Principles of Archaeological Stratigraphy

Second Edition

Edward Harris

with a Foreword by Michael Schiffer

This book is the only text devoted entirely to archaeological stratigraphy, a subject of fundamental importance to most studies in archaeology. The first edition appeared in 1979 as a result of the invention, by the author, of the Harris Matrix—a method for analyzing and presenting the stratigraphic sequences of archaeological sites. The method is now widely used in archaeology all over the world.

CONTENTS: The Concept of Stratigraphy in Geology. The Concept of Stratigraphy in Archaeology. Techniques of Archaeological Excavation. Early Recording Method on Excavations. The Laws of Archaeological Stratigraphy. Deposits as Units of Stratification. Interfaces as Units of Stratification. Archaeological Sections. Archaeological Plans. Correlation, Phasing, and Stratigraphic Sequences. Stratigraphic Sequences and Post-Excavation Analyses. An Outline for Stratigraphic Recording on Excavations. The Flocks of the Wamani

A Study of Llama Herders on the Punas of Ayacucho, Peru

Kent V. Flannery, Joyce Marcus, and Robert G. Reynolds

In this volume, the authors present an original ethnographic study of five llama herding communities in Ayacucho, Peru. Data on herd dynamics are subjected to computer modeling in an effort to evaluate the roles of biology, symbolic and ritual behavior, ecological adaptation, and practical reason. The book contains the most detailed study of the waytakuy llama marking ceremony yet available. The role of this ceremony in preventing herds from going to extinction is evaluated against anthropological and sociobiological theory.

A challenging view...

Debating Archaeology

Lewis R. Binford

Written by the leading theoretician and principal spokesman of the "New Archaeology" for the past thirty years, all archaeologists will find Binford's Debating Archaeology an important addition to the literature. This book includes:

- Extensive discussions of empiricism and the assumptions of "post Processual" archaeology
- Discussions of science as a learning process in conflict with empiricism
- Examination of the current scholarly conflict over the nature of early hominids
- Examination of the current scholarly conflicts in archaeological theory
- A reexamination of several old, established sites, which does not support their traditional interpretations.

The Aztec Kings

The Construction of Rulership in Mexica History

Susan D. Gillespie

This major study proposes that Aztec dynastic history was recast by its 16th century recorders in order to make sense out of the trauma of conquest. Gillespie focuses on the dynastic history of the Mexica of Tenochtitlan, whose stories reveal how "history" was used to construct, elaborate, and reify concepts concerning the nature of rulership and the cyclical nature of the cosmos, and how the Spanish conquest was projected deep into the Aztec past in order to make history accommodate that event. 272 pp., illus., $35.00 cloth.

Patarata Pottery

Classic Period Ceramics of the South-Central Gulf Coast,

Veracruz, Mexico

Barbara L. Stark

The Anthropological Papers, No. 51

Here is the first presentation of a detailed Classic period ceramic chronology for central and southern Veracruz, the first detailed study of a Gulf Coast pottery production locale, and the first sourcing-distribution study of a Gulf Coast pottery complex. Stark provides a commentary on the political and economic implications of pottery stylistic and distribution information, which makes the monograph particularly relevant to current projects being conducted in the area after a long hiatus in Gulf Coast research. 205 pp., illus., $29.95 paper.

The Next Archaeology Workbook

Nicholas David and Jonathan Driver

The Next Archaeology Workbook is a rare example of a textbook that both instructs and delights. Like its predecessor, The Archaeology Workbook, this volume features exercises that allow students to use their knowledge of archaeological method and theory to deal with fictitious scenarios and data sets. The all new problems are inventive and often witty, and pose the same questions being tackled in the field today.

The Archaeology Workbook

Steve Daniels and Nicholas David

"The challenges provided by The Archaeology Workbook are vastly superior to many routine exercises commonly used to show how archaeologists think and work. This modest, well-constructed, and frequently funny paperback can be strongly recommended to anyone teaching beginning archaeology. May there be many editions!" — American Antiquity.

LATIN AMERICAN ANTIQUITY

Relief

Portions of Taymi Canal irrigation system in "Rio de Lambayeque" Peru rendered by Dr. Cuenca in 1567.

Given the growth and increasing diversity within the field of Latin American archaeology, there has been an increasing need for a journal that not only permits timely and accessible publication of research findings, but also promotes communication between English- and Spanish-speaking archaeologists working in Latin America. LATIN AMERICAN ANTIQUITY welcomes contributions in method and theory, field research, and analysis, with preference for articles of wide interest to Latin American scholars.

The Society for American Archaeology announces publication of a new journal, LATIN AMERICAN ANTIQUITY. This new bilingual quarterly will publish peer-reviewed articles in English or Spanish dealing with the archaeology, prehistory, and ethnohistory of Mesoamerica, Central America, South America, and culturally related areas. LATIN AMERICAN ANTIQUITY will be edited by Prudence M. Rice with the assistance of a five-member Board of Editors: E. Wyllys Andrews (Middle American Research Institute), Frederick W. Lange (Colorado Museum), Jaime Litvak King (Universidad de las Americas, Puebla), Joyce Marcus (Michigan), and Don S. Rice (Virginia). The Board will be further assisted by an international Editorial Advisory Committee comprising 22 archaeologists.
