

TEXT AND PERFORMANCE QUARTERLY

A Publication of the Speech Communication Association

Text and Performance Quarterly (TPQ) explores

UNITY OF TEXT AND PERFORMANCE

From the creation and criticism of texts through the creation and criticism of performance, TPQ explores the ways in which texts and performances constitute cultural realities and social relations as well as aesthetic experiences.

DIVERSE FORMS OF TEXTS AND PERFORMANCES

TPQ focuses on literary, theatrical, everyday, cultural, and mass mediated texts and performances, including poetry, prose, and drama, oral traditions, verbal art, storytelling, and television and film performance.

CROSS-DISCIPLINARY RESEARCH

TPQ welcomes current research in interpretation and performance studies, English, theatre, rhetoric, communication, and mass media, anthropology, folklore, aesthetics, linguistics, social history, and cultural studies.

SPECIAL ISSUE ON CRITICISM SINCE THE 1970S

The July 1991 issue features essays on new historicism, deconstruction, critical narratology, psychoanalysis, rhetorical hermeneutics, feminist criticism, and the uses of theory.

UPCOMING TOPICS

Upcoming issues include essays on reading and textural power, taste cultures, visual communication, performing the female body, autobiography and narrative performance, and performance in everyday life.
