Policy Studies Organization Awards

The Policy Studies Organization and the APSA Policy Studies Section made some important awards at the annual awards luncheon on September 1 as part of the APSA convention. Aaron Wildavsky received the Harold Lasswell Award as an outstanding scholar contributing to our understanding of the substance or process of public policy. Aaron's work on budgeting policy is especially relevant to Harold Lasswell's defining political science in terms of who gets what, when, how, and why. Donna Shalala received the Hubert Humphrey Award as an outstanding public policy practitioner. It was mainly for her work as assistant secretary for policy development and research in the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Edward Quade received the Donald Campbell Award as an outstanding methodological innovator in public policy studies. It was mainly for his book on Analysis for Public Decisions (North Holland-Elsevier, 1976 and 1982). The book is generally considered the first basic textbook in the field of systematic public policy evaluation.

Benjamin Page received the PSO Book Award for his book on Who Gets What from Government (University of California Press, 1983). Steven Maynard-Moody received the PSO Article Award for his article on "Program Evaluation and Administrative Control" from the February 1983 issue of the Policy Studies Review. Susan Hansen received the PSO Conference Paper Award for her paper on "The Making of Unpopular Decisions: A Typology and Some Evidence," presented at the 1984 annual meeting of the Midwest Political Science Association.

The Policy Studies Organization welcomes nominations for the 1985 PSO Awards in the above six categories for being an outstanding policy studies contributor, practitioner, methodologist, book author, article author, and conference paper author. Nominations should be sent to PSO, 361 Lincoln Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, IL 61801.

Southern Consortium Annual Public Service Award

The Southern Consortium of University Public Service Organizations presented its Annual Public Service Award for 1983-84 to the Institute for Governmental Service, University of Maryland. The purpose of the award is to recognize outstanding public service provided by individuals in colleges and universities. The plaque was presented at the luncheon of the Region V Annual ASPA Conference in Memphis on October 11, 1984, for the creation of Toward Closer Ties, a directory of University of Maryland Public Services. Produced by Mary Ann Elliott, the publication is a guidebook to existing services and expertise. Patricia S. Florestano, director of the Institute and immediate past president of ASPA, accepted the award.

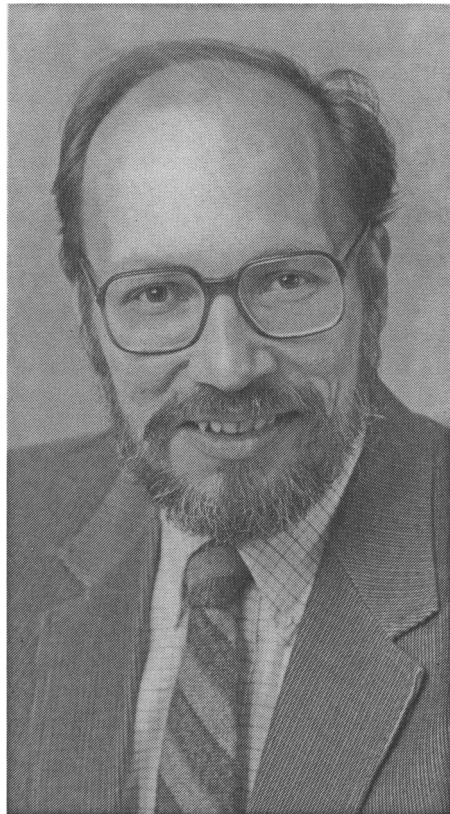

Other Awards and Honors

Philip B. Coulter, professor and chairperson of political science and director of ISSR at the University of Alabama, received the Distinguished Alumni Award in Political Science on behalf of the Graduate School of Public Affairs in The Nelson A. Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy, State University of New York at Albany.

Charles W. Kegley, Jr., chairman of the Department of Government and International Studies at The University of South Carolina, has been honored by The American University with a Distinguished Alumnus Award.

C. I. Eugene Kim, professor of political science, received the Distinguished Faculty Scholar Award at Western Michigan University. The award, which is based on a university-wide competition, was granted in recognition of his scholarship in Korean studies, the military in less-developed countries, and political development and modernization.

Conrad P. Waligorski of the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, has been named the Outstanding Teacher in the Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences.

In Memoriam

John Chauncey Donovan

John Chauncey Donovan, DeAlva Stanwood Alexander Professor of Government at Bowdoin College, died suddenly on the morning of October 3, 1984. He was 64.

John was born in New York City of Old Yankee and New Irish parents. He grew up during the Great Depression in the mill town of Naugatuck, Connecticut. The Old Yankee connection took him to Bates College from which he was graduated in 1942.

As Lieutenant (JG) Donovan he served on a destroyer in the South Pacific during World War II, and returned to graduate study as part of that remarkable, immediate post-war generation in the Harvard Government Department (Lane, Beer, Easton, Walke, Proxmire and so many more). He received his M.A. in 1948 and his Ph.D. in 1949. That same year he was appointed instructor in government at Bates. Teaching the typically heavy and diverse loads of that period, he was promoted to assistant professor in 1951, associate professor in 1954, and professor of government and chairman of the division of social sciences in 1957.

During the early 1950s John was part (along with Edmund Muskie and Frank Coffin) of a quiet revolution in Maine politics which saw the Democratic Party emerge as a competitive force for the first time since the Jacksonian period. John was state Democratic chairman in 1957-1958 and managed Governor Muskie's successful senatorial campaign in 1958. He went to Washington in 1959 as Muskie's administrative assistant. In 1960, in his only personal bid for electoral office, he was an unsuccessful congressional candidate in Maine's old second district. In 1962 he was named special and executive assistant to Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz and became manpower administrator in March of 1964.

In February of 1965 John resigned from government to accept the Alexander chair at Bowdoin. During his Bowdoin years he published widely and with great distinction while serving from time to time as a Trustee of Bates, of the University of Maine, and as a member of several state study commissions, and completed a Ford Foundation study of British manpower policy. His widely acclaimed book on "the war on poverty," The Politics of Poverty, was published in 1970, and this was followed by The Policy Makers in 1970, The Cold Warriors in 1974, and (with Richard E. Morgan and Christian P. Potholm) two textbooks: American Politics: Directions of Change, Dynamics of Choice (1979, 1982) and People, Power and Politics (1981).

John's life was that rare combination—so often talked about, even dreamed about, but seldom realized—of teaching, scholarship, politics, and public service. His passing sadly diminishes his college, his state, and our profession.

Carl Joachim Friedrich

Carl Joachim Friedrich died on September 19, 1984, after a long illness. He had been one of the most learned and creative political scientists in America and Europe, who during his long career deeply influenced many generations of students at Harvard. The range of his scholarly work was extraordinary, especially as he was also constantly engaged in public life, in addition to being a dedicated amateur farmer and musician. He would not, however, have liked to be
