THE OPEN CHURCH

A report and commentary on the

Second Session of the Vatican Council

by

Michael Novak

*Rev. David L. Edwards, Anglican Director of The Student Christian Movement
Press:*

"If Roman Catholicism develops along the lines which Mr. Novak sketches I can begin to hope that my grandchildren will be Roman Catholics. It will be a miracle, but is not Christianity a story about miracles?"

The Abbot of Downside:

"I wish every Council Father would read Novak's book."

The New Series of Paper Backs

COMPASS BOOKS

Pointing into new territories being opened up in theology, biblical scholarship, liturgy and historical re-evaluation. Written and designed for this age of change within the Church, these books will help and encourage all those who find inspiration in progress and who welcome the opportunity to think their own way through the ensuing arguments.

Slim, elegant format, 3 colour laminated paper covers

APOLOGETICS AND THE BIBLICAL CHRIST

Avery Dulles, S.J.

Recent biblical scholarship sometimes seems to point to conclusions radically different from those many Christians think their faith is based on. Fr. Dulles writes about these developments and their significance for apologetic traditions that could be discarded without 'danger to faith'. 9s 6d

MUTATIONS OF WESTERN CHRISTIANITY

Albert Mirgeler

Controversial analysis of the formative years of Christendom that will provoke widespread discussion, particularly among those who have recently revived Belloc's catchphrase about 'Europe is the Faith'. 15s

PRIMITIVE CHRISTIAN SYMBOLS

Jean Daniélou, S.J.

Fr. Daniélou discusses the complex symbolic system of the Judeo-Christians and relates this to the old Testament, to the emergent Gnostic systems and shows how much of all these early patterns remained in later developments in Christianity. 16s

THE VARIETY OF CATHOLIC ATTITUDES

Theodore Westow

A study of the different ways Christians in the past have seen themselves as individuals or as members of a community and an argument for the need of a new synthesis, a new sense of collective responsibility on the part of Christians towards the church and the world they live in. 13s 6d
