

Conflict in Africa

Concepts and Realities

ADDA B. BOZEMAN ■ The author compares Western ideas about conflict and its resolution to the nature of conflict in Africa south of the Sahara in its many social, political, and cultural aspects. Bozeman shows how African perspectives on war and diplomacy have evolved under the influence of non-literacy, tribalism, and a concept of undifferentiated time, and concludes that Western concepts cannot apply to African realities.

The Colonial Transformation of Kenya

The Kamba, Kikuyu, and Maasai from 1900 to 1939

ROBERT L. TIGNOR ■ "This is one of the best researched volumes on twentieth-century East African affairs that I have read. The whole study is based upon sound and judicious interpretations drawn from an impressive body of raw materials. In almost every chapter there are important new interpretations of events."—Norman R. North West Africa

A Political and Economic Survey

Wilfrid Knapp

Since 1962, when the second edition of this survey appeared, North West Africa has undergone a radical transformation. In consequence the text has been almost completely rewritten. Mr. Knapp examines the political structure of Bourguiba's Tunisia, the ideology and politics of Libya, the attempts at single-party mobilization in Algeria and Mauritania, and the modernization of the Moroccan monarchy. Economic development in the individual countries is discussed in detail, trade policies and foreign relations are analysed, and statistical tables show recent trends in population, production, and foreign trade. Third edition £12.50

Black People in Britain 1555-1833

Folarin Shyllon

This book describes the manner of life of blacks in Britain before the Emancipation Act of 1834. It tells of both bond and free, from the fop Soubise, or the classical scholar Francis Williams, to the mass of the black poor, struggling against British racism. Also included are brief biographies of eight remarkable blacks, among them Ukawsaw Gronniosaw; Dr. Johnson's servant Francis Barber; and the musician George Bridgetower. The book complements the African-born author's Black Slaves in Britain, which dealt with Lord Mansfield's celebrated judgement, in presenting the social rather than legal background to Emancipation. Mission for Hammar skjold

Rajeshwar Dayal

'His personal account of the rescue of the Congo from chaos untangles with clarity and the vividness of a principal participant those inextricably tangled politics. . . . It is a fascinating suspense story of the international rescue of a tempest-tossed new ship of state . . . also instructive for the crises and tempests that lie ahead of us.' The Times £7

Politics in the Organization of African Unity

MICHAEL WOLFERS

The book is a study of the growth of the Organization of African Unity from its founding in Addis Ababa in 1963 until the mid-1970s. It examines in great detail, drawn from the closed sessions of the first meeting, what the original intentions were and shows how they have succeeded or failed.

War and Diplomacy in Pre-Colonial West Africa

ROBERT S. SMITH

This book combines detailed technical studies of the diplomacy and of the land and water-borne warfare of pre-colonial West Africa. It shows that in pre-colonial times the peaceful relations and the warfare of the West Africans were prompted by motives as complex as elsewhere in the world and were conducted with an expertise and professionalism unsuspected by the general reader and not fully apprehended by the specialist.

Ghana's First Republic

The pursuit of the political kingdom

TREVOR JONES

This book describes one of the most important and colourful episodes in black Africa's recent history, when Kwame Nkrumah, the dynamic leader who brought Ghana to independence in 1957, abandoned the Westminster model of representative government and reached out towards the exciting goal of Pan-Africanism and socialism.

Kingdoms of the Yoruba

New Edition

ROBERT S. SMITH

During the five years since this book was first published the appearance of much new material has made it desirable that a new synthesis of Yoruba history should be attempted. For this new edition Robert Smith has made changes and additions to the original text, taking into account the recent archaeological discoveries of Ife, the reasons for the chronology of the decline and fall of Old Oyo, and has also remedied the omission of any consideration of the history of the Igbomina and other north-eastern Yoruba.

The Critical Phase in Tanzania 1945-1968

Nyerere and the Emergence of a Socialist Strategy

CRANFORD PRATT

Professor Pratt begins this study of political leaderships in Tanzania with an analysis of how British colonial rule hoped to achieve that transformation of Tanganyika's economy and political institutions which it favoured. He then traces in some detail the political and governmental experiences from 1959 to 1967 which led Nyerere and TANU to their recommitment to socialism at Arusha in January 1967. Close attention is given to the political strategy by which Nyerere hoped to accomplish this socialist transformation. £7.50 net

Volume 3 c. 1050-c. 1600

Edited by ROLAND OLIVER

The five-and-a-half centuries described in this volume were those in which Iron Age cultures passed from their early and experimental phases into stages of maturity characterised by long distance trade and complex, many-tiered political systems. During the last century-and-a-half of the period the Portuguese opened the Atlantic coasts and competed with the Muslim traders of the Indian Ocean.

PILGRIMS IN A STRANGE LAND

Hausa Communities in Chad

JOHN A. WORKS, Jr.

This new book explores the effects of religiously motivated migrations as they concern the Hausa, a West African people widely known as merchants and travelers. Making use of extensive archival and oral sources as well as maps, the work is important to the understanding of the origins and development as well as the current situation of the Hausa communities in Chad.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173-4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free separates. Additional separates may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
