

Political Scientists, Reporters Named Congressional Fellows

The American Political Science Association has announced the winners in the national competition for the 1990-91 Congressional Fellowship Program. Fellows come to Washington in November for a one-month orientation session followed by nine months of full-time work as legislative aides in congressional offices.

The new Congressional Fellows are:

Joseph Beck, State Government Reporter, Washington State Journal, Madison, Wisconsin

Nick Beres, General Assignment Reporter, KTVL-TV, Medford, Oregon

Sophia Byrd, Editorial Writer, The Herald, Everett, Washington

Robert Dilger, Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, University of Redlands

Daniel Franklin, Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, Colgate University

Marlene K. Harris, Reporter, WOSU Radio, Columbus, Ohio

Mark Peterson, Henry LaBarre Jayne Associate Professor of Government, Harvard University

Lyn Ragsdale, Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, University of Arizona

Sponsored by the Association since 1953, the purpose of the Congressional Fellowship Program is to give outstanding political scientists, journalists, medical faculty and federal agency executives an opportunity to acquire a rich understanding of the national legislative process.

The Selection Committee was composed of Ronald D. Elving, Congressional Quarterly, Inc.; Albert R. Hunt, The Wall Street Journal; Carol Matlack, National Journal; Roger H. Davidson, University of Maryland; Christopher J. Deering, George Washington University and Director of Academic Planning and Development, Congressional Fellowship Program; Candice J. Nelson, former Visiting Fellow, The Brookings Institution; and James A. Thurber, The American University.

The 1,352 alumni of the program include university presidents, deans and professors; newspaper and magazine publishers, editors and reporters; high-ranking executives in the federal bureaucracy; and congressmen and congressional staff aides.

Other participants in the 1990-91 program will be announced later in the year.

Nick Beres Named Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellow

Nick Beres, reporter for CBS affiliate KTVL-TV of Medford, Oregon, has been named the 1990-91 Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellow by the American Political Science Association. This Fellowship is awarded to an outstanding broadcast journalist through a national competition each year.

As the Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellow, Mr. Beres will participate in APSA's Congressional Fellowship Program which includes other journalists, political scientists, health policy professionals and federal government executives who have been selected through a rigorous national competition. The Fellows spend 10 months working closely with Members of Congress and congressional committees as legislative assistants and attending weekly seminars and lectures by experts on the political process.

Before joining KTVL-TV, Mr. Beres was an on-air correspondent for WRCB-TV, NBC affiliate in Chattanooga, Tennessee. He is a graduate of the University of Oregon and has a Master of Science in Journalism from the Medil School of Journalism, Northwestern University.

The Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellowship commemorates Joan Shorenstein Barone and the standards she set for accurate, thorough, and dignified reporting of current events, first as a researcher at The Washington Post and subsequently as a producer at CBS News. Joan Shorenstein Barone was a member of the Washington staff of the CBS Evening News at the time of her death in 1985.

Funding for the Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellowship is generously provided by her parents, Walter and Phyllis Shorenstein, and family.

Lyn Ragsdale Named William A. Steiger Congressional Fellow

Lyn Ragsdale, Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, University of Arizona, has been named the second William A. Steiger Congressional Fellow by the American Political Science Association. The Fellowship is awarded each year to an outstanding political scientist or journalist through a national competition.

As the William A. Steiger Congressional Fellow, Dr. Ragsdale will participate in APSA's Congressional Fellowship Program which includes other political scientists, journalists, health policy professionals and federal government executives who have been selected through a rigorous national competition. The Fellows spend 10 months working closely with Members of Congress and congressional committees as legislative assistants and attending weekly seminars and lectures by experts on the political process.

Directory of Department Chairpersons

Each fall APSA sends a postcard to department chairs requesting them to update their department's address, phone number, and chair name. This information is used to update our mailing list and is published in an annual Directory of Department Chairpersons. Typically, we receive a 50% response rate to our mailing. In order to insure accuracy in the Directory, we encourage all departments to update their listings.

A member of the faculty of the University of Arizona since 1982, Dr. Ragsdale is also Director of the University of Arizona Survey Research Center and was Honors Professor for the Arizona-Iowa Consortium Study Abroad Program, London, England, 1988-89. She received her Ph.D. in political science from the University of Wisconsin in 1982.

The William A. Steiger Fellowship honors the memory of the late William Steiger, a Republican who represented the Sixth District of Wisconsin from 1966 until his untimely death in 1978. During his service in Congress, Representative Steiger was dedicated to the Congressional Fellowship Program. He was an active member of the program's advisory committee and, over the years, welcomed numerous Fellows to his staff. The Fellowship is awarded to an individual who best exemplifies Representative Steiger's values and interests.

Fundraising for the William A. Steiger Congressional Fellowship is under the direction of the William A. Steiger Congressional Fellowship Development Committee, which seeks to raise an endowment to support in perpetuity the Fellowship.

Member Discount Offered for Guide and Directory

APSA has recently published the Directory of Undergraduate Political Science Faculty, 1990, the third, revised edition, listing 580 schools whose highest degree is the bachelor of arts. The Directory is a companion to APSA's Guide to Graduate Study, 1989. The cost of the Directory is $15 for APSA members and $25 for nonmembers. Members who order both the Guide and the Directory together pay $30 plus $2.50 postage, a discount saving of $5.

Orders must be prepaid. Order from: APSA Publications, 1527 New Hampshire Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Continuous Membership: Gosnell Takes the Lead

Jean Walen, American Political Science Association

The story that ran in last year's September issue on members who had been continuous members of the Association for 25 years or longer generated considerable interest. Many members wrote that the Association's records were wrong—that they had been members much longer than the Association's records indicated. "I even have the Reviews to prove it," some wrote.

The Association's membership secretary since 1962, Chris Johnson, does a remarkable job of maintaining the membership records but, over the years, the methods of maintaining membership records have changed many times. It is not surprising that someone, along the way, recorded the "year joined" incorrectly.

Members were informed corrections would be printed, so here is a corrected list.
