Upland Communities

Environment, Population and Social Structure in the Alps since the 16th Century

PIER PAOLO VIAZZO

This book follows the social, economic and demographic transformations of the Alpine area from the late Middle Ages to the present day, its chronological and geographical breadth enabling the author to challenge a number of deeply-rooted but anachronistic notions about 'backward' mountain society in the past.

Demographic Behavior in the Past

A Study of Fourteen German Village Populations in the 18th and 19th Centuries

JOHN E. KNODEL

The core of this study deals with marital reproduction, examining the modernisation of reproductive behaviour in terms of the transition from natural fertility to pervasive family limitation: it also illuminates many aspects of demographic behaviour largely ignored by previous 'macro-level' studies.

The Upheaval of War

Family, Work and Welfare in Europe, 1914-18

Edited by RICHARD WALL and JAY WINTER

In a fully comparative, trans-European context, this book offers a unique examination of the destabilising effects of the First World War on family life, moving on to broader speculations about the impact of war on family forms and alternative social affiliations.

Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea

Merchant Seamen, Pirates and the Anglo-American Maritime World, 1700-1750

MARCUS REDIKER

'Good books have been written before on the history of seafaring and on the climactic years of piracy ... Rediker has written another good one ... What distinguishes Rediker's work is his unwavering and unsentimental focus on the seaman's labour and experience.'
