sciences at West Point, currently on leave to the Army's Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, has been selected as one of the 17 1980-81 White House Fellows.

1980-81 United States-France Exchange of Scientists Award

Mary L. Bellhouse of Providence College has been awarded a fellowship for 1980-81 under the United States-France Exchange of Scientists Award sponsored by the U.S. National Science Foundation and the National Center for Scientific Research of France. Dr. Bellhouse will spend her year abroad doing research at the University of Paris at Nanterre.

1980 German Marshall Fund Fellows

The German Marshall Fund of the United States announces awards totalling $400,000 to 15 research Fellows in its 1980-81 Fellowship Program. The Fellows were selected from over 150 North American and European applicants in social science disciplines.

The German Marshall Fund Fellowship provides support for comparative research projects on political, social, and economic problems common to advanced industrial societies. Appointments lasting up to a year or longer permit full-time research and writing on individual projects.

The final selection panel, consisting of Orley Ashenfelter, Princeton (industrial relations); Peter Gourevitch, University of California, San Diego (political science); Lorna Marsden, University of Toronto (sociology); and Kenneth Newton, University of Dundee, Scotland (political science) approved the following list of Fellows:

Lorenzo Bordogna, Universita di Trento, Italy: politics and Keynesian economic policies in the U.K., Sweden, and the U.S.

Linda Keller Brown, Columbia University: women as corporate managers in the U.S., West Germany, U.K., and Italy.

Stephen Cohen, University of California, Berkeley: approaches to rationalizing and reorganizing urban and social services in France and the U.S.

Ellen Comisso, University of California, San Diego: response of governments in capitalist and socialist societies to problems of the post-war steel industry in Hungary, France, and the U.S.

Norman Eiger, Rutgers University: comparison of worker education needs and institutions in Germany, the U.K., and Sweden.

Jonathan Gershuny, University of Sussex, U.K.: informal economy (household and "hidden" production) and future employment prospects in Europe and the U.S.

Linda Leighton, Columbia University: comparison of structure and determinants of unemployment in Sweden and the U.S.

Charles Maier, Duke University: post-war reorganization of U.S. and West European political, economic, and industrial relations institutions.

Richard Marston, University of Pennsylvania: potential of the European Monetary System within the current European economy.

S. M. Miller, Boston University: analysis of the use of demonstration project model by the European Community in Ireland, France and the U.K. as a strategy for change.

Paul Montagna, Brooklyn College and City University of New York: increasing use of professional service firms by multinational corporations.

Jürgen Müller, Sussex University, U.K., and INSEAD, Paris: effect on Western Europe of U.S. deregulation experience in telecommunications and air passenger transport.

Massimo Paci, Universita d'Urbino, Italy: role of national medical associations and other interest groups in policy implementation of national health in the U.S., Italy, the U.K., and Canada.

Kenneth Tolo, University of Texas, Austin: applicability of private pension planning in Sweden and West Germany to U.S. systems.

Sharon Zukin, Brooklyn College: response of capitalist and socialist governments to structural unemployment and changes in investment in the textile and steel industries in the U.S., France, and Yugoslavia.

For further information, please contact Christina Graf at (202) 797-6430. 1981 Fellowship Program flyers and materials will be available in early summer. The deadline for applications in the 1981 program is November 30, 1980.

Rockefeller Foundation Humanities Fellows

The Rockefeller Foundation has announced 40 awardees for its Humanities Fellowships for 1980-81, including three political scientists. They are:

Stephen F. Cohen, Princeton University, "The Social Dimensions of Stalinization, 1953-1964."

Philip Green, Smith College, "Political Equality: Toward the Ideal of a Self-Governing Community."

Norman J. Zucker, University of Rhode Island, "The Guarded Gate: The Dilemma of Contemporary American Refugee Policy."

1980 Guggenheim Fellowships

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has awarded fellowships to five political scientists for 1980-81. The winners and their projects are:

Benjamin R. Barber, Rutgers University, "A Political Theory of the Drama."

Daniel J. Elazar, Temple University, "The Covenant Idea and the Western Political Tradition."

Donald R. Matthews, University of Washington, "The Selection of Political Executives in Norway."

Sidney Verba, Harvard University, "A Comparative Study of Attitudes Toward Equality."

Jack L. Walker, University of Michigan, "The Origins and Maintenance of Interest Groups in America."

American Council of Learned Societies Awards

The American Council of Learned Societies has announced awards in postdoctoral research in the humanities and related social sciences. Two political scientists were among the awardees:

Jerry W. Calvert, Montana State University, "Socialism in Butte, Montana, 1911-1915."

Philippa Strum, City University of New York, Brooklyn College, "A Political Biography of Supreme Court Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis."

Richard Fenno Wins D.B. Hardeman Prize

Richard F. Fenno, Jr., William R. Kenan Jr. Professor of Political Science at the University of Rochester, has won the $1,500 D. B. Hardeman Prize "for the best book on the United States Congress in the 20th Century." The prize is for Fenno's book, Home Style: House Members in Their Districts, published in 1978. The prize was sponsored by the Lyndon Baines Johnson Library in Austin, Texas and honors D. B. Hardeman, former assistant to Speaker Sam Rayburn and a longtime member of the American Political Science Association, who now teaches at the University of Texas, San Antonio.

1980 NEH Fellowship Awards

The National Endowment for the Humanities has announced the following awards for 1980 to political scientists:

Fellowships for Independent Study and Research

Linda D. Cirino, free lance writer, Leonia, New Jersey: political science.

Paul E. Sigmund, Princeton University, New Jersey: political science.

Fellowships for College Teachers and Young Humanists

William A. Galston, University of Texas, Austin: political science.

Walter L. Goldfrank, University of California, Berkeley: political science.

Karen C. Hermassi, University of California, Berkeley: political science.

Richard A. Melanson, Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio: political science.

M. Catharine Newbury, Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut: political science.

Langdon C. Winner, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge: political science.

Summer Stipends

Henry J. Abraham, University of Virginia, Charlottesville: political science.

Roger C. Boesche, Occidental College, Los Angeles, California: political science.

Beverly C. Grier, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill: political science.

Richard W. Krouse, Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts: political science.

Nancy L. Rosenblum, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts: political science.

Wendy J. Sarvasy, Pennsylvania State University, University Park: political science.

Steffen W. Schmidt, Iowa State University, Ames: political science.

Margaret Wyszomirski, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey: American government.

Summer Seminars for College Teachers

Reapportionment in the 1980s and the Quest for "Fair Representation," $45,246, Gordon E. Baker, Director, Political Science Department, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Politics, Parties, and Government in the United States, 1850 to the Present, $48,641, Jerome M. Clubb, director, Center for Political Studies, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Political Communication, $52,035, Murray J. Edelman, director, Political Science Department, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Communism in Southern Europe, $53,105, Joseph LaPalombara, director, Political Science Department, Yale University; Grantee: Center for Mediterranean Studies of the American Universities Field Staff, Seminar Location: Rome, Italy.

Religion and Politics, $57,007, Wilson D. McWilliams, director, Political Science Department, Livingston College, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey.

Inequality and Contemporary Revolutions, $44,360, Manus I. Midlarsky, director, Political Science Department, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Ideals and the Quest for Utopia (open only to teachers in two-year colleges), $53,321, Mulford Sibley, director, Political Science Department, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Cultural Pluralism and National Integration in Comparative Perspective, $49,253, M. Crawford Young, director, Political Science Department, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Summer Humanities Seminars for the Professions

Dante Germino, director, Government and Foreign Affairs Department, University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

Professionals in a Bureaucratic Setting: Preserving Initiative and Creativity in an Increasingly Impersonal Age, $34,168, Clarence N. Stone, director, Government and Politics Department, University of Maryland, College Park.