CONTEMPORARY CHALLENGES AND CONTROVERSIES FOR NURSES: THE INTERFACE OF ETHICS, LAW, AND POLICY

July 14–15, 1995
Radisson Plaza
Baltimore, MD

◆ About the Conference

Nurses in all specialities, professional roles, and work settings regularly struggle to resolve perplexing and complex ethical, legal, and policy questions. Health care restructuring, requests for assisted suicide by patients, changing roles and relationships among providers, institutions, and patients, challenges of end-of-life care, and new genetic technologies and information are just a few of the issues that nurses confront in contemporary practice.

The program, designed to bring together experts in clinical practice, law, ethics, and policy, includes plenary sessions presented by leaders in health care. Interactive concurrent sessions will feature presentations on:

- ◆ restructuring issues: delivery and financing of health care
cost containment
managed care
- ◆ clinical issues: end-of-life care
assisted suicide
informed consent
use of restraints
- ◆ professional issues: licensure
supervising unlicensed assistive personnel

The target audience is advanced practice nurses in a variety of clinical specialities, nurse managers and executives, nurse attorneys, nurse ethicists, nurse educators, and nurses who are members of an ethics committee. The conference is designed for intermediate- or advanced-level nurses. It will provide opportunities for networking, collaboration, and problem-solving.

CNE credit hours pending. Contact conference registrar for CLE credit hours.

American Society of Law, Medicine & Ethics

THE SOCIETY

The American Society of Law, Medicine & Ethics (ASLME) is an interdisciplinary educational association whose mission is to provide high-quality debate and critical insights on issues facing the community of professionals at the intersection of law, health care, policy, and ethics.

PUBLICATIONS

Membership in ASLME includes annual subscriptions to two quarterly publications: The Journal of Law, Medicine & Ethics (formerly Law, Medicine & Health Care) and the American Journal of Law & Medicine.

The Journal of Law, Medicine & Ethics is a professional, peer reviewed quarterly read by more than 6,500 doctors, lawyers, nurses, ethicists, hospital administrators, allied health professionals, and students. JLME provides well-written and often controversial articles on such timely topics as health care quality, cost, and access, managed care, ethics committees, informed consent, assisted dying, genetics, reproductive health, and public health. Issues also feature reviews of significant policy decisions, books, and recent health law developments.

The Winter 1995 issue features papers on the legal and clinical implications of the Genome Project as well as panel commentaries on model genetics privacy legislation. The Spring 1996 issue presents empirical research on advance directives as well as articles on consent and cognitively impaired subjects and on women and clinical trials.

The American Journal of Law & Medicine is a law review co-published with the Boston University School of Law. AJLM was founded to fulfill the need for a scholarly journal dedicated to improving communication between legal and medical professionals. Each issue contains in-depth articles and case notes—on broad themes relating to health law and policy, and to the legal, ethical, and economic aspects of medical practice, research, and education—and selected book reviews and health law court decisions.

The 1995 Winter issue contains papers on forgoing nutrition and hydration in nursing homes and negligent selection and retention of physicians under ERISA. The 1996 Summer–Fall symposium will feature papers on health care capitation systems.

CONFERENCES

The Society sponsors continuing education conferences. Each conference includes panel debates, roundtable discussions, and workshops. Conferences are accredited for legal, medical, and nursing credit, with other credit arranged as is appropriate.
