

soul or anima—suggestions on the prospective or synthetic significance of Freud's Irma dream, as distinguished from its reductive interpretation—the importance of the manifest content.

Fees for each course—medical practitioners, £2 2s., medical students, £1 1s. Owing to limited accommodation it is particularly requested that tickets for the course be taken in advance from Miss A. O. Trotter, 18, Eaton Place, S.W. 1.

THE INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF PSYCHO-ANALYSIS.

THE first number of this journal has recently been published, with Dr. Ernest Jones, President of the International Psycho-Analytical Association, as editor. The journal will rank equally with the International Zeitschrift für ärztliche Psycho-analyse as the official organ of the Association. The journal is to be devoted to psycho-analysis and kindred studies, but its scope is to extend beyond the clinical sphere, and will include the application of psycho-analysis to literature, education, mythology, philology, sociology and anthropology. The aims and purpose of the journal are indicated in an introductory editorial article, and it is made clear that its policy is the development and maintenance of the concepts of Freudian psychology, as distinct from "those disruptive and reactionary tendencies which necessarily accompany psycho-analysis."

Dr. Ernest Jones contributes a sympathetic obituary notice of Dr. James Jackson Putnam, the American neurologist, who, in his later years, was largely responsible for the development of the principles of the Freudian school in his own country. The most noteworthy contribution is that by Prof. Freud, a reprint of which is included in the present number of the Journal of Mental Science. Mr. Flugel writes an article on "The Character and Married Life of Henry VIII," and concludes his study by emphasising the value of the application of psycho-analytic theories for the understanding of historical personalities. Dr. Douglas Bryan furnishes an elementary didactic article on "Freud's Psychology," and it is proposed that each number shall contain a contribution of this kind. Dr. Stanford Read writes a review of the English and American literature during the last six years bearing upon psycho-analysis.

The journal is to be issued quarterly, and the subscription per volume is £1 10s.

UNCERTIFIABLE MENTAL CASES.

"HOMES OF RECOVERY."

A MEMORIAL signed by 104 Members of Parliament has been forwarded to the Minister of Health urging the provision of hostels or "homes of recovery" for uncertifiable mental cases, to be run by local authorities on a purely hospital footing and be kept wholly apart from any connection with the Lunacy Board or lunacy administration, so that these early cases may not be deterred from entering them voluntarily. The memorial adds: "We would urge the primary importance of dealing with the early and most curable stage of mental instability in a way which shall dissociate it from confirmed or dangerous insanity, and afford a reasonable prospect of speedy recovery under the appropriate influence of exhilarating and hopeful surroundings, combined with interesting and congenial forms of occupation. The immediate provision of such homes or hostels necessitates no proposal for change in legislation, since borough councils are already empowered by the Public Health Act, 1875, to run such hospitals (free from detention and without any claim for profit), and an extension of these powers to other county councils could be readily obtained. The inmates of such hostels would be controlled during their stay by the rules of the place, but be free to leave on giving a specified notice. Under no circumstances except those of extreme urgency should any inmate be certified while in a hostel; the patient's friends must be summoned to remove him first, and certification effected (if necessary) after his departure by an independent doctor. No form of detention by irregular means must be countenanced, so that the hostels may not come to be regarded as in any sense 'half-way houses' to licensed or public mental hospitals.