

Journal of Contemporary History

edited by Walter Laqueur and George Mosse

The Journal, to be published quarterly, will deal not only with political history but also with the history of ideas and movements, and of the social forces of our time.

The first issue is a symposium on the theme of International Fascism. It will be followed in April by an account of left-wing intelligentsia between the two world wars; the third number will re-assess the European situation on the eve of World War I.

Published at 15s. per issue, annual sub. 50s.

The Irish Question

NICHOLAS MANSERGH

'one of those very readable books which help to broaden one's horizons and enrich one's perspectives in the study of Irish history.'

Irish Independent.

'his extraordinarily stimulating book helps to carry the revolution in Irish historical studies a stage further. It is the first sustained analysis of the modern Irish Question as distinct from detailed examination of particular parts of it.' PROFESSOR F. S. L. LYONS—New Statesman. 42s.

The Habit of Authority

A. P. THORNTON

This book comments not on the 'story of English liberty', but on its context. England's history is the history of a certain tradition and practice of government—a tradition of successful paternalism—successful because the various kinds of men who have governed the country have shown themselves able both to change with changing circumstances, and to calculate the amount of the change. 45s.
